Sheriff's Claims In Rights Deaths Called Ridiculous

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Sheriff Lawrence Rainey claimed Saturday FBI agents told him they had eyewitnesses to the murders of three civil rights workers and offered him money for information about the brutal slayings.

The FBI called Rainey's claim "ridiculous."

The sheriff was one of 21 white men arrested Friday on federal conspiracy charges in last June's triple murder. The arrests climaxed a five-month investigation.

INFILTRATION

FBI sources said the government's case was built by infiltrating the Ku Klux Klan and interviewing more than 1,000 residents of Mississippi, including 480 Klan members.

There was no confirmation of published reports that the FBI has a statement from an eyewitness of the killings and will use it in court.

FBI sources said 153 agents had worked on the case almost without let-up since Michael Schwerner, Andrew Goodman and James Chaney disappeared near Philadelphia last June. Their bodies were found in an earth-fill dam Aug. 4.

Schwerner and Goodman were white New Yorkers. Chaney, a Negro, lived at nearby Meridian.

The Neshoba County sheriff's charge came as Mississippi awaited the next legal step in the massive FBI roundup that included the husky sheriff, his deputy, Cecil Price, a rural preacher and several businessmen.

Intense interest centered on next Thursday's preliminary hearing in nearby Meridian.

Government attorneys will have to show enough of their hand to convince the U. S. commissioner the men should be held for federal grand jury action.

The question of whether any of the 21 men would be charged with murder in the slayings was still unanswered. Murder is not a federal crime unless it is committed on federal property.

Nineteen of the men are charged with violating the civil rights of the three murdered workers.

The other two men were charged as accessories.

Rainey made his remarks about the FBI in an interview in his office. He and Price buckled on their gunbelts again Saturday and returned to duty after their arrest and arraignment Friday.

The sheriff said two FBI agents who picked him up at his office urged him to give them whatever information he had about the triple slayings.

"They started telling me I knew everything about the crime," Rainey said. "But I told them no. They said, 'We've got three to five eyewitnesses and we are going to take care of them.' "

He quoted the agents as saying: "If you'll come on and tell us what you know, we will take care of you and pay all your debts and you will leave out of here with more money than you'll ever make."

FBI Handed Baker Case Transactions

Secret Evidence From Reynolds Will Be Checked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., said today secret testimony given the Senate Rules Committee by Don B. Reynolds has been turned over to the FBI.

"They've seen it," the committee chairman said. "They can check out any leads."

Reynolds is a key witness in the current Rules Committee investigation of an alleged secret political payoff to the Kennedy-Johnson campaign in 1960.

'BAG MAN'

He testified last week he was the "bag man" for Democratic fund raiser Matthew H. McCloskey and Bobby Baker, former secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

McCloskey, once ambassador to Ireland, heatedly denied any knowledge of such a deal.

Baker, 36, is now under investigation by a federal grand jury as well as being the central figure in the committee's renewed inquiry into his affairs.

Testimony about party girls, pleasure trips and a $35,000 payment to Baker for legal services never used were among highlights of last week's hearings.

Jordan said the investigation will resume this week, probably Tuesday.

There were vague hints that the testimony given in closed session last week was sensational in character.

Jordan refused to talk about statements Reynolds made before his public testimony. Jordan would say only that there was "new information."

"We'll procede after we have checked it thoroughly," he told newsmen.

McKeithen Says Teachers Salary Hike 'Largest Ever'

Sales Tax Killed, Session Adjourns

By SAM HANNA
Legislative Writer

BATON ROUGE — The Louisiana Legislature adjourned sine die Saturday after the Senate killed a one-cent sales tax as Gov. John J. McKeithen declared that the teacher pay raise was the "largest ever."

McKeithen appeared before the Senate after the sales tax bill went down to defeat, 21-14, five votes short of a two-thirds majority necessary for a general tax increase.

"The $24-million pay raise for the teachers will be the largest increase ever for them," McKeithen said, referring to his plans to implement half of a United School Committee salary schedule.

SWITCHES VOTE

Sen. Harvey Peltier of Thibodaux was the only member who switched his position from Tuesday when the Senate voted 20-19 on the bill. But four solons didn't vote, including Sen. Howard Jones of St. Joseph.

"If we don't pass this sales tax, we'll be called back into special session for this same purpose," said Sen. Harold Montgomery, Doyline, handling the bill for Rep. Ford Stinson, Bossier Parish.

But McKeithen said, "I think in the near future we can fully implement the salary schedule. I will dedicate myself to finding the money without a new tax.

McKeithen expects the state to bring in an additional $16 million from bills passed in the 20-day special session to go toward half implementation of the USC schedule.

But one of McKeithen's bills, an expansion of the two-cent sales tax on items sold by wholesaler to retailers, ran into an attempt to kill it in the House.

Rep. George Holstead of Ruston offered a resolution to kill the bill, passed earlier for $7.5 million, but McKeithen's floor leaders fought Holstead's move. The House voted the Holstead resolution down, 27-59.

Holstead said he thought the bill should be killed because "merchants don't know whether the tax will be four cents or two cents."

Rep. Lantz Womack, a floor leader from Winnsboro, argued that the bill shouldn't be killed because he said the department of revenue had mailed 65,000 letters to merchants explaining the new tax.

"I can't help but recall when the governor said he had found an additional $5 million," Holstead said, referring to McKeithen's press conference statements regarding expected additional revenue.

That same McKeithen statement touched off a lively round in the Senate when Sen. Jules Mollere of Metairie said, "We don't need a sales tax. I read in the paper where the governor said he had found an additional $8 million."

"No," shouted McKeithen from the sidelines. "That's not true. I didn't say that."

After a conference with McKeithen, Mollere returned later to say, "To clear the record, the governor has said he had hoped they would end the year with a surplus. J. B. Lancaster, the legislative auditor, made the statement about the additional $8 million."

Revenue for the teacher raise was a sore spot with the Legislature during the session since the Public Affairs Research Council reported that the administration had enough funds to give the teachers a raise without additional taxes.

During the sales tax debate, Sen. Adrain Duplantier of New Orleans said the USC-schedule adopted by the Legislative was the "highest pay schedule ever adopted."

"It includes the highest raise ever given the teachers," he added.

"On a nine-month basis," Duplantier said, "This amounts to approximately $150 each month. This is the pay raise when fully implemented. When the teachers open their pay checks next month, the raise will be in there."

Half implemented, the schedule will mean an average $550 raise for teachers next year, or about $225 for the balance of the current school year, beginning January 1st.

He said half-implementation would represent a raise of almost $70 for beginning teachers.

Duplantier noted that the Legislature had passed a $12-million appropriations bill for half implementation, pointing out that the 1956 schedule was not fully implemented until 1960.

But Sen. Sylvan Friedman of Natchitoches differed with Duplantier, saying, "The school teachers were paid $16 million in the school year of 1956-57. In 1959, they were given another one fourth and in 1960 under the Davis administration they were given the other one-fourth."

McKeithen said the new raise would amount to $24 million, adding, "I thought the appropriation was larger but this is the largest ever."

He said he thought he was having trouble in the special session until he learned that the late Huey P. Long was almost impeached in his first special session.

From the Monroe area, Sen. Jamar Adcock, a floor leader, of Monroe cast the only vote against the sales tax while Sen. Charles Barham of Ruston spoke for it.

Barham, an attorney, discounted claims that the bill was unconstitutional, since it left the House with a public referendum clause, which was taken out by the Senate, converting the bill into a straight sales tax.

"I say it is constitutional," Barham said.

Adcock remained silent during the debate sparked by Sen. B. B. (Sixty) Rayburn of Bogalusa who said the solons "owed it to the children" to pass the tax.

"I'm willing to take the easiest way out, Rayburn said. "I think a sales tax would solve our problem."

Sen. Michael O'Keefe, a floor leader, of New Orleans added, "As a result of this session, the teachers in Louisiana will be the highest paid teachers in the south and on a par with the state of Florida."

GOP Parley Remains Split On Chairman

Governors Pass Paper Opposing Narrow Stands

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — After hours of debate, Republican governors unanimously approved Saturday a statement opposing "narrow political radicalism," and urging the party to adopt leadership that would represent "a broad view of Republicanism."

But the governors disagreed whether the resolution was a call for the removal of Dean Burch as national chairman and thus a slap at Sen. Barry Goldwater.

BIG THREE

However, the three biggest names at the meeting of the GOP's 18 governors and governors-elect — George Romney of Michigan, Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, and William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania — said the resolution was a clear call for Burch's removal.

The governors also pushed through statements on civil rights and political extremism similar to those defeated by Goldwater forces in the bitter wrangle at the San Francisco convention in August.

The governors said they "support all necessary action, public or private, to root out discrimination and the effects of discrimination throughout the United States. We will not stop short of this goal."

The governors also said they "vigorously oppose all forms of narrow political radicalism, whether of the right or the left, which seek to disrupt the orderly development of the great experiment in self-government that is the United States."

Gov. Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, chairman of the Governors Association, said the resolution "describes the kind of a national chairman I don't think we have. I said the other morning we need a change and I think we're going to get it."

Some sources at the convention said the Burch-must-go feeling was growing within the party.

GOVS. ROBERT E. SMYLIE (left) of Idaho, chairman of the Republican Governors Association conference, and George Romney of Michigan, both of whom called for the ouster of GOP National Chairman Dean Burch, confer in close conversation just after the governors' association at Denver Saturday voted to avoid asking for Burch's resignation. Security Lax At Viet Base, Board Says

Bien Hoa Attack Brings On More U.S. Protection

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U.S. military board has found South Vietnamese troops were lax in taking security measures around the U.S. air base at Bien Hoa when Communist guerrillas pounded it with mortars Nov. 1, killing four Americans and knocking out 27 U.S. planes.

SEVERAL HUNDRED

Military sources reporting this Saturday said the United States has decided to ship several hundred U.S. security men, military police, Marines and air police to improve security around American bases in South Viet Nam.

About 150 of these men will be sent to Da Nang, the key coastal air base 380 miles northeast of Saigon, the sources said.

In the attack on Bien Hoa, the Communist Viet Cong moved into the surrounding jungles, carefully set up and aimed their mortars and lobbed about 100 shells in a predawn attack. In addition to the four Americans killed, 72 were wounded. Among the planes destroyed or damaged seriously were 20 parked B57 jet bombers.

The Viet Cong raiders slipped away into the jungle and so far as is known never were tracked down, despite a counterattack by air and a ground search after daybreak.

The Bien Hoa base is 15 miles outside Saigon.

After the attack, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, named a seven-man board of inquiry.

U.S. sources said the board found that while the South Vietnamese did take precautions around major air bases after the Gulf of Tonkin crisis in August, in the particular case of Bien Hoa these precautions "broke down operationally." They did not go into details.

But since the attack, the sources said, the Vietnamese have tightened security around Bien Hoa and other bases.

Many Needy Ask Goodfellows' Aid

Warm clothing, toys, a little food on the table.

These are mainly the things people ask of the Goodfellows at Christmas Time.

Many needy families have six and seven children. Some asking aid are as old as 82, or young as 12, others are sick or invalids and cannot work.

Ofter people write to ask Goodfellows to help a neighbor or some other underprivileged family too proud to ask for assistance.

One child wrote and asked for help for her three younger sisters and one brother — not asking for anything herself.

MOTHER WRITES

A mother of six said, "If you will help us this Christmas, we will help you next Christmas."

Contributions should be sent to the Goodfellows, in care of the News - Star or Morning World, Monroe.

To date, only $622.50 of the $6,000 goal has been realized. The drive has been on for one week and in order for the goal to be attained contributions need to triple each week from now until Christmas.

The Goodfellows investigate each application for help and members of the group distribute the material to needy families on Christmas Eve.

"I lost my baby recently," writes one Monroe woman. "The only child I have wears braces around her waist and legs. A bike would help her legs. If you know anyone who needs a crib and mattress I'll give you one. It was to be my baby's. I also have baby clothes I'll give you."

Snowball Party Becomes Melee

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A pre-Christmas snowball party for children erupted Saturday into a wild melee that had youngsters battling police and firemen with wet, hard balls of ice.

The party, sponsored by businessmen, began innocently enough when six tons of powdered ice were dumped at an intersection in suburban Coral Gables.

About half the 300 to 400 children on hand for the festivities went wild. Shouting and screaming, they pushed, clawed and struggled into the pile of white stuff.

Most were boys under 12, and many had never seen real snow.

The air was filled with snowballs. Adults, many carrying infants, retreated behind parked cars or beyond the range of young arms.

Firemen were called in to wash down the artificial snow with hoses.

The boys counterattacked, pelting police and firemen with snow that packed to the hardness of ice in the 80-degree-plus temperature.

Finally, the snow pile disappeared under the streams of water, and the youngsters dispersed, laughing and shouting. None was hurt seriously, although several suffered bloody noses.

OFFICE GRABBING

Congressmen Try Hand At Old Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eighty four congressmen-elect participated Saturday in a game of chance — directly or indirectly. It's the biennial event for choosing office space.

The dealer in this lottery every two years is A. Emmanuel Ridgell, superintendent of the House office buildings.

He put metal disks numbered 1 through 84 into a ballot-type box on a table in the huge House caucus room. Then either a freshman congressman -elect or someone representing him stuck a hand through a hole in a piece of cloth that formed the top of the box, and pulled forth a numbered disk.

No. 1 went to Rep.-elect James A. Mackay, D-Ga., elected to succeed Rep. Carl Vinson, D-Ga., who retired.

No. 84 went to Rep-elect Hervey G. Machen, D-Md., who will take the seat from which Rep. Richard E. Lankford, D-Md., retired.

In the next play, Ridgell called out the numbers to give the first choice of offices to Mackay and leaving the last office assignment to Machen.

Considerable congressional moving is in prospect, because a third House office building is being readied for use in 1965. Named for the late Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., the multimillion-dollar structure includes 169 deluxe office suites of three rooms each.

Between Jan. 11 and Feb. 1 — strictly on the basis of the most years in the House — 169 members will be assigned these 169 suites. But they don't have to move from their present offices unless they want to.

Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., with 41 years in the House, has the most seniority and gets first choice of office space in the Rayburn Building where the Judiciary Committee he heads also is expected to move.

All residents of the City of Monroe and adjacent residential areas east of the Ouachita river are eligible to enter the competition.

Persons interested in entering their home in the lighting contest should fill out an official entry coupon appearing daily in the Morning World and News-Star and mail it to the Christmas Home Lighting Contest Department, News-Star — World Publishing Corporation, Olive and North 4th streets, Monroe.

Deadline for entering the contest is Monday, Dec. 14 and the displays must be completed by 5 p.m., Friday, Dec. 18.

A panel of judges will select the winners in special after-dark tours of the city. Judges will include business women, garden club officers and outstanding homemakers.

Cash prizes totaling $550 will be awarded to the top three winners in three categories.

Class A — expenditures of less than $25; $100 first prize, $30 second and $15 third.

Class B — expenditures between $25 and $50; $100 first prize, $50 second and $25 third.

Class C — expenditures of more than $50; $120 first prize, $75 second and $35 third.

LEADS RIVAL

Intricate Maneuver Shoots Mariner On

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 4 performed an intricate maneuver with clockwork precision Saturday 1.25 million miles out in space and fired a rocket expected to drive it within 4,400 miles of Mars next July 14.

With no hint of troubles which called off a similar attempt Friday the camera-toting spacecraft streaked smoothly on through space, apparently well ahead of its rival in history's first interplanetary race — the Russian Zond 2 launched Monday.

Mariner 4, launched last Saturday, was traveling at a slightly increased speed of 7,047 miles an hour toward earth's mysterious neighbor — at that point still 122.5 million miles away.

Jet Propulsion Laboratory scientists were jubilant over performance of the craft which they built and are guiding on the seven-month voyage, but said it would be five to 10 days before they can tell exactly how much they changed its course.

"We're very pleased, very optimistic," said Glen Reiff, director of the Mariner program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "but we know, too, that it's a long time to go to Mars."

The maneuver was ordered because Mariner 4's trajectory after launch would have missed Mars by 150,000 miles.

If the direction change turns out to be insufficient the rocket in the spacecraft's base has enough fuel left for one more maneuver. But scientists expressed hope that they can let Mariner 4 coast until it gets close to Mars.

Then they will trigger cameras designed to televise the best pictures yet of Mars — pictures which could tell whether any form of life is possible on the reddish planet.

CREATING NUCLEAR FORCE

U.S., British Talks Keyed To Produce Hard Bargain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, working through emissaries, are reported to have laid a basis for probable agreement this week on the broad outlines of a new approach to creation of a NATO nuclear weapons force.

Their two-day conference is expected to produce some hard bargaining, however, and officials are already cautioning that agreement at best can be only tentative. This is so, they say, because it will mean nothing without negotiation with other key NATO countries — notably West Germany and Italy.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball conferred in London early last week with Wilson, British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker and Defense Secretary Denis Healey.

Ball and Ambassador David Bruce, U.S. envoy to Britain, reported to Johnson Saturday on the proposals which Wilson is bringing to Washington and on his attitude toward the talks here. The report is understood to be optimistic.

Ball also conferred in Paris with French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville but reportedly found no change in the stern opposition of the French government to NATO nuclear force proposals, including the controversial U.S. plan for a multilateral nuclear force.

President Charles de Gaulle seems certain to mount an active campaign within NATO against any proposals which result from the Wilson-Johnson meeting.

Johnson has decided, however, that he is going to push ahead, as he believes Wilson will be prepared to do, for a solution to the nuclear weapons problem despite De Gaulle's opposition. At the same time he will keep the way open for France to join the projected force in the future.

Wilson, Gordon Walker and Healey are due here Sunday evening. The prime minister and the President have scheduled four sessions Monday and Tuesday and Wilson will hold a news conference Wednesday before leaving for Canada, by way of New York.

Both Wilson and Johnson agree that their plans are negotiable. Johnson is said to be fully ready to make drastic changes in U.S. plans for a seaborne nuclear force of 25 ships and 200 Polaris missiles jointly owned and operated by a group of NATO allies.

The United States would keep veto control over use of the weapons. The other countries would share in developing nuclear strategy and tactics.

Only the United States and the West German government are really interested in this plan and even in those two countries it is a matter of argument.

The divisive nature of the proposed force is one of the reasons why Johnson is ready to consider a sweeping revision. Officials say he is determined that the essential of the plan must be preserved, including mixed manning and a surface force large enough to make military sense.

Wilson also seeks specific results which are impossible without cooperation from Johnson. He wants to abandon Britain's independent nuclear force, handing over bombers and planned Polaris submarines to NATO. To accomplish this he and his advisers have decided that a reorganization of NATO in the nuclear weapons field is essential.

But the major gain which Wilson wants to show to the British people for abandoning the costly and slowly built nuclear force is the achievement of British voice in U.S. worldwide nuclear strategy which British officials are calling "crisis control."

The British press in some instances has described this objective as Britain's seeking "a seat" in the U.S. National Security Council.

British officials say this simply dramatizes what Wilson wants: an assurance of consultation, so that Britain's interests and views will be considered in developing nuclear strategy, in quiet times or in crisis.

Wilson's specific proposal on this point is reported to be formation of a group of consultants — a sort of nuclear council within the NATO — which would handle high policy and strategic questions relating to strategy, targeting of nuclear weapons, and "crisis control."

Another key part of Wilson's package is formation of a NATO nuclear command system which would embrace the U.S.-proposed multilateral force of surface ships, the British contribution of bombers and Polaris submarines, some of the land-based nuclear weapons now in NATO territory, and theoretically any forces or cooperation France might some day offer.

But what Wilson considers most important in any such plan is that the United States should forever maintain a veto control over weapons contributed to the NATO force.

In fact Wilson is said to favor a series of vetoes so that there would be more "fingers on the safety catch" of NATO nuclear weapons than "fingers on the trigger."

The reason, British officials say, is that Wilson is anxious to press forward in disarmament agreements with Russia and he wants to persuade the Russians that the proposed nuclear force is a barrier to the spread of nuclear weapons instead of an assist.

Anti-Spouse Plot Fails As Police Get Into Scene

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A young woman and a man were arrested Saturday after, police said they hired two detectives to kill the woman's husband.

Police said Peggy Jo Johnt, 22, and Robert C. Pitz, 24, both of Buffalo were unaware of the detectives' identity.

Mrs. Johnt and Pitz were charged with conspiracy to murder Mrs. Johnt's husband, Paul E., 35.

Michael A. Amico, assistant detective chief, said that, after Police Commissioner William Schneider had received information a murder plot was developing, he contacted Pitz in a tavern, where Pitz was a part-time bartender.

Amico quoted Pitz as saying he had a girlfriend who was having difficulty with her husband.

Pitz, Amico told a newsman, reported that the woman wanted her husband killed so she could collect his life insurance and other assets reportedly worth $50,000. They actually were worth $25,000, Amico said.

The detective chief said he and detective Sgt. Samuel N. Giambrone later agreed to accept a $1,500 fee. They received two payments totaling $175 and were promised the remainder after Mrs. Johnt collected the insurance, Amico said.

The slaying had been scheduled for Friday night, Amico said. Mrs. Johnt and Pitz were arrested early Saturday after, Amico said, another policeman had informed Mrs. Johnt her husband was dead.

Johnt, meanwhile had been taken to police headquarters and told of the plot, police reported.

ARKANSAS COURT CHIEF

Judge To Speak At Banquet Here

Judge Carleton Harris, the featured speaker at Thursday's Annual Recognition Banquet of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council, is a man of wide experience, Council Executive Jack Pankey reported Saturday.

Judge Harris, 54, of Pine Bluff, Ark., has been chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court since Jan. 1, 1957, after election in November of 1956. But, outside of law experience, he has been extremely active in civic undertakings, is a former state representative and a veteran of two years service during World War II as a Marine.

His remarks, along with the installation of new council officers, recognition of old ones and presentation of achievement awards, will headline the 7 p.m. banquet program on the Frances Hotel roof.

Judge Harris is a native of Pine Bluff, who attended the public schools of that city, took pre-law at Union University and later earned his law degree from Cumberland University before being admitted to practice in 1932.

He is qualified to practice in state and federal courts, including the U. S. Supreme Court, as well as before the Interstate Commerce Commission. Two years service with the Marines has been his only break in the practice of law.

The chief justice served three terms as representative from Jefferson County and was selected in 1937 as chairman of the important Judiciary Committee, composed of all lawyers in the House.

He served as assistant prosecuting attorney and then without opposition was advanced to prosecuting attorney of the 11th Judicial District composed of Desha, Lincoln and Jefferson Counties.

Judge Harris was elected chancery judge of the Fourth Chancery District, composed of Jefferson, Arkansas, Lincoln and Cleveland Counties, in 1948, and served eight years. He is immediate past president of the State Judicial Council, composed of all circuit, chancery and supreme court judges in the state, and is past president of the Jefferson County Bar Association.

Other activities include the judge's former membership on the Committee On Education of the American Legion, and an active membership on the board of the Arkansas Society for Crippled Children. He helped to organize and prepared the original charter for the Pine Bluff Boys Club.

A present member of the National Boy Scout Council, Judge Harris has served on the boards of the Pine Bluff Chamber of Commerce, the Quapaw Area Boy Scout Council, the Pine Bluff Public Library and the Pine Bluf Community Chest.

He is a member of the Southside Baptist Church in Pine Bluff where he teaches a men's class, and is vice president of Pine Bluff Men of the Churches. As well, he is a former board member of Arkansas Baptist Hospital.

Formerly disaster relief and roll call chairman for the Jefferson County Red Cross, Chapter, the judge is a member and past president of the Pine Bluff Lions Club, past president of the Pine Bluff Knife and Fork Club and a former member of the board of trustees of Ouachita College. He holds the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, granted by Ouachita Baptist College in 1960.

In other affiliations, Harris is a member of Quapaw Lodge, F & AM, Damascus Commandery, and a member and past potentate of Sahara Shrine Temple.

He is past grand orator of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas, F & AM, and is past president of the Central State Shrine Association, composed of Shriners from seven states, numbering about 100,000 members.

ON THE SUBURBAN RANGE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)— It was roundup time in the suburbs the other day when a saddle horse jumped a fence.

The Duval County patrol wheeled up in force — three patrol cars and one motorcycle —to keep the horse off the nearby expressway jammed with rush hour traffic.

Patrolman J. B. Edwards, on his motorcycle, got the job of hot pursuit. He zipped down paths, up driveways, around houses and through yards for an hour until the horse finally wore down and Patrolman Fred Dozier slipped a rope around its neck.

"That horse had nerve enough to nuzzle me on the jaw as though the whole thing had been a big joke," Dozier said.

DISTURBING CATTLE

Sniper Pops Holes In SAC's Planes

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — The FBI Saturday charged Gilbert H. Hagerman, 68, with waging a one-man sniper war against some Strategic Air Command's (SAC) biggest jet bombers, apparently because they disturbed the cattle on his farm seven miles northeast of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

The FBI said a sniper on the ground used a high-powered rifle to score hits on five flying planes, including two giant B-52 bombers, whose total value was more than $26 million. Bullets did no serious damage and hit nobody. No interior pressurization loss was noticed.

The FBI in its announcement gave no motive for the attacks as the planes went in for practice landings on a path within one mile of the extended centerline of the primary northeast-southwest runway used by all large jet aircraft.

An agent said Hagerman apparently opened fire because livestock were disturbed. His wife said they "had some milk cows" on their farm, which is operated by a couple. There also were reports that the Hagermans were bothered by poor television reception when the planes flew by.

The FBI said three rifles were confiscated from the Hagerman home but they would not say what caliber and make they were.

While Hagerman was not available for comment, his wife said "the noise is terrible. They fly so low that we can see the faces of the pilots."

Mrs. Hagerman, however, denied her husband fired at the planes even though "they bother the livestock and are pretty noisy."

She said both were 68 years old and her husband did no farming. They have tenant farmers living on their 192-acre property.

Hagerman, nervously puffing cigarettes, pleaded innocent to the three charges against him when arraigned before a U.S. commissioner and was released on his own recognizance under $1,000 bond for a hearing Thursday.

The FBI said five planes were hit. in November. The sniper hit two B-52 bombers, the country's largest which cost about $8 million each and are capable of delivering a nuclear weapon anywhere in the world.

The marksman hit two KC-195 jet tankers which cost $5 million each and are use to refuel other planes in flight. The fifth plane hit was a T-28-A two engine propellor plane used for training flights.

TWIN CITY SYMPHONY

Northeast Concert Set Tuesday Night

The season's fourth offering of the Northeast State Concerts Association will be presented Tuesday night when the Twin City Symphony Orchestra performs.

The Tuesday night concert will be held in Brown Auditorium on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus instead of Neville Auditorium, where the previous concert productions have been held, and will begin at 8:15. Admission is by season membership only.

Dr. Eloy Fominaya, conductor of the orchestra and associate professor of music at Northeast, will direct the Twin City Symphony in a program that includes Bach's "Brandenburg Concerto No. 5," the popular "Nutcracker Suite" by Tchaikovsky, "Chorale Prelude on Silent Night" by Samuel Barber and "Symphony No. 1 in C Major" by Bizet.

The Brandenburg Concerto is one of six composed early in the 18th century. The Concerto of Bach's day was not a virtuoso display piece, but one in which a sound contrast by two uneven groups occures. Besides a flute and violin, this work marks the first use of a keyboard instrument as a solo in the concerto-concerto grosso literature. Especially prominent is a lovely cadenza for the piano near the close of the first movement.

The second movement, Affetuoso, is a sublimely poetic discourse between the soli instruments, the string orchestra remaining silent.

Long a favorite, especially among children, "Nutcracker Suite" has come to be associated with the Christmas season. The suite was formed by Tchaikovsky from numbers taken from his ballet of the same title and as a suite it has been more popular than in its original form.

Barber's chorale prelude bestows an air of haunting reminiscence to the familar Christmas carol, "Silent Night." The lovely melody is heard throughout, shared by many solo instruments of the woodwinds and brass choirs and a completely free polyphonic and harmonic texture tends to dissolve the metric regularity of a humn tune.

Bizet wrote "Symphony No. 1 in C Major" at the age of 17 and despite some evidences of immaturity, it is a remarkable work for one so young. Composed in 1855, it is said to have remained unnoticed until performed in Switzerland in 1935. Within the next few years it received many performances in Europe and America and is now in the repertoire of most major orchestras. The most notable feature of the work is the warm and lyric melodies which flow throughout, indicating, even in youth, the gift of Bizet to the operatic world which was to come in "Carmen" some 20 years later.

YOU CAN BE MAMA TO A CAT

CHICAGO (AP) — Keep a lion away from its own kind from birth, and it won't know it's a cat, says Lincoln Park Zoo Director Dr. Lester Fisher.

"If a cat sees only people and not other cats, it becomes people-oriented," he said. "Let's face it. If you raise a cub from birth, to that cat you're mother."

Big cats possess a remarkable number of human traits. They are creatures of habit, even in their wild state, and are at best in well-known surroundings. All cats, both domestic and wild, establish certain living areas or territories.

Mysterious Algerians Pass Through Sudan

CAIRO (AP) — A mysterious band of Algerians dressed in civilian clothes passed through Khartoum airport evidently on their way to join the disintegrating Congolese rebel forces, it was reliably reported Saturday.

This band of about 40 Algerians was accompanied by the same number of Africans, also in civilian clothes. These were believed to be Congolese rebels given guerrilla training by Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella's forces.

The report, which reached Cairo through confidential channels, came from an eyewitness whose identity could not be disclosed without compromising his position.

The Algerians and Africans were observed at Khartoum airport Thursday night after Soviet-built transport craft with Algerian markings landed. The planes are believed taking part in an arms airlift to the Congolese rebels from Algeria, Ghana and the United Arab Republic.

The witness who saw the Algarians and Africans said that although they were dressed in civilian clothes they gave the impression of being military personnel. The witness said he believed the Algerians were paratroops.

The shipment of arms through Khartoum and southern Sudanese city of Juba became known Saturday.

While reports from Khartoum mentioned rifles, reliable sources in Cairo said machine guns, mortars and similar armament were also involved.

Reliable sources in Cairo reported that arms shipments to Congolese rebel forces actually began through Khartoum and Juba about two weeks ago.

A full-ledged airlift now evidently is in progress. It may have been decided last weekend when the Congolese rebel defense minister, Gaston Soumialot, was reported to have made a secret trip to Cairo.

It is not known whether he had meetings with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, but it is reported he did meet someone important—most likely Mohamed Faik who is Nasser's specialist in African affairs.

Three men behind the airlift, Nasser, Ben Bella and Ganna's President Kwame Nkrumah, are the continent's bitterest foes of Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe. Nasser clapped Tshombe under house arrest when he landed in Cairo and tried to attend the nonaligned conference last October.

Nasser, Ben Bella and Nkrumah also have the largest stocks of Soviet-supplied arms in Africa.

Although a dozen or more planeloads of various arm have been sent to the southern Sudanese city of Juba within the past few days, it still will be some time before they can make themselves felt in Congo fighting.

CATCHING DEFECTORS

American Teacher Relates Spying On Russian Artists

WASHINGTON (AP) — An American teacher has reported to the Justice Department how she says she furnished information to Soviet agents on Russian artists touring the United States, and on Americans who might try to get them to defect.

Files made available Saturday by the Justice Department identified her as Miss Natalie Anna Bienstock, 28, now a graduate student and Russian language teacher at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.

A justice official said that no action was contemplated against Miss Bienstock because she voluntarily went to the FBI and told about her relatively brief career in international intelligence activities.

It began in Moscow on March 9, 1962 and ended according to her sworn statements in February, 1963. The two most important documents involved were completed and sworn to Oct. 14 1964.

The justice files include several completed and sworn forms Miss Bienstock filled out on Oct. 14 this year setting forth her connection with the Soviet espionage network.

It was learned that after hearing her story, the FBI advised Miss Bienstock to complete the forms which are required for people working for foreign governments in this country.

In these documents, she did not explain how she became involved with the Russians.

But she did note that she visited Moscow at the end of 1959 and again in February and March of 1962 while employed by Hurok Attractions, Inc., which was then arranging for the visits of Russian artists to the United States under the U. S.-Russian cultural exchange agreements.

Miss Bienstock said in her statement that she received all of her instructions and training at the Hotel Ukraine in Moscow on March 9, 1962 during a meeting with Viktor Petrovich Sorine. She described him as "a representative of the Committee for State Security of the U.S.S.R."

She said Sorine showed her how to produce invisible writing — which could later be made visible — by using a silver nitrate solution.

Miss Bienstock said she was instructed to report to a Leo Sorokine by this secret writing method at 680 Park Ave., New York City and that she sent him about seven secret letters but never talked to him or met him.

During this period, Miss Bienstock was traveling with or concerned with several touring Russian groups, including the Kirov Ballet.

In addition to giving Sorokine the names of Hurok staff members, she disclosed that she had seretly written him the names of at least two FBI agents. Another man she identified as an employe of the Central Intelligence Agency. Several others she said were connected with the State Department.

She wrote that this was in line with the instructions she had received originally in Moscow to report the names of "any and all" Americans who came in contact with Soviet entertainers, and particularly to identify anyone connected with a U. S. government agency.

State Man Shot

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — An attractive, blonde mother of three was charged with assault with intent to kill Saturday after her husband was shot during an argument over her birthday cake.

Charles K. Davis, 27, a dredge worker from New Orleans, underwent surgery for removal of a .22 caliber bullet from his chest, just beneath the heart. He was in serious condition.

His wife, Donna, 25, was booked at the Mobile Police Department and later released under $500 bond.

She told officers her husband beat her, pushed her birthday cake off a table onto the floor at her feet and shouted, "here, eat that."

The children huddled in an adjoining room with a maid.

Attack Is Probed

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP)— A Negro raped and repeatedly stabbed a white woman here early today as she worked alone in a downtown office.

Informed sources said the white woman was stabbed over a dozen times and was in critical condition at a local hospital.

The sources said the woman, in her early 30s, was working in the office when the Negro came in and attacked her from behind as she turned to get some information for the attacker.

Police were reported investigating.

2 Fatally Injured

COLUMBIA, Miss. (UPI) — Two persons were fatally injured shortly before midnight Friday in a head-on collision near here.

The victims were identified as Roy McCain Jr., 23, of Foxworth and Johnny B. Adam, 43, a Negro, of Bassfield. A passenger in Adams' car was injured.

Officers said vehicles driven by McCain and Adams collided on highway 35 about 17 miles south of here.

McCain, who died shortly after arrival at the Marion County Hospital, was a bookkeeper at Pearl River Gravel Co. at Columbia.

Charged In Death

ALEXANDRIA, La. (UPI) — Mrs. Dominia Getliff Dupree, 27, was charged Saturday with murdering her three year old son by holding her hand over his mouth until he suffocated.

Rapides Parish John Honeycutt said the Boyce, La., mother admitted the murder a week after her son was pronounced dead upon arrival at a hospital here.

Honeycutt said his men investigated the death because circumstances surrounding the death appeared suspicious.

The sheriff quoted Mrs. Dupree as saying she killed her son following an argument with her husband. She held one hand over the child's face and the other against his lung to apply pressure, Honeycutt said.

The Dupress have one other child, an eighteen month old son.

AEC Detonates Nevada Explosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — An underground nuclear test was conducted Saturday at the Nevada test site of the Atomic Energy Commission, the commission announced.

The range was described as low intermediate, or between 20 and 200 kilotons. A kiloton is the equivalent of 1,000 tons of conventional TNT.

CLEAN JOKE

ROME (UPI)—A fountain outside the Roman Forum overflowed with soap bubbles early Saturday after a practical jokester poured in powdered soap. It took firemen some time to scrub the soap away.

Rusk, Gromyko Talks 'Inclusive'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko probed issues splitting the two superpowers Saturday in a two-hour session both diplomats called "inconclusive."

They agreed to meet soon again in a further effort to lower East-West tensions.

Rusk told newsmen, "We covered a number of points right around the globe.

"We talked disarmament questions, European questions, the MLF," (multilateral force) Rusk said. He emphasized that the discussion was inconclusive and said that undoubtedly there will be another meeting later.

Rusk said there was no discussion of the U.N. financial crisis or of the war in Viet Nam.

But he said, "We did talk about the forthcoming possible talks between the three factions in Laos."

Gromyko said the discussion "was not conclusive" on the "several matters relating to Europe and of world character" which were discussed.

Speaking to newsmen after the meeting at Rusk's office at the U.S. mission to the United Nations, the Soviet foreign minister declined to specify the subject matter further except to say that the multilateral force was one of the topics taken up.

The MLF is a controversial U.S. plan for a seaborne nuclear missile fleet to be manned by North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies. Moscow has opposed the project, saying that it would spread nuclear weapons.

It is expected to be one of the main topics President Johnson will take up with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson when the two confer in Washington early next week.

The late afternoon meeting was the third during the week between the U.S. and Soviet foreign affairs leaders — and the first aimed at canvassing a wide variety of cold war issues.

THE REALM OF COIN

New Coin Area For Collector

By JOHN BLUCK

Commemorative coins offer the collector one of the broadest and most interesting areas for specialization.

Coins of a commemorative nature are nothing new. The first were struck by the early Greek City states, with one of the more noteworthy being the Demareteion struck by Syracuse in Sicily in 480 B. C. to commemorate a Greek naval victory over Carthage. This coin is often called the most beautiful ever made. Another famous ancient is the Athenian silver tetradrachm which remained unchanged in design for hundreds of years.

The Athenian piece with the familiar owl and head of the goddess Athena includes a small crescent moon which referred to the victory of Athens over the Persians at the battle of Marathon in 490 B. C.

Another commemorative, which pre-dates the Athenian coin and which is actually thought to be the first commemorative, was struck about 500 B. C. on the Greek isand of Naxos. These coins commemorated the Naxian naval victory over the Persian fleet.

Later, commemoratives were issued by the Roman emperors, with an extensive series being attributed to Augustus (Octavian). Starting with his victory over Mark Anthony and Cleopatra at the battle of Actium, Augustus set the pattern for his successors by commemorating many events in his career.

From this base, commemorative coins came to be an accepted part of the coinage of many countries throughout the intervening ages. Today, there is an almost unlimited number of commemorative from which the collector may choose.

If you are interested in foreign commemoratives you should have Thomas W. Becker's authoritative reference work, "Pageant of World Commemorative Coins." Becker limited his work, generally, to pieces struck since 1850, but many of the world's most beautiful and significant coins are included. An especially helpful feature of the book is the listing of mintage figures, where available. Each coin listed in the book is illustrated and a short description of the coin and the reasons for its having been issued are included.

Collecting foreign commemoratives is an excellent first step for the newcomer to the foreign field. The coins are interesting, of historical value, outstanding work of art in many cases and in growing demand by collectors who have forsaken the overexploited United States coinage.

Our country has not neglected commemoratives, and United States commemorative half dollars and gold coins have long been a popular specialty for many American and foreign collectors. R. S. Yeoman devotes considerable space in his deservedly famous "A Guide Book of United States Coins" (Red Book) to United States commemorative issues.

In his introduction to the commemorative section Yeoman says:

"The unique position occupied by commemoratives in United States coinage is largely due to the fact that with few exceptions they are the only coins that have a real historical significance. The progress and advance of people in the New World are presented in an interesting and instructive manner on the commemorative issues. Such a record of facts artistically presented on our gold and silver memorial issues appeals strongly to the collector who favors the historical side of numismatics. It is the historical features of the commemoratives, in fact, which create interest among many people who would otherwise have little interest in coins."

Commemorative coins were struck in this country for a half century. More than 50 different types were issued, and a complete type set of the half dollars would require 48 pieces. A complete set with all the mint marks would make a total of 142 coins. None has been struck since 1954, although many groups have urged Congress to authorize a new issue to commemorate some event or individual of interest to the group.

The first United States commemorative coin was the Columbian half dollar. It was struck in 1892 and 1893 to mark the opening of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. The last was issued in 1954 as a part of the series that memorialized Booker T. Washington and George Washington Carver.

Not all United States commemoratives are outstanding, but several would rank as works of art in any competition. Among these are the Oregon Trail Memorial piece, first struck in 1926; the Pilgrim Tercentenary, 1920; Texas Centennial, 1934 and the Battle of Gettysburg, 1936.

A type set of United States commemorative silver is a truly impressive collection in uncirculated condition. Sharp price increases have pushed a complete commemorative half dollar set in BU condition beyond the reach of most collectors. But anyone who collects United States coins should consider his collection incomplete, no matter how small it may be, unless it contains at least one or two commemoratives. Their historical significance alone would demand their inclusion in a collection.

LIKES MONKEYS

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Five-year-old Warren Quilliam wants to be a monkey so that he needn't use a knife and fork.

Warren was the youngest prize-winner in a competition on "What animal would you most like to be?" and because of his success his father has told him he needn't use a knife and fork—at least for a while.

Other young prize-winners:

A 7-year-old boy wants to be a parrot "because it is allowed to swear."

A 6-year-old girl would like to be a reindeer "so I could pull Father Christmas's sleigh."

An African girl, aged 9, would like to be a panther "because I would still be black."

A little white boy wants to be a zebra "because he wears his pajamas in this cold weather." (It was winter in South Africa during the run of the competition.)

A 14-year-old girl would like to be a stork to find out where baby storks come from.

The competition was run jointly by Dr. Malcolm Lyall-Watson of the Johannesburg Zoo and the Johannesburg Rand Daily Mail.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Many New Books Are Interesting

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Frances Parkinson Keyes has a large reading audience who eagerly accept each book which she writes, although there is a sameness about the stories. Her latest one "The Explorer" is the story of Nicholas Hale and his wife Margaret. Although it is concerned with his explorations in Peru in search of a lost civilization, a great deal of space is taken in an account of his marriage. It is a book which will appeal primarily to women and there is certain to be a demand for it. Readers of historical novels have come to expect good entertainment from Alice Harwood and they will not be disappointed in her latest book, "No Smoke Without Fire". It is the story of James Stuart, the Earl of Moray and half-brother to Mary Queen of Scots. It presents a faithful picture of the times and readers will find it fascinating. "Father To The Man" by Bentz Plagemann is an account of adolescence as seen through the eyes of his Father. It will interest parents who have college age sons. "The Right Burgee" by Henry Lee is a slight novel concerned with the social activities of the members of the Housatonic Yacht and Tennis Club. It is not an important book, but is pleasant reading. "King of Squaw Mountain" by Hal Borland is an interesting new western story. "Thomasheen James Gets His Hair Cut" by Maurice Walsh is a delightful book of short stories with an Irish setting. "May Wine on Brooklyn Heights" by Robert Leary is another book which will interest women, especially those who have ever taken part in civic improvement programs.

Readers of mystery stories will find several new books to interest them. "Call after midnight" by Mignon Eberhart will be very popular. Others are: "The Scorpio Letters" by Victor Canning, "The Emperor's Pearl" by Robert Van Gulick, "Most Secret" by John Dickson Carr and "Clues for Dr. Coffee" by Lawrence G. Blochman.

There are also many new factual books, offering variety for all types of readers. "Journey Through the Bible Lands" by Luis Schokel will interest students of the Bible. "A Curtain of Ignorance" by Felix Greene gives many facts about China which have not been released before "The Invisible Government" by David Wise is a thorough discussion of the Central Intelligence Agency. "The Insects" by U. N. Lanham is a very fine book on this subject. George Colin Bertram has written a book about the manatees of Guiana, which he calls by the provocative titles of "In Search of Mermaids". "Eating for good health" by Fredr. Stare is an interesting new book on the subject of diet. "Psychiatry and religious faith" by Robert Gassert contains much stimulating thought. A new book for gardeners is "Gentians for your Garden" by Doretta Klaber. "The Vogue book of Menus and Recipes" by Jessica Daves is a delightful book for the hostess who wants new ideas for entertaining at home. "Encyclopedia of firearms" by Harold L. Peterson is a large, interesting book for the gun collector.

"The heart of Our Cities" by Victor Gruen deals with the urban crisis and suggests cures for its ills. "The Coin Preservation Handbook" by Charles Frank will be valuable for coin collectors. Students will be interested in "The Research manual for college Studies and Papers" written by Cecil B. Willaims. A very fine literary study is "Katherine Anne Porter and The Art of Rejection" written by William L. Nance and published by the University of North Carolina Press. Alan King has a large following will want to read his latest witty book called "Help! I'm a Prisoner in a Chinese Bakery." "The Italians" by Luigi Barzini is a very interesting study of the habits and manners of the people of Italy. "Persia revisited" by Anne Sinclair Mehdeve will interest all who read her earlier book.

"Revenge at sea" by Barrie Pitt is a very fine account of the battles of Coronel and Falkland Island in World War I. "The Black Ship Scroll" by Oliver Statler is an account of the Perry Expedition in 1854. It is a beautifully done book and one which will interest artists as well as historians.

Wallace Stegner has given us another of his fine books about the development of the West. This one is called "The Gathering Of Zion" and is the story of the Mormon march to Utah. "The Spinx and Her Circle" by Violet Wyndham is a biography of Ada Leverson, who was a well-known figure of the late Victorian period. William Chan has given us an interesting biography of Harold Lloyd, which he calls "Harold Lloyd's World of Comedy. A valuable addition to the Reference collection is "Historical Fiction" by Hannah Lagosa.

The Main Library will be open this afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. We hope that many of you will take advantage of this opportunity for research and study as well as for recreation.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

With Jimmy Hatten

The Indians before the coming of the white man recognized the beauty of the Ouachita River. In their language, the river was called something like, "beautiful, sparkling water."

They say beauty is in the eye of the beholder, so, in nature at least, both white and Indian versions of beauty must have been the same. The Ouachita today is still recognized as one of the most beautiful streams in the United States.

It has also provided its share of tales, legends, and factual progress.

But anything of beauty —of great striking beauty — has a way of attracting the poet.

Herewith, we give our column over to the poet, now departed, who dwells on the attraction for one, of the "beautiful, sparkling water."

In 1884 the late Judge A. A. Gunby of Monroe wrote a poem entitled, "The Lone Grave."

It is about the death and burial on Lone Bluff, on the west side of the Ouachita River 10 miles above Columbia, of an overseer's wife.

Extolling the beauty and peacefulness of the site, then tracing the woman's illness, and her wish to be buried at the site, the poem is concluded in this manner:

"Tho' autumn's months she lingered low,
"But seemed at times to better grow,
"And friends began new hopes to weave —
"And then, she died on Christmas Eve.
"Alas! When all should be bright and gay
"Her funeral came on Christmas Day.
"They said no prayers, they sang no song.
"But brawny blacks, on shoulders strong.
"Tho' the morning air, so bright and chill
"Carried their mistress, kind, up hill
"And silently, they laid her down
"Where she might always hear the sound
"Of grugling waters far below;
"And, as the seasons come and go,
"Fair Ruth's resting place is seen
"Surrounded by the woodland green.
"Solemn pine trees moan and wave,
"There let her sleep, in love and awe,
"Beside the placid Ouachita."

DRINKING' ORANGE TREES

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Orange trees love water as well as ducks do.

Plant physiologists at the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station found that a healthy 15-year-old orange tree weighs 1,000 pounds and half the weight is water.

A 15-year-old tree can produce 500 pounds of fruit a year — and the fruit is 80 per cent water.

The scientists reported each citrus tree "drinks" 30 to 50 gallons of water a day.

For a black eye, apply a compress immediately for about 15 minutes per hour.

Rome Crowds Welcome Paul After Journey

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI came home from Bombay, India, Saturday night to a triumphant welcome from thousands of Romans, saying "I am very happy with this trip." He seemed unperturbed as Turkish jet planes brushed chillingly close in escorting his airliner across Turkey.

"Viva il Papa!" — long live the Pope — the crowds shouted as the most traveled pontiff in history smilingly passed in an open limousine through the Eternal City, ablaze with restive torchlights.

It was a rousing, roaring finale to the hitoric four-day, 8,000-mile pilgrimage by the jet-age Pope who calls himself an "apostle on the move."

The 67-year-old pontiff flew home aboard a regular Alitalia flight which landed at Rome's Fiumicino Airport just before sunset.

The flight was routine most of the way, but over Turkey two planes of a flight of four Turkish air force fighters came dangerously close to the four-engine DC8 jet airliner. The pilot urgently radioed a request that they move away. They did not do so immediately.

For a chilling 25 minutes 33,000 feet over Turkey there was consternation among many of the 83 persons on the papal flight as the two escort jets flew less than a wing length away. The Pope saw the escort planes but seemed unperturbed.

Though the Pope looked tired and worn from the grueling demands of his visit to India, his doctor said he was in good shape and the pontiff hinted in an informal news conference before the plane landed that he might take more trips in the future.

His welcome home was as movingly memorable as his return from the first papal plane trip — his pilgrimage to the Holy Land less than a year ago.

Members of the College of Cardinals, with Italian Premier Aldo Moro and other top government and diplomatic figures, were at the airport to greet the Roman Catholic ruler as he walked down from the plane.

In a brief arrival speech, the Pope said that "A feeling of profound gratitude, joyful and moving, rises in our heart toward the Lord, who has allowed us this incomparable experience."

The Pope said he experienced "unforgettable emotions" during his personal encounters with Asian Christians and non-Christians alike.

"Our heart wanted to beat in unison with the heart of an entire people, to share aspirations and expectations,sufferings and hopes, thoughts and ideas," said the Pope.

Romans by the hundreds of thousands lined city streets through which the papal motorcade passed.

The 10-ton bell atop St. Peter's boomed as Pope Paul, standing in his limousine smiling and gesturing, passed the final few hundred yards past throngs 10 deep who held blazing torches to light his way.

Upwards of 50,000 persons in vast St. Peter's Square gave him the final accolade before he reached his apostolic apartment.

The Pope wore a red cape over his white cassock and a broad-brimmed red hat.

A 21-gun salute boomed over the seaside airport to mark the Pope's arrival.

Thousands of spectators lined the roads as the Pope's motorcade drove the 18 miles from the airport into the heart of Rome and Vatican City.

Protected from the chill night air by the red full-length cape, the Pope stood up in his car acknowledging the cheers of the crowds with his characteristic open-arms gesture, imparting his papal blessing.

In an open square in Trastevere, the working class section near the Vatican, Mayor Amerigo Petrucci greeted the Pope in the name of the Eternal City.

Pope Paul told the mayor his trip to India was "a testimony of human brotherhood, a meeting not only with a people but with a continent and with the entire world."

In India the Pope has been cheered by millions of Hindus and Moslems in the largely non-Christian Asian nation — the first land of the Orient ever visited by a ruler of the Roman Catholic Church.

He had called the journey a message of love for all the peoples of the world. He mingled with the poor, wept openly at the sight of their want and suffering, and appealed to nations to convert some of their arms budgets into an international fund against poverty and hunger.

From Trastevere the Pope drove to St. Peter's Square.

Throngs in the square waited 25 minutes for the Pope to appear at his apartment window. When he appeared the vast square filled with the jubilant cry of "Viva il Papa."

"We don't know how to thank you because we realize that this is not simply a reception of honor," said the pontiff. "To know that you pray, desire and suffer with us is a great comfort to us."

URGES SUPPORT

Johnson Honors Viet Nam Fighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson honored a hero of the fighting in South Viet Nam on Saturday and sought to rally all Americans to greater support of the U.S. commitment in the distant war.

At a colorful White House ceremony, Johnson hung the Medal of Honor on its blue ribbon around the neck of Capt. Roger H. C. Donlon, 30, for "conspicious gallantry and extraordinary heroism" during a predawn battle last July.

It was a day of days for the blond, blue-eyed soldier from Saugerties, N.Y., and his proud family.

But Johnson was speaking to more than the happy group in the ornate East Room when he said: "Let any who suggest we cannot honor our commitment in Viet Nam find new strength and resolution in the actions of this brave man and his comrades in arms far away."

And in impromptu remarks added to his text, the President sought to rouse all Americans to a greater sense of dedication to their country.

Recalling the wartime recruiting posters showing Uncle Sam pointing his finger, Johnson said: "Your country does need you today. And the finger points at every American, of every age and of every station. We need women and we need men for service in the cause of freedom in the cause of this great government, this noble cause."

The President was scornful of those who let "nine-to-five hours, Saturday at the country club, profit-sharing and pension trusts" keep them from coming to Washington to work for the government.

Then, turning to Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, who read the citation recounting Donlon's heroic performance, Johnson praised him as a man who "represents in civilian life what Capt. Donlon represents in military life—the very best in America. And America must have the very best."

Johnson beamed proudly at the stiffly erect, crew-cut captain while he awarded Donlon the nation's highest military decoration. It is the first Medal of Honor given for action in Viet Nam.

Donlon, commanding officer of an Army Special Forces team, was wounded four times in a bloody, five-hour battle against a Communist Viet Cong battalion that launched a night-time attack on an outpost camp.

"Despite his multiple wounds," said Johnson, "Capt. Donlon with great courage and coolness, inspired the American personnel and the riendly Viet Namese troops to a successful defense of their camp."

While McNamara read the nearly incredible details of Donlon's feat, he appeared to choke up and finished with difficulty.

Donlon braved mortar and rifle fire and bursting grenades to rescue wounded comrades, evacuate vitally needed guns and ammunition and rally the defenders to repulse the attack.

Nine other members of the original 12-man team that went to Viet Nam last May were present for the ceremony. Two died in Viet Nam.

Donlon's widowed mother, four brothers, three sisters and other relatives accounted for a large part of the rest of the audience. Johnson shook hands, chatted and posed for pictures with all of them.

Also present were Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., and Sen.-elect Robert F. Kennedy, the Democrat who defeated Keating last November. When the two moved in for a picture it was Keating who wound up close to the President and exchanged pleasantries with him. Just before the group broke up, however, Johnson reached across, took Kennedy's arm and murmured a few quick words to him.

Arkansas Crash Kills 4 Persons; Plane Hits Hill

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Four persons were killed and a fifth critically injured when their light plane struck a mountaintop while attempting to land at this Ozark mountain city.

The Plane disappeared Friday night shortly after the pilot radioed that he was making his final landing approach on instruments and requested landing instructions.

A search plane spotted the wreckage Saturday morning one mile northwest of the airport after search parties on foot had combed the rugged terrain throughout the night.

The lone survivor was Mrs. Kenneth Gladden, about 22, of Modesto, Calif. Her husband, 23, and 4-month-old daughter, Delra Ann; Merle Heffner, 47, the pilot, of Modesto and Donal McClurkin, 42, the copilot, of Ceres, Calif., died in the crash.

Mrs. Gladden was found covered with a sleeping bag by rescuers who hiked for more than two hours through heavy brush before reaching the crash scene.

She told rescuers that she was thrown from the wreckage and that McClurkin got out of the plane, covered her with a sleeping bag, then returned to his seat where his body was found.

Mrs. Gladden said the party was en route from Modesto to Fayetteville where she was taking her husband to a hospital for treatment of a gunshot wound suffered accidentally earlier this week while he was deer hunting. She did not elaborate.

She was taken to a Fayetteville hospital where she was listed in critical condition.

Military Budget To Be Just Below $50 Billion Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Saturday preliminary estimates of next year's defense budget indicate it will be slightly below $50 billion.

McNamara spent two hours at the White House going over budget figures with President Johnson. He said recent economies in the Department of Defense will permit a substantial cut in new spending authority requested for the fiscal year 1966, which begins next July 1.

The most recent estimate of spending for the present year is $49.8 billion, McNamara said, and the new budget should be pretty close to the same level.

More important in figuring future defense costs, however, is the requested new spending authority, which McNamara said would be $49 billion, or a little less. He said this figure is "substantially below" what it has been in recent years.

"I want to emphasize," he told newsmen, "that we don't build the defense budget toward a predetermined financial level. I don't add it up until we get the entire force structure. The primary objective is national security."

McNamara said the projected cut in new spending reflects President Johnson's emphasis on getting a dollar's value for every dollar spent on the defense establishment.

Rightists Complain Of Press Reports

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Three white college students who took part in Negro voter registration drives charged before a newspaper group Saturday that the press has failed to give accurate comprehensive coverage of civil rights activities in Mississippi.

They charged, in an appearance before the annual convention of the New England Society of Newspaper Editors, that reporters covering activities in Mississippi were guilty of "individual insensitivity," and "outright inaccuracy."

Some of the editors retorted in a question-and-answer session that the students and civil rights organizations really did not want objective coverage, but rather wanted the press to be their propaganda organ.

The college students were Edward Rudd of New York City and John Suter of Fairfield, Conn., both students at Wesleyan University, and Gordon Wilcox of New York City, a Yale University student.

Suter complained that most of the attention of the press was given to the student workers or civil rights leaders, rather than "the local Negroes who suffered the most hardships."

He charged that there was a "general prejudice" against the civil rights movement among reporters who came to Mississippi to cover events there. Suter objected to what he termed frequent references in stories to the beard and sandals worn by some of the white workers, saying that only a minority fell into this category.

Wilcox and Rudd both stressed that the work by white students in Mississippi is continuing during the fall and winter.

Rudd told of his experiences with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, better known as "Snick." He quoted a leader of the organization as saying that it tolerated some reporters but trusted none, and that reporters were considered by Snick as guilty until proven innocent.

There were also objections to the press coverage of the tactics of the civil rights organization. Rudd said the civil rights leaders would prefer to see more emphasis on the programs and the goals of the civil rights organizations.

All three of the students complained that reporters lacked "sensitivity," and charged that the reporting was incomplete, concentrating mainly on sensational developments.

The accusations by the students brought this retort from Forrest W. Seymour, editor of The Worcester Telegram and Gazette:

"Whatever the press should be, it should not be a propaganda organ for Snick or for anybody else."

Seymour and other editors said the papers generally were sympathetic with the dedication of the students, but said their reporters were required to maintain objectivity.

Brush and Palette

The sign outside 1400 South Grand St. gives proper museum formality to grandiose structure of old English manor type architecture, surrounded by well cared for gardens, that is the city owned gallery of art. The imposing exterior should not confuse the visitors, as once inside the doors, the warmth generated when the building was the home of a prominent Monroe family, is still evident. Visiting a museum of art should not necessitate a purposeful trip to view a particular exhibit or a specific art work but rather be a habit indulged in as the spirit of spontaneity strikes. To quote a charming lady who serves as one of the curators of the museum, "You don't even have to like all the paintings, we hope our guests do enjoy the exhibits we bring to Monroe but if they don't, we want to hear and know what they prefer. We just appreciate all the comments and the many people from our area and out of town who travel to the city to see the shows at the museum." Whether you want to wander through the various galleries alone or make frequent inquires of the artist present, you'll find viewing the paintings a very personal experience, most enlightening and refreshing. The new show opening is a display by local artists of work that may be purchased. The majority of the paintings are priced at under fifty dollars, with a good representation of additionally fine work at varying higher price levels. Perhaps one of the most poignant factors in relation to artist and collector is expressed by R. G. Collingswood in his book "The Principles of Art" . . . "The artist must prophesy not in the sense that he foretells things to come but in the sense he tells his audience the secrets of their own hearts." Many of the paintings in the show represent various styles of contemporary paintings . . .such terminology as abstract semi - abstract, non - objective painting, figurative and abstract impressionism can be applied. The dictionary defines abstract: to abstract is to draw form, to concentrate in itself the essential qualities of a larger thing or several things: expressing a quality apart from any object" Abstract art requires that you develop a painting from your own imagination that creates a work of art that can stand alone on its own merit, for its thought, use of materials and in a poetic way express a subject or possibly no subject, just a thing of beauty in color and form which exists because it is beautiful and its function is that alone . . . being beautiful. Abstract paintings are not the ravings of a madman, nor can your little nephew do it with his big toe or your cat by walking across a canvas after dipping his soft paws in paint — painting in the abstract styles and its variations, does not mean disregard for the good painting practices. The best modern artists are those who have acquired a good technical background. The rules of good color, symmetry and balance are used in the design of an abstract painting. It is more a feeling of good taste, the joyousness of creation and a flow of movement. The greatest of all artists Mrs. Nature is constantly creating abstracts and semi-abstracts all around us and she can never combine colors or designs that are unattractive.

A room with natural warmth and charm can be even more so with the addition of color and design. Many lighthearted works that turn an entrance hall into a small gallery can lift the spirits of all who come and go. Whether you prefer small paintings in a row or a huge work of art displayed in solitary splendor, for purchase or for viewing, you'll no doubt find your choice during the boutique type show of paintings this December at The Masur Museum of Art. Among the artists displaying their work are Caroline Adair, Bess James, Mary Anita Lennon, Dottie McKinley, Thelma Oseland, Chiquita Squires, Harry Miller and Ed Shutz.

AUXILIARY MEMOS

Ritter and Mrs. W. Webb. Thursday, Dec. 10, Mrs. A. Sugar and Mrs. M. Ratliff. Friday, Dec. 11, Mrs. A. Pendolo and Mrs. M. Russo. Saturday, Dec. 12, Mrs. L. Duncleman.

ART NEWS

HERE AND THERE

If you plan to be in Paris any day soon, make it a point to choose a Wednesday, Thursday or Friday, and you will be a most welcomed guest for tea at four P.M. at The Akademia Raymond Duncan . . . because Mr. Raymond Duncan practices what he teaches. "Life has taught me a simple lesson that people must love one another though not in a silly sentimental way. They should learn to express love in a practical fashion. At the Akademia all of our activities have that aim." Mr. Duncan is among other things a painter, sculptor, spinner, weaver, fabric and type designer, poet, playwright and actor. He practices and teaches most of these activities in a seven story building established in 1911 located on the Rue de Seine in Paris. The long haired sage, once described as America's pioneer beatnik, paid a visit to The Ligoa Duncan Arts Center in New York City, a gallery owned by his daughter, attired in a fringed toga (that he wove himself) a hand painted silk scarf and thong sandals of a style he's been wearing for sixty of his ninety years.

Among other idiosyncrasies such as claiming shoes distort the feet and buttons enslave people, Mr. D. sports a flowing white mane, with some interesting observations. "Hair is the most wonderful receptor. It's like antennae. Man with his hair is receiving continual radio messages without knowing it. All of the great artists have had long hair." I'll never qualify as a great artist but perhaps Mr. Duncan is right . . . I seem to be getting a message . . . my hair is quite short . . . so is the message . . . no more space . . .

Hong Kong Officers Reports Arms Cache

HONG KONG (AP) — Police announced Saturday discovery of a large cache of American-made high explosives and weapons believed to have been intended for use against Communist China.

The cache, largest ever found in Hong Kong, was discovered on the top floor of an apartment block in a densely populated section of the colony. A ballistics expert told a news conference the explosives could have levelled a city block.

"They are fantastically dangerous," he said. "Thousands of people in this crowded area could have been killed if the explosives had gone off."

The cache was stored amid rubbish in a room whose walls were covered with Nationalist Chinese flags.

A government spokesman told the news conference, held alongside the explosives, that police had been tipped off. He refused to say by whom but reliable sources said Chinese Communist agents were believed to have done so.

The ballistics expert told the reporters the cache included 200 pounds of plastic high explosive, and five explosive mines of the limpet type, each capable of sinking a large-sized ship. Other objects in the cache included large amounts of booby trap bombs, hand grenades, cigarette time bombs, various types of detonators, time clocks and fuse wire.

The cache also included a number of revolvers with large quantities of ammunition.

The government spokesman refused to say who had stored the cache or if anyone had been arrested. He said police were making inquiries which could lead to the discovery of other caches and a later announcement reported discovery of 50 pounds of high explosives, pistols, detonators and illegal radio equipment in the new territories bordering on Communist China.

STORM MOVES IN

Snow, Sleet Brings Misery To Country

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow, sleet and plunging temperatures brought an early winter to wide portions of the country Saturday, with accompanying misery and inconvenience to thousands of persons fighting the inclement weather.

At least 36 deaths were attributed to the slow-moving storm.

The snow and sleet storms, which came from the Rockies into the Great Plains states at midweek, moved through the Midwest, then curved into the Northeast with devastating fury.

In eastern Maine, a new fall piled snow on the ground to a depth of 29 inches. Old Town, Maine, was covered by 15 inches of snow and Houlton had 17 inches on the ground.

More snow was forecast this weekend in northern Maine, and freezing rain and snow in the southern portion.

Snow and sleet over upper New York State felled utility lines serving communities with more than 50,000 homes.

Schenectady, Troy and Sarasota Springs, N.Y., were declared emergency areas when power lines fell in the cities. The emergency status enabled officials to enforce special short-term laws to facilitate quick return of services.

Freezing rain and snow fell over sections of lower New England, snapping communication lines and causing hundreds of vehicular acidents. Hazardous driving warnings were issued in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and adjacent states.

The death toll covered these states and sections: New England states 14 dead, Missouri 9, Illinois 8, Ind'ana 4 and New York 1.

The heavy snow and low temperatures were not confined to the Midwest and Northeast.

Austin, Nev., got 3 more inches of snow Saturday, bringing its total on the ground to 10 inches.

At Alamosa, Colo., the temperature dropped to -25.

International Falls and Bemidji, Minn., had -24.

Fargo, N.D., reported -16, two degrees under the 77-year record for the date. Wichita, Kan., had 4 above and Tope' Kan., 2 above, both t records for the date.

A logging camp at Maverick, Ariz., in the northeastern portion of the state, reported -11.

Vehicular traffic—private and public—was returning to near normal in Chicago and northern Illinois, which were swamped with a record snowfall Friday.

Snow-removing crews worked in Chicago's downtown section all day and night to clear a 12-inch accumulation. Around the city and elsewhere in the northern portion of Illinois, 40- to 50-mile-an-hour winds piled up drifts to a height of five feet.

Some of Chicago's suburbs reported the snowfall piled up to 18 inches.

Rain fell Saturday over portions of the South. At Ocala and Tampa, Fla., the rainfall totaled nearly 1¾ inches. Cape Hatteras, N.C., had more than one inch.

For the second day in a row, heavy fog shrouded the Baltimore area and harbor and air traffic ground to a standstill. Road travel moved at a crawling pace.

WEEK'S FULL

Cape Kennedy's Schedule Grows Heavy With 4 Shots

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The second straight postponement of the launching of an Atlas-Centaur space rocket and a good Project Gemini flight simulation test Saturday set up a heavy space firing schedule here next week — four shots in four days.

Here's the lineup:

Tuesday, 7 p.m. — The fifth launching of a Project Asset space glider on an 8,800-mile-an-hour ballistic flight to check structural and aerodynamic pressures which might affect future manned spacecraft. The 6-foot-long, 1,100-pound Air Force glider will be boosted by a Thor-Delta rocket.

Wednesday, 9 a.m. — The final unmanned flight planned in the Gemini man-in-space program. A Titan 2 rocket is to propel a full equipped capsule 106 miles high and ram it back through the atmosphere to a parachute landing in the Atlantic 2,150 miles southeast of Cape Kennedy. Recovery will be attempted.

Thursday, 10 a.m. — An orbital test flight by the Air Force's Titan 3A space rocket. The third stage is to shoot into orbit as a flying launch platform and is to kick loose a dummy satellite in a test of techniques for future military space missions.

Friday, 9 a.m. — The third attempt to launch the Atlas-Centaur on an orbital test ride. The rocket is being developed to land Project Surveyor craft on the moon, hopefully late next year.

The Atlas-Centaur came within five minutes of getting off the ground Saturday. Then the launch crew had to hold because of heavy rains and clouds in the area. With a forecast of foul weather the rest of the day, the effort was called off. The shot was delayed Friday by a combination of weather and electrical problems.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration scheduled the unmanned Gemini shot Saturday after reviewing results of a repeat of a simulated test flight.

The launching had been set for Tuesday, but difficulties during a simulation on Thursday prompted officials to rerun the simulation Friday night. The main problem was in the communication system between the spacecraft and missionc control center.

The Gemini operations director, Christovher C. Kraft Jr., rated the rerun 'highly satisfactory."

If the launching is successful, astronauts Virgil I. Grissom and John W. Young are to ride side by side into space in the next Gemini capsule. They are slated for a three-orbit, five-hour trip, possibly within three months.

THE NEW MEANING
Treason Detailed

THE NEW MEANING OF TREASON. By Rebecca West. Viking. $6.95.

The face of treason has changed in the last two decades, says Dame Rebecca, and while it is just as ugly, it is even more sinister.

The present book grew out of an earlier version in 1947, which dealt mainly with the careers and final conviction of two British traitors, William Joyce (Lord Haw-Haw) and John Amery, who broadcast propganda for the Germans in World War II.

A revised version of the original account, microscopically detailed, forms the first part of this book, but it is only the beginning. For soon the scene shifts to the theme of atomic scientists betraying vital secrets, starting with Dr. Alan Nunn May and Dr. Klaus Emil Fuchs.

And while this is written from the British viewpoint, it also brings in such American incidents as the cases of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, as well as the later saga of Col. Abel. It explores major and minor cases, including the defections of Donald Maclean and Guy Burgess, and goes on to the sticky mess of Britain's Profumo scandal.

Dame Rebecca, in a thoroughly waspish way, turns the light of examination on egocentric scientists who assume arrogantly that because they have a technical expertise, they are qualified to wave their magic wands over the tangled political and social problems of our time, though many of them are warped, silly adolescents in world affairs. She also bares some terrifying examples of security failures — blind official indifference to the presence of drunks, homosexuals and obvious Communist dupes in sensitive jobs; bumbling, bureaucratic failures to tell the truth about spies who somehow had been caught.

She finds that traitors of 20 years ago were sick, maladjusted amateurs, in comparison with cunning, sneaky professionals of later years; that the climate of treason has been nurtured in the warmth of the present era's money-morality.

The book is so detailed, often so explicitly digressive, that it may put off some readers. But essentially she poses the really urgent question of how to reconcile a deadly dilemma — between the security needs of the nations in a nuclear world and the basic ethics of a representative form of government. She calls it a tight-rope act over an abyss, and that is a convincing figure of speech.

Humanist Disdains Humbug

IF YOU DON'T MIND MY SAYING SO. By Joseph Wood Krutch. Sloan. $5.95.

This is a collection of familiar essays which Krutch has written over the years for a variety of top - grade magazines. As a literary form, the familiar essay has gone out of fashion — as Krutch notes with this comment:

"Its disappearance is only a minor symptom. Or perhaps it is just a little bit more than that. At least there are a number of subjects which might profitably be discussed by fewer experts and more human beings."

That is a key statement, for Krutch himself is a determined humanist, and he discusses very profitably a broad range of subjects.

The essays are grouped into four categories — Manners and Morals, Writers and Writing, Theater, and The World We Didn't Make (meaning nature).

The author is that rare combination of the bookish man and the amateur naturalist. He is an admirer of Samuel Johnson, G. B. Shaw, Henry David Thoreau and H. L. Mencken. As a former theater critic, he has cogent things to say about O'Neill as well as the theater of the absurd and existentialism.

Perhaps the best part of the collection is the section on Manners and Morals, for it is in these essays that he demonstrates his gruff disdain for bosh and buncombe, his devotion to a sense of values and his astringent doubts about the exactness of science.

More than anything else, Krutch is an individualist. It happens that he writes in the neglected field of the familiar (that is, personal) essay, and it should be hoped that he will not be the last to lend distinction to this form.

Cancer Research Account Is Given

THE SAVAGE CELL. By Pat McGrady. Basic Books. $8.50.

There probably is no more feared word in the English language than "cancer." To many persons not aware of the great advances in treatment and knowledge, it means a death warrant.

In this volume a veteran science writer who has been with the American Cancer Society for years tells the fantastic story of cancer in dispassionate, but interesting terms.

The reader learns that more than a million living Americans have faced cancer and have been cured, that cancer is as varied and random in its attack as the research that is designed to meet its challenge. McGrady documents the legions of men in white who fight cancer every day, and some of them who die from it.

From his overview, a sort of kaleidoscopic picture emerges — with possible cancer causes lurking in the drugs we take, the foods we eat, the environment of our modern world, even our jobs — and the things that can be done to remove some hazards from our lives.

We see too the brutality of the word "cancer" stripped of its fear, made into a reasonable question that has some answers. This is one of the most comprehensive exposes of this feared disease, and one of the most reliable accounts of cancer research, detection, treatment and control, ever put together for the general reader.

McGrady provides the expedient explanation of cancer as the "savage cell which somehow evades the laws of the body, invades the well-ordered society of cells surrounding it, colonizes distant areas and, as a finale to its cannibalistic orgy . . . commits suicide by destroying its host."

In his final chapter the author says "This is the beginning — not the end — of the story of cancer and cancer research. Cancer control . . . can and will come to pass. How soon depends on the wisdom and vigor with which the problem is attacked."

Story About Oldest U.S. 'Newspaper'

OLDER THAN THE NATION. The Story of the Hartford Courant. By John Bard McNulty. Pequot Press. $4.96.

This is the two-century history of the newspaper that carries on its editorial page the heading, "Established 1764 — The Oldest Newspaper of Continuous Publication in America."

As a chronicle in journalism, it is a detailed study of the long, illuminating progress from a little handprinted sheet dating from shortly after the French and Indian Wars to the modern daily.

Incidental to the main story is a view of local and national history, as reflected in the Courant's coverage of wars, disasters, politics, social changes and modern trends.

Among the personalities who appear in these pages are several interesting editors — Charles Dudley Warner, who became nationally known as an author; Charles Hopkins Clark, a major figure in the journalistic world, and Emile Gavreau, whose tenure was somewhat abbreviated because of his unorthodox approach to the handling of news.

For many readers the most engaging episodes will be those in the Courant's earliest days. It reported the Boston Tea Party in 1773 in one mocking sentence. It became a major voice of colonial resistence under the guidance of a widow with five children. Its proprietors brought out in 1783 a Noah Webster speller that eventually set a record for an American book at 100 million copies.

The author, a professor at Trinity College, has presented a thorough-going resume of how a vigorous newspaper has grown with its city and its nation.

Spillane Switches To Spies

DAY OF THE GUNS. By Mickey Spillane. Dutton. $3.50.

Spillane has turned away from swashbuckling cops-and-robbers stuff to the field of the secret agent. His new hero is an experienced counter-espionage agent named — really — Tiger Mann.

The situation is that somewhere in the English or American staffs at the United Nations a major security leak has developed. The Reds are learning all the top policy moves in advance.

As soon as Tiger gets a look at the beautiful English translator Edith Caine, he is ready to move. He remembers her as Rondine Lund, an Austrian who served as a Nazi spy .. . "She shot me twice in '45 and left me for dead, and if there's anybody in this world left that I'd like to kill, it's her."

The hero is not a government agent. He works for some sort of superpatriotic private group that is determined to ferret out Red spies, quite independently.

Tiger delays his private vengeance against Rondine in the interests of shattering the whole Red apparatus. Since he is working at cross purposes with the British and American intelligence services a good bit of the time, he has to go through some prodigious battles single-handed. Of course the sex angle is well taken care of in the plot.

Spillane has moved over into the espionage field with such a flourish that he creates scenes right on the border of burlesque. But the author's fans will be glad to know he still has that flair for the final switcheroo just as the narrative ends.

Dr. Leonard Carmichael, vice president of the National Geographic Society and former head of the Smithsonian Institution, was chairman of the committee which chose the contents for the time capsule at the New York World's Fair.

Everybody Throws In Solution To Quelling Rebellious University Students

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A whirlind of differences swirled Saturday over how to handle the revolt by a minority of the 27,400 students at the University of California against campus limits on politico-social action.

The rebels demand that they be allowed to do such things as collect money for civil rights work in the South anywhere on campus, instead of being restricted to one area.

Call an immediate legislative investigation, Assemblyman Don Mulford, Berkeley Republican, urged Saturday.

Expel all 590 students of the 814 demonstrators arrested for a massive sit-in at Sproul Hall, the administration building, said Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes, San Diego Republican. And fire faculty members who defended the demonstrators, he added.

Discharge the university chancellor, Edward W. Strong, stated a resolution by the Executive Committee, Berkeley Chapter, American Association of University Professors.

No, don't do that rejoined campus religious organizations; Dr. Strong is just enforcing rules on orders of the Board of Regents.

President Clark Kerr has talked enough with the press and community; now he should talk with the students as "the last straw afloat for a sinking campus," say identical editorials in student newspapers published on three of the university's eight campuses — at Berkeley, Davis and UCLA.

A faculty committee should mediate the dispute between the students and the administration, urged a group of Stanford professors at the Center for Advanced Students in the Behaviorial Sciences. They sent their suggestion to Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Solve such disputes without use of outside police, declared AFL-CIO labor councils of San Francisco and Alameda counties, drop the charges and shake up the Board of Regents.

"We have promised that this university shall not run and we shall keep that promise," philosophy junior shall not run and we shall keep that promise," philosophy junior student Mario Savio told a campus rally of more than 5,000 Friday.

Savio, from New Yorks East Side, spoke after he was among 813 demonstrators released from jail under $85,000 bonds guaranteed by a UC faculty group. One demonstrator remained in jail on a charge of possessing a marijuana cigarette.

All 814 face mass arraignment Monday on charges of trespassing, refusal to disperse and resisting arrest. The university said 590 were students, 135 nonstudents and the others included teaching assistants, university employes and unidentified persons.

Savio is the leader of a revolt group, the Free Speech Movement—FSM—which claims to have 3,000 students in it.

Savio, in addition to the sit-in charges, also is among four students facing disciplinary action and possible expulsion for an Oct. 1-2 demonstration. After a nonstudent tried to collect funds on campus and was charged with trespassing, demonstrators kept the campus police car surrounded all night. They broke up only after the university promised not to prosecute the man.

Assemblyman Mulford, who called for the legislative committee investigation, conferred for 90 minutes Friday with President Kerr and Regent Donald McLaughlin.

"I am convinced the revolt is far more insidious than appears on the surface," he said later.

The university administration appeared to be standing firm on allowing the 814 demonstrators—many carried limp downstairs from Sproul Hall—to be prosecuted by the Alameda County district attorney's office.

Gov. Brown ordered the police breakup of the sit-in, calling the student action "anarchy."

Spokesmen for the demonstrators indicated if the charges were not dropped that attempts would be made to obtain individual trials.

However, after hundreds were arrested earlier this year in San Francisco sit-in demonstrations demanding more jobs for Negroes, they were tried in groups of 10 or more.

For many years, the University of California had a rule banning on-campus recruiting and fund-raising for off-campus political causes. Students ignored it and it was not enforced.

This fall, administrators said the situation was getting out of hand. Enforcement was ordered. The Oct. 1-2 demonstrations ensued.

Last month, the Board of Regents met and made a new rule. It allowed the politico-social activities urged by the rebels to be permitted in one campus area. But the regents ruled that no activities would be permitted there which resulted in off-campus convictions for law violations.

Savio and his FSM said that wouldn't do. Demands were voiced for calling off the rules and for dropping the disciplinary action against the cited four.

When the university administration ignored the demands, Savio organized this week's sit-in and urged that the university operations be "brought to a grinding halt."

Friday, as the demonstrators were being bailed out of jail, the rebels set up picket lines which caused cancellation of about 40 classes. But thousands of students walked through the lines.

Some students picketed the pickets.

Where Frogs Abound

What happens to bullfrogs when their days around the streams and water holes are over? Some of them are preserved in comic poses by an area man who has become skilled in the art of taxidermy as a hobby.

By FRANCES PHILLIPS
Staff Writer

Bullfrogs abound in almost every room of the Fred Godwin home in Fairbanks.

There is one consolation for Mrs. Godwin though — all the frogs are stuffed.

Godwin, who began his taxidermy hobby several years ago "just to kill time," has more or less specialized in stuffing bullfrogs in all types of comic poses.

"They have become his trademark," Mrs. Godwin pointed out.

"I don't know of anyone else who bothers with them," Godwin said.

OUTDOORSMAN

Godwin, who is an avid outdoorsman and hobbyist, has "done just about everything," according to his wife.

He never had a lesson in taxidermy, but taught himself all of the skills involved in the professional-looking work he turns out.

"I borrowed a few books on taxidermy from a friend of mine," Godwin said, "and that's how I got started."

"The first thing I stuffed was a jay bird," he continued, "and since then I've tried my hand at everything."

"Except fish," his wife interjected. "Except fish," he quickly and emphatically agreed. "I leave those things to somebody else, even though I do love to catch them."

With the exception of fish, Godwin stuffs all types of animals.

MANY EXAMPLES

Hanging around his workshop are about a dozen sets of deer antlers in various sizes, several different hides from various animals, plus all sorts of other taxidermy equipment. He even stuffed a four-foot alligator once, he said.

When he first began this hobby, Godwin displayed his products all over the house. Mrs. Godwin said her sister paid them a visit just after he had finished a large owl, complete with outspread wings. The guest was heard to declare that she felt like she was "sleeping in a forest."

Another "bird story" Godwin likes to tell is about the time a lady friend of the family asked him to become a milliner.

It seems that her husband was a great hunter, especially of birds. Her request was that Godwin mount a quail suitable to be placed on one of her hats.

According to Godwin, the joke, which was to suddenly call the startled hunter's attention to the game nesting on his wife's hat, was a huge success.

MAIN INTEREST

But frogs have been his main interest for the past four or five years. Godwin has lost count of how many of the small creatures he has prepared and given to friends.

"We know he has frogs scattered all over the United States," Mrs. Godwin said, "and several in countries in Europe."

Numerous friends of the Godwins who have been presented with stuffed frogs, have moved to different locations all over the world.

The amateur taxidermist devised his own technique for preserving the frogs. First he skins the amphibian through the mouth, virtually turning it inside out without breaking the skin.

Next, he rolls the hide in borax, which instantly cures it. At this stage of the process, the hide can be rolled up into a ball about the size of a marble.

Then, slowly and carefully, he stuffs each hide with ordinary sawdust until it is completely filled and has resumed its original size. This step takes about three hours.

After stuffing, the frog is placed on a board in the desired finished position, and tied and pinned in place for at least a week or 10 days.

FINAL STEP

After the frog is completely dry and has hardened into shape, Godwin removes it from the frame and shellacs it as the final step.

Although many of his subjects are placed in the frogs' natural "sitting" position, Godwin also mounts a number of them in more "human" poses.

He has created frogs in outdoor pursuits such as fishing and golfing, as well as in inside activities such as playing cards and sitting in chairs.

One of the most eye-catching examples of his craft is a group of four sitting around a table playing poker. An alert waiter attends to the needs of the party, some of whom are smoking, cheating, and indulging in other poker-playing-type activities.

MAKES FURNISHINGS

Godwin makes the miniature-sized tables, chairs and playing cards to go with his sets.

In connection with his taxidermy work, Godwin has a cigar box full of different types of artificial eyes for the various animals he mounts.

Some of these he pointed out included dove and other birds, alligator, bobcat, deer, raccoon, duck and many others.

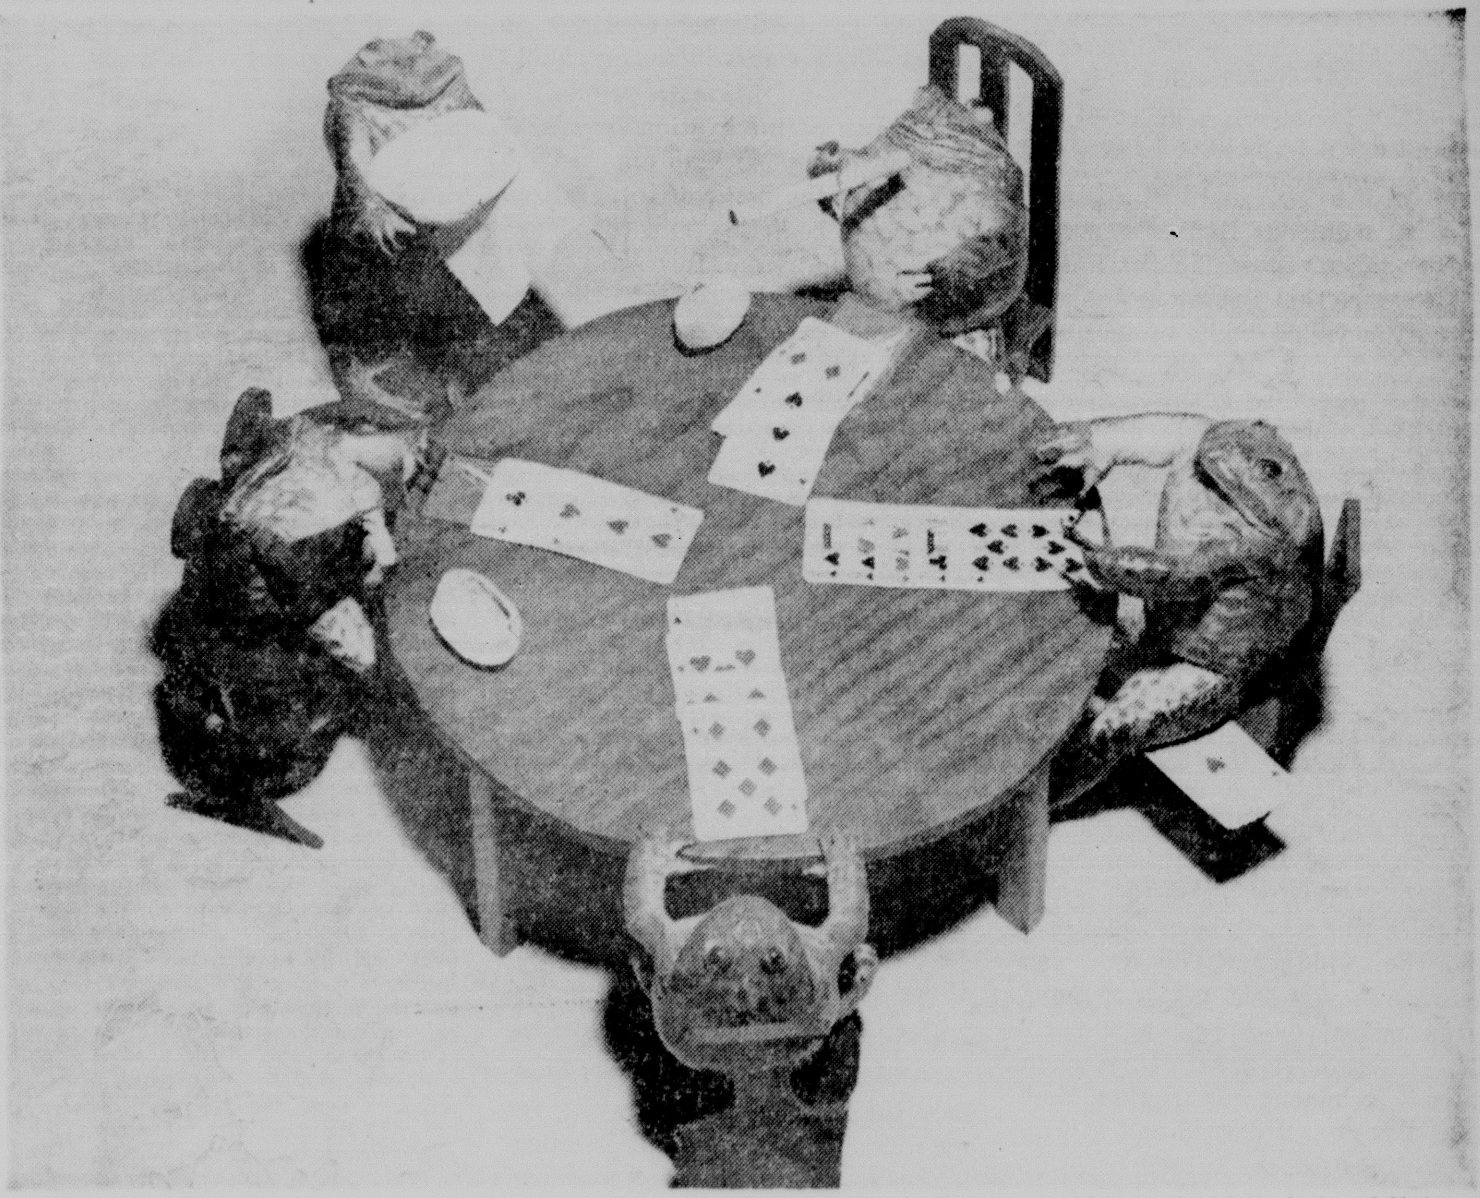
He explained that these eyes were ordered from a noted school of taxidermy in Omaha, Neb.

Godwin recently retired from his job as gas dispatcher with a local firm, and now has plenty of time to devote to his hunting and hobbies.

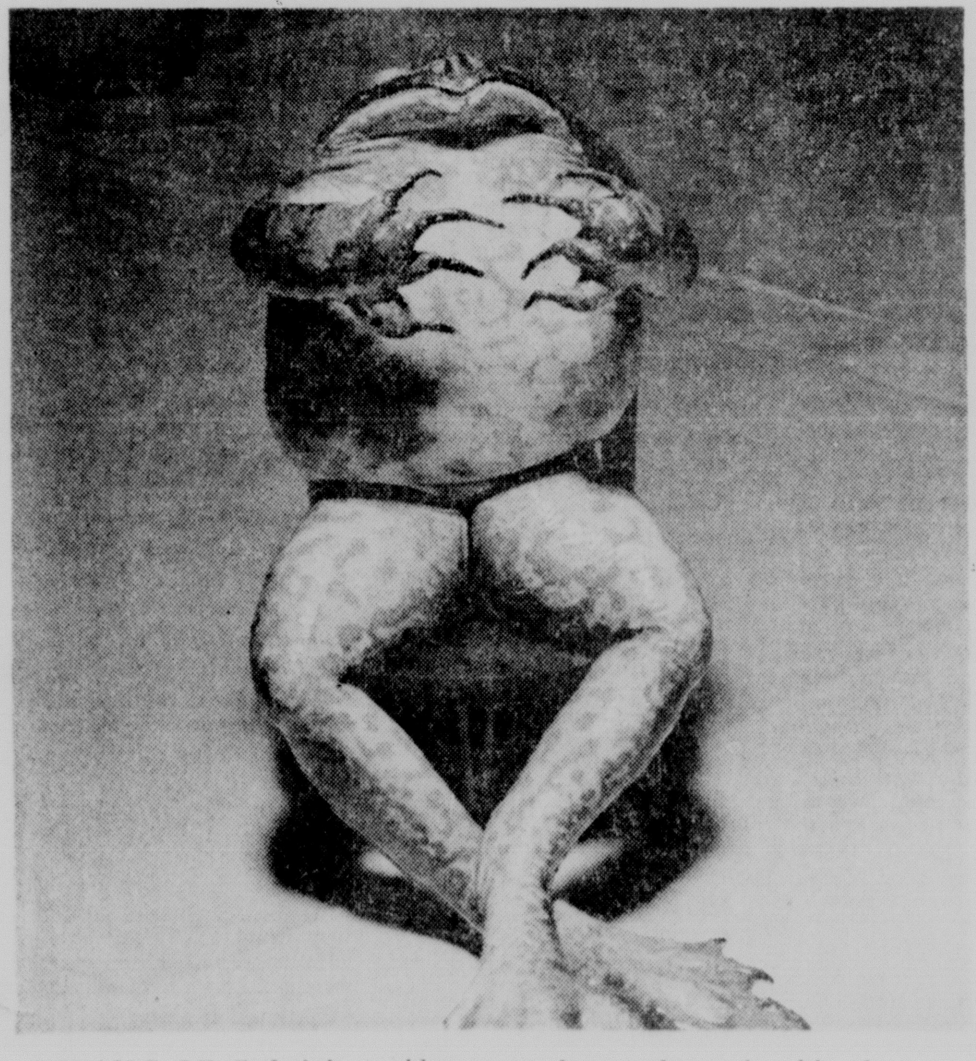
Since his retirement, he has added the craft of ceramics to his list of avocations, because he said he had more spare time.

According to his wife, he doesn't waste any of it, and will always have "lots of irons in the fire."

A PARTIAL COLLECTION of the stuffed frogs is shown here with Mr. and Mrs. Godwin. He has been mounting bullfrogs for about four years. He said he has given such a large number of them to friends and relatives that samples of his work are scattered all over the United States and Europe.



CARD PLAYING is only one of the activities poses of the many bullfrogs stuffed by Fred Godwin of Fairbanks. He has also mounted frogs as golfers, fishermen, and in numerous other poses. In this display, which has been exhibited in several local hobby shows, the "gentlemen" enjoy a friendly game of poker. The setting is complete with waiter, cigarettes and a hidden ace. (Staff Photos by John Fogleman)



DETAILS OF Godwin's taxidermy work are shown in this close-up shot of one of his frogs. He first skins the frog, then cures the hide, stuffs it with sawdust, and shellacs the finished product after it has been placed in the desired position.

Researchers Study Turtle Navigation

In one of its more interesting and unusual projects, the Navy is investigating carefully the means by which a species of deep-sea turtle does its amazingly accurate navigating.

However the turtles do it, it's effective enough to enable them to make their way over thousands of miles of trackless ocean to return to specific beaches of tiny islands where they were hatched years before, to lay their eggs.

The Office of Naval Research reports that it hopes to discover the means by which the green turtle, which reaches weights of 400 pounds and is the most systematic long-range migrant of all turtles achieves its pinpoint accuracy.

Several theories have been advanced, among them that the turtles may very well navigate by the stars, duplicating in their eye and their relatively small brain the expensive and complex equipment by which men chart the course of ships.

The Navy hopes that the research project will develop information to make navigation easier, cheaper, quicker, and more precise.

This month a Navy aircraft transported 18,500 four-ounce baby turtles from breeding grounds in Costa Rica to 12 beaches in Mexico, Colombia, Florida and the Caribbean Islands. If the little turtles are fooled into believing they were hatched there, they will return in five or six years to lay their clutches of 100 eggs.

Dr. Archie Carr, professor, of zoology at the University of Florida, who is under contract to ONR as the chief investigator on the project, says, "There seems to be no wholly satisfactory explanation for oriented open-sea travel by animals over distances so great that compass-sense alone would be insufficient to keep them on a successful course." The turtles, he said, like some birds, seem to have a two-coordinate system of position-finding.

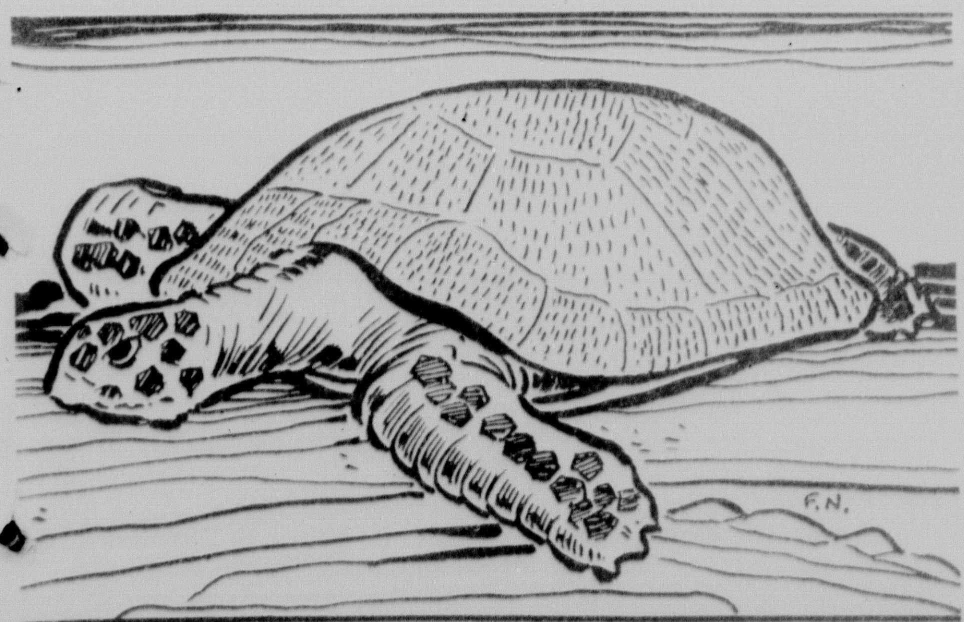
A good illustration of the migrations of these reptilian navigators is the case of the 206 turtles tagged at Ascension Island, a thousands miles off the coast of South America, in 1960. Of these, eight were subsequently caught along the coast of Brazil. In 1963, three of those tagged in 1960 were found on Ascension Island, each on the beach where it had previously laid its eggs.

As a result it can be said that after laying their eggs, the turtles swim more than 1,000 miles to the Brazilian coast, live there for two or three years, then find their way back to an island only five miles wide.

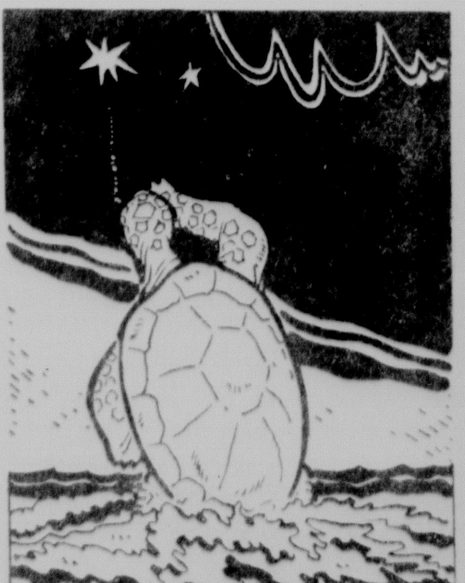
One of the immediate problems the scientists must solve in understanding turtle navigation is finding a method of tagging the turtles with an effective radio beacon. Thus far they have successfully mounted a transmitter on turtles' backs, but the system has not been observable over any extensive distance.

If a successful turtle-borne radio transmitter system is developed, turtles may be captured then carried several hunderd miles offshore and released. By radio tracking scientists should be able to see how they home on the island.

A by-product of the reaseach will perhaps be the re-establishment of green turtles on breeding beaches they used at the time of Columbus, but on which they were exterminated many years ago by hungry Caribbean islanders.



THE LARGE green turtle is a systematic long range migrant that accurately navigates the trackless ocean.



RESEARCHERS have speculated that green turtles navigate by the stars.

Sacro-Sanct Label?

People of the United States will be watching during this month to see whether President Johnson will put a "sacro-sanct" label on Negro integration-leaders of this country. If Johnson does that he will be giving the integration pushers authority to attack officials in federal service and will be denying those officials the right to defend themselves.

When Martin Luther King Jr., Negro integration leader in the South stated that the Federal Bureau of Investigation could not be expected to do its duty in protecting Negro mobs demonstrating in the South and intruding on private property, he assumed a duty which does not exist and therefore made a misleading statement. The F.B.I. was created to investigate and to present evidence and to take into custody those suspected of being guilty of law violations but was never intended to be a protective agency.

Naturally displeased at being falsely and unjustly accused, J. Edgar Hoover, able and diligent head of the F.B.I. for 40 years, called King a "liar."

This set the extreme leftists and integration-by-force advocates to clamoring and howling worse than a pack of jackals. To call former Republican Presidential Candidate Barry Goldwater or Vice-Presidential Nominee Hubert H. Humphrey a liar, if either of them had told one, might have been excusable in the eyes of the leftists and integrationists but since, in their opinion, the integration pushers must be placed on a pedestal and bowed down to, calling King a liar was an unpardonable sin.

The moment Hoover's words were spoken, those "in the know" were aware that President Johnson would be called upon to kick out Hoover, despite the fact that his services over two-fifths of a century have been outstanding and there has never been anything to discredit him. Immediately, everyone began to wonder if President Johnson would meet the demands of the "holier than thou" group.

Shortly afterward, Newsweek magazine said President Johnson had decided to replace Hoover. The White House made a prompt denial and George E. Reedy, presidential press secretary said: "The President never heard of such a plan and never heard of such an idea." A spokesman said there would be no comment from the F.B.I.

In part, Newsweek said:

"One such disenchanted fan is Lyndon B. Johnson, who had decided by last week that he must find a new chief of the F.B.I. It was a tough decision.

"Even tougher perhaps is the task of finding a worthy replacement . . . some one as irreproachable, as a respected judge, preferably a federal judge. The search is on."

It was noted that Johnson signed an executive order last May in which, in "the public interest," he waived the compulsory retirement that would take effect on Hoover's 70th birthday next January 1.

The President also had assured the F.B.I. boss he could stay in the job "as long as I am in the White House."

Former Attorney General Robert Kennedy, elected in November, while a non-resident, as a United States Senator from New York, who is said to be intensely opposed to Hoover, was the first to make an attack on the F.B.I. chief. During the time Kennedy was attorney general he clashed with Hoover on the question of whether F.B.I. agents should continue to track down communists or should turn their attention to promoting the cause of integration by tracking down anyone who opposed intrusion in the name of integration. There can be little doubt that Kennedy, at that time, told Hoover he had to follow his orders to the letter or he would be fired. Hoover's hands were virtually tied until Johnson became President, but when Johnson took office he shook loose Kennedy's hold.

Demands of the scalp-hunting placed squarely before Johnson the decision of whether to ignore them or to fire an honorable and worthy man.

5,000 Decisions A Second

Ever since the late Henry Ford, Sr., and some other manufacturing pioneers started making automobiles there have been some people who would say, "You never can tell when you will get a 'lemon,' even when you buy a new car." There may have been a time when such a statement was true but that time has almost passed and will do so within the near future.

There are many who think the automobile is the finest machine ever created. Some men and possibly some women give their cars first place in their affection.

Right now, though, the startling thing about automobile manufacture is that machines which can make 5,000 decisions in a second are being used to test motor vehicles before they leave the assembly line. For those who may spend days, weeks or even months in arriving at a decision on a certain matter, 5,000 decisions in a second seems like a mighty accomplishment.

And it is a mighty accomplishment. Manufacturers now claim those 5,000 decisions in a second will wipe out the last minute chance of a mistake in making a car. They say that, by eliminating various possible "bugs" in the automobile's makeup, they will put a definite end to the "lemons." When anyone buys an automobile, he will know it is good because an electronic computer has tested it many thousands of times and has declared, "I find no fault in thee."

Perfection in automobiles not only will mean greater comfort and complacency for the driver and passengers but will mean greater safety — and fewer traffic tragedies. Before long, the computers, with their fast "brains," may decide to end traffic accidents entirely.

Dave Beck Coming Out

Under a decision made by the Federal Parole Board, Dave Beck, former $50,000-a-year head of the Teamsters Union, is about to join the "outside" people. He is scheduled to be released from federal prison December 11.

Beck was convicted in Tacoma, Wash., February 27, 1959, on charges of filing fradulent income tax returns and was sentenced to serve a five-year term. He was able to fight off imprisonment until June 20, 1962. That means he has served about half his term.

James R. Hoffa, Beck's successor, is now trying to avoid imprisonment, after several convictions.

In the cases of both Beck and Hoffa, the salary was $50,000 a year, plus almost unlimited expense money. Each was accused not only of failing to file correct income returns but of playing fast and loose with union funds.

Beck, now 70, should know enough to behave himself. When he left office, his retirement pay was said to have been set at the same level as his salary—$50,000 a year. So far as is known, there has been no revocation. He can still have a fat living at union expense, even if he turns the proper proportion over to Uncle Sam.

Views Of Our Readers

And The Opinionated

College Heights, Ark.

To the Editor:

Each week-end when in West Monroe, I find a refreshing experience in reading your unbiased and intelligent editorials.

I am enclosing an article which I have been inspired to write; I would be honored to have it run on your editorial page.

My home is 12 miles south of West Monroe, and that is where I enjoy my week-ends. My position is: Chairman of Chemistry Department, Arkansas A. & M. College.

These are two labels currently employed by Marxists (Communists, socialists, and "new frontiersmen") in their concerted campaign of character assassination of those who dare openly disagree with their ideologies and action. This attempt at presenting a false image is an example of the false propaganda technique of thought control by truth reversal; it is as ancient and as subtle as Satan, for it was first exercised on earth in the Garden of Eden.

In the United States of America today the line is drawn, and it rapidly grows sharper and more clearly defined; for those who tenaciously refuse thought control by the Marxist mechanism (or Fascist mechanism) are standing up to be counted. These are the truly responsible Americans; these are the courageous ones. It is they upon whom the "New Frontiersmen," the proponents of the "New Society," and the "Civil Rightists" try persistently to pin the labels of "the irresponsible ones" and the opinionated." Unfortunately they are now succeeding in this labeling endeavor through the instrumentation of the three news media (radio, television, and the newspaper), although ironically it was the "grape-vine" and the invention of the printing press that proved so valuable in bringing about the European renaissance, a great awakening from thought control and the throwing off its shackles. The power of the pen for evil can be as great as its power for good.

For daring to think, we are branded as presumptious; for thinking we are called iconoclasts. For formulating valid convictions contrary to those in vogue, we are labeled "opinionated"; for patriotic actions we are called super-patriots and extremists.

For utterances contrary to those of the Executive Branch of our national government, we are said to be conceited and weird; for failure in blind compliance with unconstitutional edicts and decisions handed down by the Judicial Branch, we are considered to be maladjusted or paranoic. For adherance to Judo-Christian ethics as our standard of morals and to Anglo - Saxon jurisprudence as our standard for law, we are said to be living in the past. For our high esteem for the written U.S. Constitution in government, Webster's Unabridged Dictionary in semantics, and other realistic standards, we are described as fanatics and old fogies.

For being protagonists of national pride and for having admiration for the great American patriots and traditions, we are indicted as antagonists of humanity. For being honest, we are considered as naive; for heroic action, we are called "saps", fools, or exhibitionists.

For choosing one's associates, one is considered a snob, bigot, or racist. For accruing private property honestly one is called a capitalist.

For disciplining our children and bringing them up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," we are thought to suppress the development of their personalities and therefore to be old - fashioned and non - progressive. For dreaming dreams and for daring to cherish the more realistic ones, we are accused of being in our dotage or "in orbit."

These are some of the symptoms which we observe in our sick nation, sick almost unto death from the ravages of the cancer of communist infiltration of our national government and our religious organizations in particular. Vicious and unrelenting is this concerted campaign of truth reversal. The sadest of all the results of such gradual and subtle brainwashing of a nation is that the brain-washed becomes a robot of the State, a slave who enjoys his slavery as the only and true way of life and is conditioned to fight to the death if necessary for its preservation and perpetuation. His God - endowed ability to think freely and to act with a free will is lost forever; and he becomes reduced to the level of blind instincts of mere animals — conditioned and well trained for performance in the State's circus of tragic melodramas — daisy-chain of dunces, performance of clowns, comedy of errors.

Comments On Editorial

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

I have read with interest your Thursday's editorial, "Special Session Results;" and once again, as always, I am appalled at the vitriolic tone that you use in your editorials whenever your subject is an increased salary for teachers. Your bitter attacks have been habitually poorly masked under the guise of impartial reporting whenever the subject arose. I realize that as an editor you enjoy an immunity that permits you to make your attack. Will you grant me, a teacher, the privilege of fighting back?

This time I think you have dealt teachers a really low blow, because you have attacked us in our most vulnerable spot; that is, in our relationship with the parents of the children we teach. It takes a parent-teacher partnership built on mutual respect to achieve the ultimate goal in education — a full and rich life for the child. You have undermined the respect of parents for teachers; you have "cut the ground out from under us" in your attempt to break up that partnership.

You have taken this "calculated risk" in this way. First, you have pretended a great rejoicing at our good fortune in having been promised a raise. Next, you have praised the magnanimity of a legislature that has actually promised us one-half of full implementation for one-half a school session. (My friends in mathematics tell me that this is actually only a $250 boost in salary unless the raise is retroactive to September of 1964.)

Then, having worked up this rich loam, you have planted the following seeds of doubt and mistrust of teachers in the minds of our pupils' parents: (1) you have compared the United School Committee to a Walter Reuther United Auto Workers' bargaining group, with all its ugly undertones of violence and ruthlessness, despite the fact that teachers in our area have approached the salary problem with dignity and good taste; (2) you have blatantly taken figures out of context in some obscure article concerning the merit system in Florida and put the idea firmly in the minds of local parents that it is doubtful whether those who educate their children are themselves educated; (3) you have suggested that "non-educators . . . go into a study of not only teacher pay but also teacher qualifications" as well, rather than have school professionals make the evaluation. What a novel idea! Is this the way the A.M.A. operates, by calling in mechanics or bookkeepers or sailors to define the standards, purposes, and remuneration of its doctor members?

I personally do not know any teacher who is afraid to be tested in his or her subject field, though the thought does cross my mind of why such a test would be necessary with the high standards of certification that Louisiana requires and the really superior supervision of our administrators. I can't see Louisiana lawyers taking their bar examinations over again, can you? Furthermore, Mr. Editor, I challenge you or any board to devise a test that is capable of scientifically measuring the true merit of a teacher, whose love, understanding, and guidance of children, whether mental or moral, have an intangibility that defies scoring.

Again let me say that I truly regret that your school experiences have left such unfavorable impressions with you that you can never find one word of praise for the individual teacher or the profession. Should we condemn all tradesmen because of rude behavior on the part of a clerk? Should we turn from the church because we have peshaps known one preacher who was neither inspired or inspiring? Should we condemn all parents because we know one who has made a failure of the child whom God entrusted to his care? Of course not! Mr. Editor, there must have been one good teacher in your history, wasn't there?

Editorial Comments

To the Editor:

It's so wonderful to read your Editorial Comments for the last week or so, also other writers. The change is very uplifting. It lightens up the heart and vanishes the stupor that has choked us for sometime. I pray and hope that those dark days that were filled with vile insinuations will never return to our world in which we all live, and will have to live in until life expires. We should never forget that we only have the kind of world we make it to be, and when we disregard the fundamental principals of Christianity, the foundation on which our great society is or is supposed to be built on, then what have we?

Even though we are not actively true in our beliefs and faith, we should not continue the practice of contamination, which will corrupt us all. After all, even a dog can sense when he is ill treated. Also love fulfills the law, so I hope with all my heart we can always stand on our Christian foundation.

Chambers Given Role Of Martyr

LLOYD GEORGE once said about his enemies that they would take no nonsense from a fact. As much can be said of those who, even after reading the Warren Report, persist in proclaiming the innocence of Harvey Lee Oswald. It is, one supposes, a quite remarkable thing that everybody agrees that Brutus stabbed Julius Caesar. One wonders when, if ever, the historical fact of the guilt of Alger Hiss will be finally accepted.

A few weeks ago, a volume was released posthumously containing some of the fragmentary writings of Whittaker Chambers. It was earnestly hoped by his widow, by the editor, and by the admirers of Chambers, that he might in this volume be judged not as the man who got Alger Hiss or who a generation ago did espionage for the Communist Party, but as a man of thought and letters.

The book, Cold Friday, is an attempt to set down some of his views, which whether or not one sympathizes with them, will thrill any man of literary sensibility, provided he is not besotted with ideological rage at the mere mention of the name of Whittaker Chambers. It is important for those who believed Chambers, and for those younger people in America who never knew him or of him, and who have not read his extraordinary autobiography Witness, to be reminded that Chambers was one of the finest products of the anti-Communist struggle.

NOT BECAUSE HE fingered Alger Hiss, nor even because his Witness forever destroyed the myth that every single person associated with the New Deal was a democratic idealist. But because Chambers, through his melancholy, through his palpable personal grief for the West, is able to arouse in the man who reads his prose or studies his life, a sense of renewed dedication to the West, the absence of which principally accounts for the West's faltering performance during the recent era.

After Alger Hiss was convicted, the saying went around: "Well, Chambers was proved correct, but his critics will never forgive him for it." Though the statement has the smell of an aphorism - at - any - price, it turned out to be prophetically true. Those who sympathized with Alger Hiss — generally speaking, members of the Left — never did forgive Chambers, and greeted the publication of his book with riotous enthusiasm as an occasion to spit on his grave. I use the phrase to describe as exactly as I can the three reviews of Cold Friday published in the three most influential Liberal - Left book reviewing media, The New York Review of Books, The Nation, and The New Republic.

The attack on Chambers is in two parts. There are those who attack his credibility — who say simply that he was a pathological liar: that Hiss was innocent, period. There are others who would like to believe that, but are just a little bit reluctant to do so under the weight of the contrary evidence. After all, to believe that Chambers was guilty is to believe in a conspiracy comprehending the entire judicial mechanism of the United States whose dimensions would cause the most credulous disciple of Robert Welch to wince.

IT WOULD BECOME necessary to believe that the Justice Department, the FBI, the courts, conspired together to fabricate evidence against Hiss. It is always possible to contend that such was the case, even as it is possible to contend (as the author Thomas Buchanan in effect has done) that the Dallas police, the militarists, the FBI, and the Warren Commission conspired together to fix the blame for Mr. Kennedy's death on Oswald. But it is distressing that such phantasmagorias should be published by allegedly serious journals.

The other school of critics maintains that the gentleman was a jerk, an intellectual manque' (they love that), slightly mad, egocentric, neurotic, you-name-it. These critics cannot understand a man who, on leaving the Communist Party, truly believed that, to repeat his stunning phrase, he was "leaving the winning side, in order to join the losing side." Not because the gentlemen take either so dark a view of Communism or so devoted a view of the West, but because they cannot receive without fierce resentment any challenge to their shallow rationalistic optimism, cannot stand any challenge to the view that civilizations are won or lost according to how many Point Fours we adopt, what the federal minimum wage is set at, or how many times we meet the Soviet Union's representatives and cluck together about the advantages of eliminating nuclear tests.

Understand, Chambers is strong stuff. But I give it as my judgment that there is more beauty, and compassion, and understanding in Cold Friday, than anywhere else in the literature of our tormented age; and that those who read him with pain will do so because they have encountered a literature of stunning force, which painfully reminds every one of us how little we do in contrast with the Communists, to love and to cherish our civilization.

SYLVIA PORTER

High-Up Economy In Long Stretch

IN LESS THAN 60 days we'll be marking an extraordinary milestone in the life of the U.S. economy: four years of uninterrupted, across-the-board, non-inflationary upswing to never-before touched peaks.

There is no precedent in our peacetime history for a strong upturn of this duration. Actually, there is no precedent for it in wartime either, for our one longer war boom — that of World War II — was marked by inflation, first concealed by price-wage controls and then openly virulent.

1964 is almost over, the latest available figures won't be significantly changed in coming weeks. Here, therefore, is a box-score of the key economic gains during the Kennedy-Johnson administrations of 1961 to 1965. Save it for easy reference.

Gross National Product (this measures the extent of our growth): Up $127 billion or 25.3 per cent.

Industrial production: Up 27 per cent.

Employment (nonfarm jobs): Up 4,700,000 jobs.

UNEMPLOYMENT RATE: down from 6.7 per cent to 5.2 per cent, but within this overall rate the rates among adult men and particularly among adult married men — the family breadwinners — have fallen to the so - called tolerable range of 4 per cent or below.

Average weekly earnings in manufacturing: Up $13.89 a week or 15.5 per cent.

Personal income: Up $87.5 billion or 21.5 per cent.

After-tax personal income: Up $80 billion or 22.5 per cent.

After-tax personal income for family of four (average): Up $1,250 or 16.3 per cent.

Corporate profits after taxes: Up $12.5 billion or 64 per cent.

Stock values: Up 39.5 per cent measured by the Dow-Jones industrial stock average and up $220 billion measured by the total dollar value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Consumer prices (the cost of living): Up 5 per cent.

Wholesale prices: Hardly budged.

The odds as of now are against our duplicating the amazing record of the past four years during the next four.

JUST THE FACT that the upswing is so old is an enormous obstacle, for this alone telegraphs the probability of a slowdown in the pace of rise in spending.

Unless businessmen are given additional incentives, they well may not continue investing in plants and equipment at the pace of 1964. Unless consumers get new incentives too, they well may not continue their spending pace. As for federal government spending, of course it will climb, but a ceiling will be on the percentage of increase until our economy signals a need for more spending fuel.

Just the fact that price and wage increases have been so restrained casts doubt on whether the restraint will last. The fat auto wage settlement could vitally influence negotiations in other important industries. There is no hiding from the dual threats of a hefty steel wage settlement and steel price hikes. In the face of rising labor costs, increasing numbers of corporations could be under pressure to hike prices to maintain their profit margins.

SUNDAY POEM

Some go to church to take a walk;
Some go to church to laugh and talk;
Some go there to meet a friend;
Some go there their time to spend;
Some go there to meet a lover;
Some go there for speculation;
Some go there for observation;
Some go there to doze and nod;
The wise go there to worship God.

A SIGN — A sign noticed on a road in the Twin Cities area — "If people speak ill of you, live so that no one will believe them."

KNOW WHAT the two biggest studies at any high school these days? They are boyology and Galgebra.

IT MAY HAPPEN

Those closest to the situation believe the U. S. will carry out selective air raids on North Vietnam despite the denials now coming out of Washington. One of the reasons for this decision will be because the distinguished reputation of Ambassador Maxwell Taylor hinges on the outcome of the conflict. Taylor believes that unless supply posts and training camps in North Vietnam are hit, the war will go nowhere; he doesn't want to be in charge of a stalemate war and will resign if President Johnson does not authorize the attacks. LBJ, insiders say, is certain to go along with Taylor, for whom he has great respect, but will insist no land forces be allowed to go into the North.

NOTE TO TEENAGE BOYS

You better stop and take stock of the situation befor it's too late. A survey has revealed that U. S. teenage boys are surrendering many of their premarital freedoms at an alarming rate and show the probability of being completely housebroken to husbandly rut before they've even been put into legal harness. The Youth Research institute, which busies itself surveying the nation's young set, says some boys going steady give their money to their girls, who put the boys on a budget or open a joint bank account. Older teenage girls accompany boys when shopping for clothes and have a strong voice in what is purchased. In cases once they feel confident of "steady" status, girls force boys to cut down on sweets and smoking, tell them when to study and when to retire at night, even accompany them to barbershops. The strange part of all of this, says the institute, is that teenage boys fight fiercely for independence from parental control and then meekly surrender to their girl friends.

DEFINITIONS

Like to browse through books looking for definitions — the off - beat kind — for certain words? Here are a few we came across recently:

Candor — What a woman thinks about another woman's gown.

Celebrity — The advantage of being known to people who don't know you.

Draw — The result of a battle between a dentist and a patient.

Perfectionist — One who takes great pains and gives them to other people.

Office filing — Is an orderly system of misplacing important papers.

Juvenile delinquents — Other people's children.

Democracy — A government of bullies tempered by editors.

PLANT HAPPINESS

Want to know how to plant happiness? Here's the formula:

1. First, plant five rows of peas: Perseverance, presence, preparation, promptness, purity.

2. Next, plant three rows of squash: Squash gossip, Squash criticism and squash indifference.

3. Then plant five rows of lettuce: Let us be faithful to duty; let us be unselfish and loyal. Let us be true to our own obligations. Let us love one another.

4. Finally, no garden is complete without turnips: Therefore turn up for important meetings; turn up with a smile, turn up with new ideas, turn up with determination to make everything count for something good and worthwhile.

OVERHEARD RECENTLY

AT a party — Wife — Waltz a little faster, dear; they're playing a rumba.

PROBABLY one of the toughest problems faced by a lot of children nowadays is learning good manners without seeing any . . .

A TRUE ONE

At a motel swimming pool a month or so back, a little boy ran up to his mother who sat reading at the side of the pool.

"Mommy, can I go swimming in the deep end," he asked. "Certainly not, dear, answered the mother. "It's too deep."

"But daddy's swimming there," the lad pointed out.

"That's different," replied the mother, returning to her book. "Daddy's insured."

A GENTLEMAN is a guy who, when his wife drops something, kicks it to where she can pick it up more easily.

AN AD in an East Berlin newspaper: "Will trade my luxurious lakeside villa for a hole in the wall."

OUR NEIGHBORHOOD

Recently a young girl walked up to a housewife and began asking a series of questions about the small children in the home.

"Do they kick, scratch, yell or bite?" "No," answered the housewife. "Do they insist on sitting up late?" "No," answered the housewife, then added, "Why are you questioning me so closely? Are you taking a census?"

"No," replied the girl, "I have you down on my list as a prospective baby-sitting client."

JOKES

Some of the best stories often don't get in print. Here are a few we ran across the past week at various meetings:

PROPOSAL — Two women, shopping in a supermarket, became engrossed on conversation.

"I understand the attendance hasn't been good at your church lately," said one woman. "That's so," replied the other. "There were so few attending last Sunday, that every time the preacher said "dearly beloved' I felt as though I'd received a proposal."

EXPENSIVE — One father to another — "You've been paying your son's college expenses for two years, Tell me, is education expensive nowadays?" Replied the other—"Language runs the highest. Last month it was $10 for English, $20 for French, and $115 for Scotch."

GOOD BOSS — Charles E. Wilson once said that a good boss "is one who makes his men think they have more ability than they have, so they consistently do better work than they thought they could."

BUILDER OR WRECKER

I watched them tearing a building down — a gang of men in a busy town:
With a "Ho, heave, ho," and a lusty yell
They swung a beam and the side fell down;
I asked the foreman, "Are these men skilled?
And the kind you would hire if you were to build?"
He laughed and said, "Why no indeed,
Just common laborers is all I need;
They can easily wreck in a day or two
That which has taken builders years to do."
So I said to myself, as I went on my way,
"What part in the game of life do I play,
Am I shaping my deeds to a well-made plan,
Carefully measuring with a rule and square,
Patiently doing the very best I can,
Or am I a wrecker — who walks the town,
Content with the labor of tearing down?"

GEMS OF WISDOM

Are you one of those who collects little gems of Wisdom? Many of them have a tremendous meaning for daily living. Here are a few:

THE WORLD OWES you a living only when you have earned it.

LET US endeavor so to live that when we come to die even the undertaker will be sorry.

A GOOD listener is not only popular everywhere, but after a while he knows something.

ALWAYS listen to the opinions of others. It probably won't do you any good but it will them . . .

A MAN never realizes his insignificance until he gets married.

AND THE EASIEST way to get a reputation for possessing a superior mind is to nod approval and let the other fellow do all the talking."

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Writer Reveals Trade Secrets

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Suppose you wanted to write a Sunday newspaper column. How would you go about it?

First, you'd stop giggling at the prospect and be serious. That settled, you'll want a subject — something specific enough to permit at lease a loose organization of material and yet general enough for an entertaining flexibility of approach.

The qualification of our "Brand X" as a Sunday column insinuates value as either a review or a look ahead into the activities of a given week. Let's make ours a review and, for argument's sake, limit it to Twin Cities activities.

TYLER

Right a-w-a-y, you say this suggests a terrific title — Twin Cities Week In Review — and you're right. We'll use it. Following a cheery little introduction to lighten the tone and impart an air of polish, you select a major topic.

It should be broad, something on which there've been several developments — different, of course, but related, strung together with piano wire. We'll take Christmas, for example, though readers, as members of a free society, are encouraged to write their own column.

Christmas, then. Bear with us while we write our column. The next step appears directly. You can be planning your major topic meanwhile.

MAJOR TOPIC

To use an overworked phrase for which we frankly should be cudgeled, things really were "beginning to look a lot like Christmas" last week. The decorations were hung down the streets with care (in both Monroe and West Monroe), in hopes that St. Nicholas (all of them — several per store) soon would be there. And indeed he did come to West Monroe, last Thursday, for his annual fire truck ride in the city's Christmas parade. The Monroe yule parade is "logged" for Dec. 12, next Saturday.

In Monroe, the downtown lights were lighted for Old Jelly Belly and all the little subordinate clauses last Tuesday (at 5:30 p.m., unless somebody got an itchy switch finger, as sometimes happens). "Ho, Ho, Ho," the Northern Swinger himself, threw the switch in West Monroe as a feature of parade day.

Meanwhile, the scheduling of an event was announced which should fill a glaring need in Monroe's seasonal festivities. While West Monroe has had a home lighting contest running for a number of years. Big Sister has been conspicious by her absence, and we've wondered each year at the marvelous holiday spirit that must have animated those who, without hope of recognition, have toiled to create some of the most elaborate displays imaginable.

Not so any longer. The World has joined forces with the City of Monroe to produce a real contest, and one which, even to the unbiased eye, offers prizes that reflect a realistic view of the high cost of fielding a winner.

A total of $550 in prize money will be distributed in three cost categories.

Sound good? Better hit the drawing board then. Entries must be submitted by Dec. 14 and all decorations completed by 5 p.m. Dec. 18. You may get your picture made at city hall Dec. 23 when winners are announced, and, as is plain from our photo above, anyone can look great. You should see us in person; we're not called Quasimodo for nothing.

MORE MAJOR

Spangles, lights of gay hue and the visions of sugar plums and presents, of course, are nice, but the approach of Christmas had another significance last week. The annual Goodfellows drive commenced Sunday, seeking to raise $6,000 by Christmas, as well as food, clothing and toys, for the Twin Cities underprivileged. Jack Hesketh of the Monroe Recreation Department again is coordinating the effort, sponsored by the local papers. Contributions may be directed to: "Goodfellows, c-o the Monroe Morning World.

Also underway was the Salvation Army's holiday collection of unwanted, used or broken toys for distribution among the less fortunate. The organization operates its own reconditioning facility to whip playthings back into working order. Army workers will pick up the articles as well. All you need are the toys and charity enough to make the donation.

There have always been plenty of warm hearts in the area and both drives are bound to ring the bell, but there were also the accompanying cold hands last week as December arrived, bringing with it the coldest snap, to date, of the season. Raw winds howled in early Tuesday from northerly parts, and depressed temperatures to 23 degrees, one degree colder than the previous coldest. And the highest the mercury could push throughout the day was a chill bump-prone 52.

So there you have it—our version of a sample major topic. Yours probably will be better. But naturally you'll need more. The presence of a major topic implies secondary topics. They should be of wide interest, yet confined to a particular group or activity and without ramifications which could tie them to other developments, making them major topics. Here are our selections; feel free to use all or any part in your column:

SECONDARY

Meetings of public bodies lend themselves well and there were two of leading consequence — the Ouachita Parish Police Jury and the Ouachita Parish School Board.

The jury met Monday night to continue its strivings against the problem of rural fire protection. The city of Monroe is scheduled to stop fighting fires in non-municipal areas Dec. 31, unless the parish opts to make a new agreement.

Based on Monday's meeting, an agreement is felt likely, as the use of city facilities in a broader spectrum appeared most favored. While Twin Cities officials still must concur, jurors apparently will seek to employ the services of both Monroe and West Monroe fire departments in return for the proceeds of a proposed tax election. Three and one-half mills would be divided next year, on the basis of amounts collected east and west of the river, with two and one-half mills to be so split in future years.

Positive action is expected at the jury meeting Wednesday.

The school board, meanwhile, was construction - minded Tuesday. They awarded a $42,998 contract for the addition of a multi-purpose room at Lenwil School, and assigned architects to draft preliminary plans for work at West Monroe High, Kiroli, Swartz and Richwood Schools. Boardmen also seemed inclined to favor early plans for the conversion of a downtown gym into an office building for themselves. Cost of the construction should run well below that to be expected for a brand new edifice.

TERTIARY

So much for secondary topics. That brings us to tertiary topics which ideally might concern individual achievements. Twin City people are achievers and there were plenty to choose from. Here are a few that caught our eye:

New Officers — the Traffic & Transportation Club of Monroe — West Monroe Wednesday installed Jack Dyer as new president, succeeding Travis Davis; Robert Hanna succeeded himself, re-elected Tuesday to a second one-year term as chairman of the Central District of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council; and Carol Rountree of West Monroe was installed Tuesday as president of the North Louisiana Camera Club.

Other Achievement — Last season's Northeast State Spring Sports Guide was named first place winner in the "duplicated" category of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics brochure contest. The publication is edited by Bob Anderson, college news bureau assistant.

QUATERNARY

And finally, as you've probably guessed, there's the space for quaternary topics. When that's done, send your column to me for judging. Naturally, there are no prizes — only the prestige of having impressed me — and if it's too good we must destroy it as a threat to our security.

Here are our closing quaternaries:

North Monroe Subdivision residents passed a 10-year, five-mill sewage district maintenance tax Tuesday, by 51-34. The assessment vote was $83,400 to $52,000, favoring the proposition.

Twenty-three building permits were granted during the week, authorizing $256,234 worth of construction. Largest permit was for an $80,000 movie theatre at Eastgate Shopping Center.

Property owners continued a series of Monday meetings, mapping plans, under Chamber of Commerce coordination, for modernization in downtown Monroe.

The World In Focus

Hindsight From Mariner 4

By John Cale

Mariner's Viewpoint

EARLY LAST week, scientists at the Pasadena, California, rocket guidance center tried to explain how a space probe aimed at the planet Mars could have gone slightly off course.

The Mariner 4 spacecraft, unmanned but carrying telephoto equipment geared to go into action during a 30-minute period next July when the machine is near Mars, left its Florida launching pad Saturday, November 28.

As for its somewhat wayward course, the Mariner appeared to have "homed in" on the wrong star. Scientists had hoped its mechanism would lock on Canopus, a star far out in space and some 1,900 times brighter than our sun. But apparently, the spacecraft's sensing device chose another star. Astronomers believe they can make the necessary corrections to put the Mariner on the right track to Mars.

Since most of our space efforts have used the earth as a guidepost, we might consider just what values we would attach to the happenings on our home planet if we were so far out looking back.

THE FACT that the "East-West" conflict is misnamed would become obvious to one riding a satellite only a few hundred miles out in space. It's true that the western nations of Europe and the United States are to the west of the Berlin Wall. But Japan, Australia and other relatively free economies are building up trade and industry to the east of the Moscow-Peking axis. Maybe if we just play our cards right, Brezhnev and Mao Tse-tung are really surrounded and don't know it.

Somber Note

JUST AS there is no real reason for optimism in the "cold war" — whatever the direction of conflict — there is little reason to rejoice over other figures released last week by the National Safety Council.

Traffic accidents in the United States—the world's most prosperous nation — claimed 39,250 lives during the first 10 months of 1964. The toll is up 11 per cent from the similar period last year, and the total number of fatalities for the year expected to rise to the 48,000-mark.

As we see it, this account — more so than our "cold war" diplomacy, the swap-out in the Kremlin, the war on poverty, the student riots in California, the Bobby Baker hearings, or the outcome of the Louisiana Legislature's special session — hits the mood of the times squarely on the head.

IT'S A feeling of haste propelled by a peculiar urgency. Could it be that the majority of Americans have reached a situation of material adequacy only to find that the race to maintain it is nearly suicidal?

U. S. motorists cover vast distances with a scant 5.6 deaths for every 100 million miles. As a matter of fact, the appalling number of deaths from January 1 through October 31 occurred while drivers were covering a total of 699 billion miles. And most of that was traveled for reasons of business or home maintenance.

Baker's Washington

AFTER RESOLVING that he would under no circumstances display a "trigger-happy" attitude during the presidential campaign, Senator Barry Goldwater spoke softly in New Orleans and elsewhere about further investigations of Bobby Baker and other issues that would be delayed until "after the election."

The Arizonan can only be accused of spelling out the letters in a monotone where a few terse, shouted phrases might have served better politically. For last week's hearings before the Senate Rules Committee showed Goldwater at least knew how to spell.

Insurance agent Don B. Reynolds told Senate investigators Tuesday he was the "bagman" for Democratic party payoffs in 1960, including $15,000 for the campaign chest of then Senator Lyndon B. Johnson.

Appearing before the Senate Rules Committee as it resumed its hearings into the Bobby Baker case, Reynolds said he was a go-between in funneling up to $35,000 in excess charges for the D. C. Stadium performance bond to political campaign chests and to individuals.

HE SAID he turned over the $15,000 to Baker for use in the 1960 presidential campaign. At a long hearing that lasted into the early evening, Reynolds, of suburban Silver Springs, Maryland, told of his role in the performance bond that Philadelphia builder Matthew McCloskey needed as part of the contract to build the D. C. Stadium.

Tempers approached the breaking point at the end of the long day.

COMMITTEE COUNSEL McLendon and Committee Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-North Carolina, clashed several times with Senator Curtis and Senator John J. Williams, R-Delaware, who was sitting in on the hearing and who originally broke the Baker case in public.

Sen. Williams

Jordan said the first he had heard of the alleged bond kick-back was when Williams disclosed it on the Senate floor in September.

Williams said he had given the committee several leads on the bond transaction. Somewhat acidly, he apologized for "not being able to develop this case faster."

By the end of the week, McCloskey had taken the stand to deny he had anything to do with the $35,000 that was allegedly kicked back from his company to the 1960 Kennedy-Johnson campaign fund. He said the $35,000 overpayment was a "goof."

Senator Williams walked out of the hearings Thursday when the committee's counsel, L. P. McClendon, accused him of making "absolutely, unalterably untrue statements."

Higher Ideals

WHILE THE Baker investigations in Washington — which could span the Atlantic to bring back party girl Ellen Rometsch from West Germany — point up the more sordid side of high government, there were happenings last week that revealed man's more noble leanings.

The annual Christmas Goodfellows fund opened here, just as such projects began their collections all over the country, and Pope Paul VI boarded a jet for India.

Pope Paul VI

The stated purpose of the Pope's trip to India was the attendance of the Roman Catholic 38th International Eucharistic Conference in Bombay. But the significance extended beyond that with emphasis on the church's program for greater fraternity with non-Catholics of the world.

Poll Tax

ONLY THE most un-reconstructed rebel in the back stretches of Dixie would have thought of such a thing as a poll tax for the Russian delegation to the United Nations last week. The other sentiments of the world, including those of the U. S. State Department officials, seemed determined to favor a Russian vote in the General Assembly even though the Soviet dues are plainly marked "past due."

Strong indications emerged that Russia would accept an Afro-Asian plan for a voluntary U. N. "rescue fund" that could avert a showdown on Russia's right to vote in the General Assembly.

The 60-nation Afro-Asian group backed the plan Thursday in caucus, and called for a moratorium during the current U. N. session on application of article 19 of the U. N. charter.

ARTICLE 19 provides that member nations more than two years behind in their assessments shall lose their assembly vote.

The current U. N. crisis revolves about the insistence of the United States that Russia pay up part of its $52.6 million in arrearages.

However, official U. S. sources said that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, in discussing the crisis with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, had indicated willingness to pay voluntarily into a "rescue fund."

The Afro-Asian plan was to be put before Secretary General Thant by Tewfik Bouattoura of Algeria, chairman of the Afro-Asian group.

BUT BACK IN MOSCOW, Leonid I. Brezhnev, the new head of the Soviet Communist party, Thursday attacked U. S. policy and actions around the world in the sharpest terms since he and Premier Alexei Kosygin succeeded Nikita Khrushchev in the two top jobs.

He charged the United States was "playing with fire" by carrying out air attacks on Communist North Viet Nam.

Yet Gromyko, in more than five and one half hours of discussion with Rusk, has never raised the issue of Viet Nam, nor has he echoed Moscow's blast against the U. S.-Belgian air rescue operation in the Congo.

SOME SOUL-SEARCHING observers were wondering how long U. S. officials could accept talk of "coexistence" from Soviet representatives here while reading strong, anti-American statements beamed to the rest of the world from the Kremlin.

Free Speech Outlets

THE ISSUE of free speech on the campus made the news last week all the way from Baton Rouge to Berkeley, California.

At LSU, the term was applied to the name of a nook on the campus, "Free Speech Alley." This is apparently the location of a Monday afternoon forum within the confines of the university's new student union, which was built in a picturesque hollow on the campus.

There are now some 16,000 students at Baton Rouge of various political complexions, and Dr. James Reddoch, dean of student services, says "educational institutions should have an outlet for student views."

PRESIDENT CLARK KERR of the University of California at Berkeley might not agree. The "Free Speech Movement" there mushroomed into far more last week than the Monday afternoon forums at the LSU student union.

In fact, the University of California faced the threat of a general strike Friday because of the arrests of 801 "free speech" demonstrators who staged a 12-hour sit-in at the campus administration building.

The demonstration, described by California Gov. Edmund G. Brown as anarchy, climaxed a two-month dispute between university officials and leaders of the Free Speech Movement over the promotion of off-campus political causes at the university.

The dispute exploded October 1-2 when students surrounded a police car on the campus for 32 hours. The car contained an arrested FSM leader, and the demonstrators severely damaged the vehicle by using it as a speakers' rostrum.

Brown ordered the arrests of the sit-ins at Sproul Hall early Thursday. His orders were carried out by a force of more than 500 police, sheriff's deputies and highway patrolmen.

"We're not going to have anarchy in the state of California while I'm governor," Brown said.

AN ARMY of police dragged rag-limp students out of the littered corridors of the administration building on the Berkeley campus, and hauled them to jails in buses.

MARIO SAVIO, 21, a philosophy major who moved to California from New York City, led the demonstrators in their demands for unrestricted freedom to recruit members and collect funds anywhere on campus for off-campus political activities.

Some 1,500 faculty members, meeting in an emergency session Thursday, called for "complete amnesty" for the arrested demonstrators and requested the ouster of University Chancellor Edward W. Strong from his post as chief campus officer at Berkeley.

"Seizure of the building had nothing to do with free speech, and the F.S.M. knew it," President Kerr said.

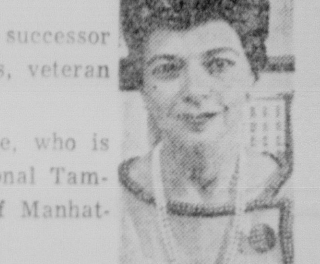
"This protest has never been over free speech," he said. "There has been and is freedom of speech at the University of California. The protest has been over organizing political action on the campus. This has been granted within the limits of the law."

SOME STUDENTS released on bail made charges of police brutality. But law enforcement officers said the only injuries were those inevitable in the job of lifting, carrying and arresting limp or struggling bodies.

Party Discipline

BOSS TWEED, legendary ruler of Tammany Hall, would have flipped in his grave if he'd known who has been in charge of his old territory since last month. Not only was the acting leader of the New York County Democratic Committee a woman, but a very feminine one at that.

When County Leader Edward N. Costikyan resigned shortly after the national election, he asked Charlotte Spiegel to perform his duties until a new leader was elected.



Mrs. Spiegel

Thursday, Tammany chose a successor to Costikyan, J. Raymond Jones, veteran Democratic leader in Harlem.

Mrs. Spiegel, a petite brunette, who is the very opposite of the traditional Tammany image, remains as one of Manhattan's 66 district leaders.

About her temporary leadership of the Democratic organization, she says with a laugh: "The old Tammany bosses would be completely scandalized."

MEANWHILE, Liberal Democrats in the House believe they now have enough votes to purge from the party two southern congressmen who supported Senator. Barry M. Goldwater for president.

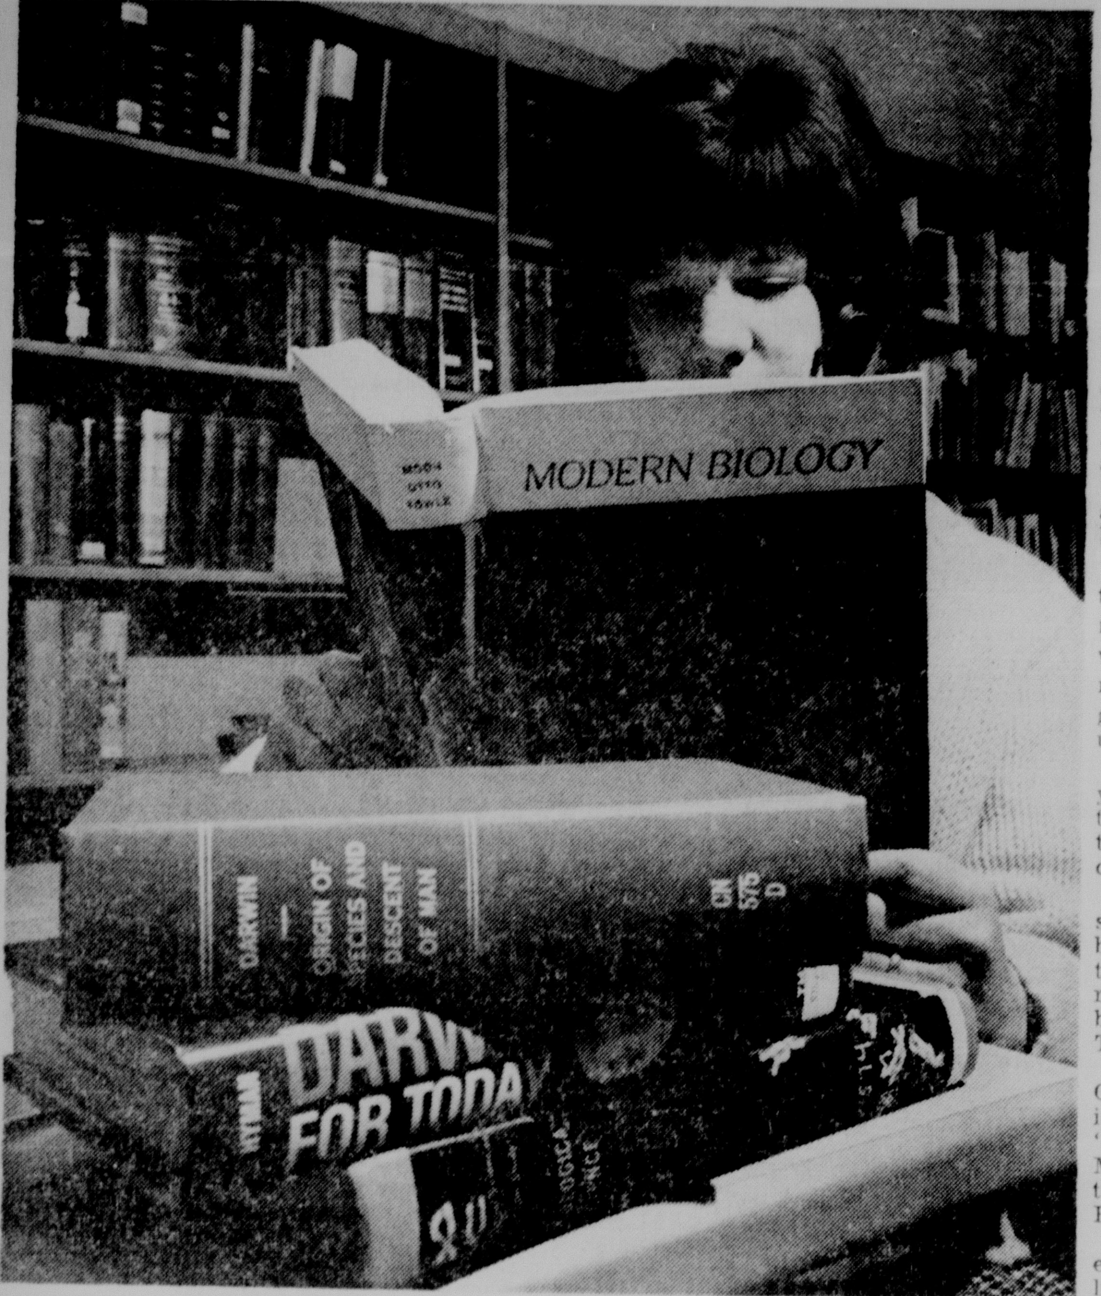
Key members of the liberal-oriented Democratic study group held a strategy session behind closed doors Thursday. They said afterward that they would go ahead with plans to discipline the two defectors, Representatives John Bell Williams, D-Mississippi, and Albert W. Watson, D-South Carolina, at a caucus of all House Democrats January 2.

"We are satisfied we have a majority," said Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-New Jersey, spokesman for the six members who attended the meeting in the office of Representative John A. Blatnik, D-Minnesota. Blatnik is chairman of the study group.

The party discipline, if sustained by the Democratic caucus, would hit Williams hardest because it would mean loss of his seniority. An 18-year House veteran, he is Number-two man on the House Commerce Committee and could become its chairman eventually if he is not deprived of his party status. Watson, who was just elected to his second term, has little to lose in seniority.

If Darwin Only Knew

'Monkey Trial' Fight Goes On



A CENTURY PLUS five years after he published his book on the theory of evolution, Charles Robert Darwin still is under attack. In most states in the U.S., public school students can study the books on which sophomore Dede Voder is working in the library of the high schools at Hastings on Hudson, N.Y. But laws bar books on Darwinism in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi, and efforts to bar them keep popping up in several other states. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

By DON MCKEE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Darwin's theory of the origin of man, sometimes called survival of the fittest, has survived more than a century of controversy and its use in American public schools is spreading.

But there still is plenty of disagreement about his theory being the fittest.

The latest attacks on evolution textbooks have been mounted by a California housewife team, an Arizona Baptist minister and a Texas church group. Their efforts have been unsuccessful thus far.

Darwin marches on. Only this year South Carolina was added to the states that permit his theory to be taught to school children.

Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi still have laws on the books barring Darwinism from the classrooms, but they are not rigidly enforced. There have been moves in Arkansas and Tennessee to repeal the laws.

It began 105 years ago. Charles Robert Darwin, a British naturalist, published a book, "On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection, or the Preservation of Favoured Races in the Struggle for Life."

Darwin's conclusion that man evolved very slowly from lower life forms came under heavy fire. The controversy resulted in the famed "monkey trial" in Dayton, Tenn., in 1925. John Scopes, a young biology teacher, was convicted and fined $100 for violating Tennessee's anti-evolution law, enacted that same year.

That trial, one of the most famous of this century, brought face-to-face two of the great lawyers and orators of the day — Clarence Darrow for the defense and William Jennings Bryan.

More recent attacks on Darwinism and related evolutionary theories have aimed at requiring the theories be labeled as such or that the biblical version of the creation be taught also.

An attempt to put the issue before Arizona voters failed last July. Leading the fight for legislation on the subject was the Rev. Aubrey Moore of Phoenix, a Southern Baptist minister.

"The teaching of evolution contradicts God's words as related in the Book of Genesis," he said. His proposal would require teaching of the Genesis version with the evolutionary theory.

Moore proposed a fine of $100 to $500 and revocation of a teacher's certificate for violating the law.

Some other clergymen agreed, including Dr. David C. Hass, pastor of the North Phoenix Baptist church. He said: "If evolution is taught simply as a theory, I see nothing wrong with it, but this is not the case. It is being taught as a fact — a fact contradictory to the Bible."

Others disagreed. The Rev. Edward A. Sheldon, pastor of Faith Evangelical Lutheran church in Phoenix said: "To ban the teaching of evolution in the schools is to say that you cannot have any teaching except what you believe."

Moore tried to get the 54,876 signatures necessary on petitions to get his proposal before the voters, but he failed. He said he had not given up, however, in fighting evolution.

In Texas, legislative action might be attempted also to curb Drawinism.

Evangelist Reuel Lemmons of the Church of Christ, leading the fight, attacked three proposed high school biology textbooks as atheistic:

Evolution, Lemmons said, "is not only anti-God and anti-Bible, it is also unscientific, anti-religious and anti-moral." He said it might be necessary to seek legislation.

The textbooks are "High School Biology," published by Rand McNally; "Biological Science: an inquiry into life," Harcourt, Brace and World, and "Biological Science: Molecule to Man," Houghton Mifflin Co.

The State Board of Education, by a 14 to 6 vote, has cleared all three of them for state use, and two others as well: "Modern Biology," Holt, Rinehart & Winston, and "Biological Science for High School," Ginn & Co.

Lemmons said the textbooks were either up for adoption or had been adopted in all 50 states and he predicted there would be a protest movement by parents.

NO SUCCESS

Two California housewives have been fighting for several years to label Darwinism as a theory—without success.

"Religious children, like others, are entitled to equal protection under the law," said one of the women, Nell J. Segraves, 41, of Santa Ana. She is a Baptist. Her companion in the battle is Jean E. Sumrall, 36, of Costa Mesa, a Lutheran.

They said they have no objection to evolution being taught as a theory. But they said it should not be presented as a fact.

Last January, State School Supt. Max Rafferty asked the State Board of Education to agree with the housewives. He said this should be done in consideration for the feelings of persons who did not accept evolution.

The board unanimously rejected his proposal.

The motion to reject it was offered by Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy of Los Angeles, a board member.

"I don't think it is a matter of a person's faith," he said. "It would be wrong for anyone to be propagandizing a special view in the schools on how man began. But the Department of Education has investigated and found that isn't happening."

A bill supporting the position of the housewives was introduced in the 1963 session of the California Legislature. It died quietly in committee.

There has been little controversy in other states.

When a Tennessee lawmaker, State Sen. Carter Patten of Chattanooga, failed to get support for a repeal of the anti-evolution law four years ago, he dropped the idea.

Of his colleagues, he said: "If they want to be the laughing-stock of the whole country, let them do so."

An Arkansas legislator, Mrs. Willie Oates, introduced a repealer of her state's anti-evolution statute in 1959. Rural lawmakers raised such a howl, mostly in jest, that she withdrew the bill.

A squabble over Darwinism developed four years ago in Washington State when an official of the Office of Public Instruction attacked the teaching of evolution. He later resigned and nothing came of the dispute.

In Utah, evolution is taught as a theory. Among the other states, North Dakota apparently is the only one where the Darwinian theory is not taught, although there is no law against it.

USUAL RULE

Generally, in the United States, the practice of Pennsylvania schools apparently is followed. Dr. Richard A. Gibboney of the Department of Public Instruction said Darwinism "is taught as part of the life sciences and this is carefully done without a point of view expressed." This, he said, is an educationally sound approach.

Meanwhile, the dispute over "the preservation of favoured races in the struggle for life" goes on.

Vacation Behind The Curtain

By PRESTON GROVER

PRAGUE (AP) — If you want to take a vacation behind the Iron Curtain, Czechoslovakia is an easy place to do it.

You won't feel much cloak and dagger atmosphere, although you can count on it, the police are keeping a fairly close eye on you. But they don't seem to do much about it. The cloak and dagger thrill of a trip behind the Iron Curtain is largely gone, even in the Soviet Union, so long as you stay in the main cities.

Here, unlike other places behind the curtain, you just drive up to the frontier and they will give you a visa for as many days as you want to tour. If you come by plane, you get your visa on arrival at the airport. It is that simple.

The official rate of exchange is 7 crowns to the dollar, but you forget all about that from the beginning. When you come in you are required to buy crowns equal to $4 a day for each day you expect to stay. For these the rate is 14 to the dollar.

After that, all money you change brings 28 crowns to the dollar and that means easy going. A big room in a first class hotel — and there are some fine ones — costs $3.50 a day and your meals for the most part will be under $2 each. (A good meal in Paris costs almost two days of living in Prague.)

If you feel lonesome, you can drop into the Hotel Aleron for dinner and the chances are the orchestra will be playing its favorite medley, a string of songs which have made generations of Americans cry in their beer.

On one evening I recorded the following, in one unbroken burst:

"Oh Say Goodbye to Mother," "Yankee Doodle," "Old Black Joe," "Listen to the Mocking Bird," "When You and I Were Young Maggie," then a hoedown I couldn't put a name to, "Swanee River," "Nearer My God to Thee" — honest injun, they played it — "My Old Kentucky Home," "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," "Dixie," "Anchors Aweigh," "The Caissons Keep Rolling Along."

There are some European oddities you will have to get used to, but painlessly. You sleep under an eiderdown cover six inches thick which looks as if it would smother you. It won't. The bath towels are so big it is like drying yourself with a wall-to-wall carpet.

Prague is a city built by kings for the benefit of Socialists. Almost everything is on a massive scale except the streets. They are so narrow in places you can't even ride a bicycle into them without skinning your knuckles. There is a reason for that. Years ago all the great nobles had to build houses as close as they could to the royal palace on the main hill above the River Moldau.

With so many nobles there had to be many big houses and that left little room for streets.

One of the nicest walks you can take is to start from the palace on the hill and stroll back to your hotel. It will be a couple of miles or more, what with backtracking from dead-end streets, but you will see some of the finest architecture in Europe, and some of the most colossal foundations any place. They built big, those Czechs.

If you get lost, you are bound to find somebody who will put you on the right road. People speak more German than English, and they are continuing to study it as a main language along with Russian, despite five years of Nazi occupation. But they are good at sign language. If you name your hotel, they will know where it is.

Don't look for taxis. There are only 350 in the whole city of a million population. In Bratislava, there are just 50 for a population of 260,000. Cars are scarce and expensive. It takes more than two years full earnings of a skilled mechanic to buy a little Skoda.

But with your low-priced crowns you can rent a car and driver for the day without too much pain, three crowns — 10 cents — a mile and 8 crowns an hour — about 30 cents — for waiting time.

Prague wasn't shot up by the war so almost everything is intact, including that famous clock which attracts crowds every hour. On the hour, every hour, it chimes the time, parades the 12 Apostles in front of a window, and repeats the age-old ceremony of death beckoning to a priest, a wastrel and a warrior, each of whom shakes his stony head in refusal. Then a cock crows.

You won't see many of the signs that decorate Moscow and East Berlin urging you to march onward to the victory of communism. The only sign I saw was in the Skoda automobile plant, urging the workers to work for the glory of the Skoda works.

The place is alive with night clubs open to 3 or 4 a.m. and Wenceslas Square, the town center, is almost as bright as Broadway. One night spot there, the Alhambra, gives a leggy show with American music. In another "off Wenceslas" spot, the Olympic, they sing only Beatle songs. Once it became so riotous that the police stepped in and ordered them to keep it quiet or else. Now the teen-agers and twentyers sit, twitching but silent, while singers contort and scream on the stage. At the end they applaud, but no bobby-sox shrieking.

THIS CARTOON from the Egyptian newspaper, Al Ahram, ridicules promises of President Gamal Abdel Nasser that he will roll back prices to the 1961 level. Arab Socialism - - Is It Working?

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

CAIRO (AP) — "In the old days there was no money to buy meat. Now there is no meat."

So goes the jest at Arab socialism in the gossipy coffee houses of Egypt.

The joke is oversimplified. Yet there is a core of truth in it.

The meat shortage is only the most apparent of many foulups.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser's bankroll has never been so thin since he sent King Farouk packing in 1952.

The coffee shops are buzzing with complaints over high prices and shortages. There is suspicion that Communists are reappearing in top posts after a long eclipse. The war in Yemen has been unpopular. There are even attacks on Nasser's expensive devotion to Arab unity.

Housewives, spending hours in lines at cooperative food stores where prices are controlled, grumble as loudly as the men.

For years the controlled newspapers ignored planning failures, often even praising the bureaucrats responsible. The few admitted failures usually were blamed on imperialists, capitalists, reactionaries or what have you. Now, perhaps as a safety valve, the press has been allowed to join in the general criticism.

Opening the current session of his one-party National Assembly, Nasser promised to bring the cost of living down to the 1961 level — the year, incidentally, when he crossed the Socialist Rubicon by nationalising almost everything in sight.

Skeptical

His promise was greeted with skepticism. Impartial experts think the cost of living has gone up 15-20 per cent, perhaps more, since 1961. Most of it falls on the little people who make up the overwhelming majority of Egypt's 28 million people. Without $120 million worth of American wheat each year it would have skyrocketed.

To save money Nasser halted all nonessential government buildings. Overseas travel was made all but impossible. Egyptian diplomats were forced to bank a fourth of their salaries at home. Many attaches were called home. Similar restrictive measures were ordered everywhere hard currency could be saved.

To ease the shortage of food and consumer goods the equivalent of $96 million was set aside, Nasser said, for immediate imports.

By Nasser's own admission he didn't have enough trained people when he began to set up an industrialized welfare state.

Government stastics show he succeeded in increasing employment by a million workers to a total of 7 million in a five-year period. But no plans were made for consumer goods, or even food, that these extra wages would demand. His bureaucracy burgeoned. At the same time he called for greater productivity he shortened the work week. Liberal labor laws encouraged even more the entrenched Egyptian talent for featherbedding.

Nasser began to borrow from some banks to pay others. The burden of debt, which is secret, mounted. Western economists say it can go no higher without disrupting, perhaps fatally, the industrial hopes of the regime.

Pledge

The present crisis can be traced, in retrospect, to 1955 when Nasser pledged a third of his cotton crop in continuing payments for Soviet arms. This was bearable but left Nasser little room to maneuver.

Nasser's aides are confident the present crisis will ease by the first of next year. However, government economies announced so far fall far short of the belt tightening that will be required.

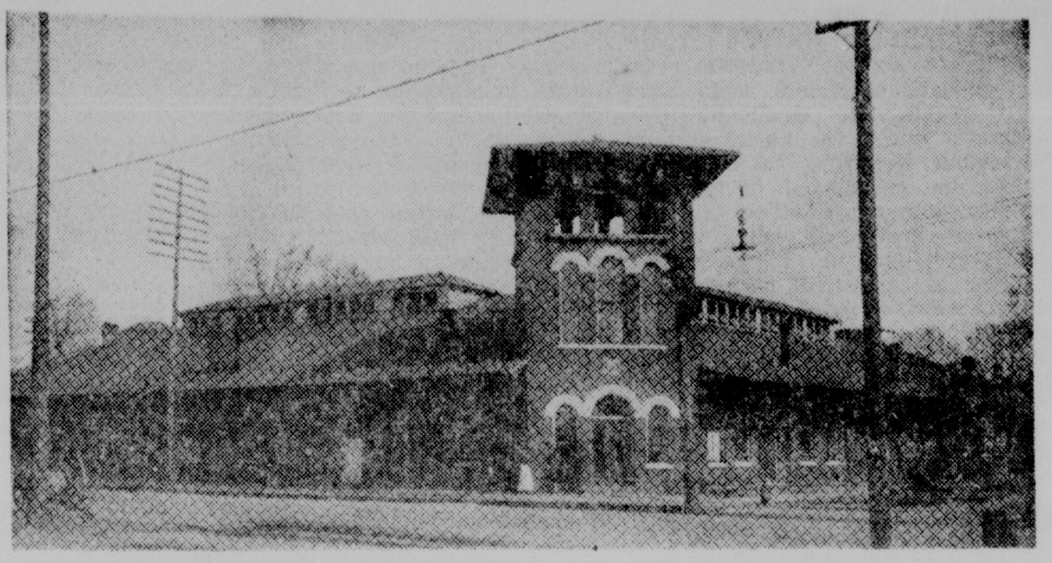
SCENES of YESTERYEAR

. . . in the Twin Cities



OLD CITY MARKET, which was located at the corner of DeSiard and Catalpa in Monroe, was erected prior to 1890. In its heyday it served as the major congregating place for shoppers of the area. Besides produce, a restaurant and butcher shops were also located in the building. Albert Marx, who came to Monroe in 1894, said that in the old days his father would go by the city market on his way to work and purchase meat and produce. Then Albert would pick these up and carry them home in a wagon. He said most everyone used this type system. He also remembers the old style wooden ice boxes, containing huge blocks of ice, used at the market to store perishable foods. There were no shopping carts, rows of canned goods, stacks of frozen foods and other conveniences of the supermarket of today. The old city market was rebuilt in about 1900. Later partitions were taken out and it served as the city barn to house street cars. After that, the building was torn down and a new one erected in its place, now the site of People's Homestead and Savings Association. If you have an interesting picture depicting scenes of yesteryear, bring them by or send them to the Morning World with all available information.

Worries Over Higher Interest Rates Easing

NEW YORK (AP) — A move toward higher interest rates had bankers, businessmen and investors sitting on the edge of their chairs during the week.

However, nervousness abated markedly after President Johnson urged holding the price line on money and a leading bank rescinded a one-fourth per cent increase in a key rate.

The worry was that steepened borrowing charges — if they spread far enough — might slow down the fast-striding economy by discouraging business — and eventually consumer — spending based on credit.

When the First National Bank of Boston dropped its "prime" rate for blue chip business loans back to 4½ per cent, the stock market rallied briskly on Thursday. The market ended a six-day losing streak the day before.

The bond market also snapped out of a prolonged slump. Financial men clearly were betting on interest rate stability.

The stock market took its sharpest nosedive in a year on Tuesday after the Boston bank, ranking 16th nationally, stepped up its prime rate to 4¾ per cent.

With the economy's expansion in its 45th month, two of its star performers — steel and autos — shattered production records with a flourish.

On Thursday, the nation's bustling mills pushed the volume of raw steel poured in 1964 past the 117-million-ton mark, eclipsing the industry high for a full year set in 1955.

Output by Dec. 31 was expected to climb beyond 125 million tons for a rousing breakthrough in an industry that fell shy of the 100-million level five years in a row, 1958 through 1962.

Automakers, seeking to recover ground lost by strikes, raced toward a weekly target of 223,000 assemblies and set sights for all of December on 853,000 units. Never before had totals exceeded 200,000 for a week or 800,000 for a month.

Sales were reported running strong in the final third of November. However, for the full month they trailed the pace of a year ago because of strike-depleted car supplies.

After allowance for auto strike effects in some cases, latest readings on various economic barometers reflected continued strength.

New factory orders in October — when General Motors was struck — were off only 1 per cent from September. Revised figures by the Commerce Department showed durable goods bookings slipped only 2 per cent instead of 5.

Construction contract awards on a seasonably adjusted basis showed a second consecutive monthly gain — although they were 7 per cent below the near-record level of October 1963.

Retail sales were up 7 per cent in the pre-Thanksgiving week, and there was widespread optomism that Christmas business would soar to unprecedented heights.

On the other side of the ledger were international financial difficulties dramatized by Britain's struggle to defend the pound sterling, high domestic unemployment and smimering inflationary influences.

These problems were singled out by President Johnson in a private midweek talk to the Business Council. Council members number many of the country's leading corporation executives.

On the wage-price stability horizon, demands of the United Steel Workers Union in forthcoming contract negotiations with steel producers loomed increasingly important.

USW top policy echelons resolved in Pittsburgh to shoot for a substantial wage increase, liberalized pensions and local grievance-handling procedures that producers said might add significantly to costs.

Soybean Prices Hit New Highs

CHICAGO (AP) — Prices for soybean futures soared past the $3 mark on the board of trade last week for the first time in more than a year.

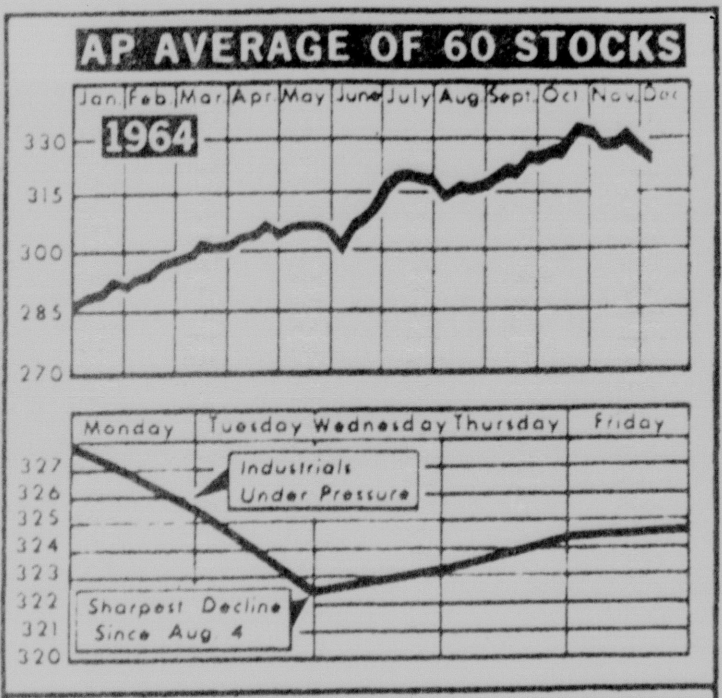
After several days of declines, soybeans rallied at midweek, making new highs for the season on several days, and finished with gains ranging up to nearly five cents a bushel for the period.

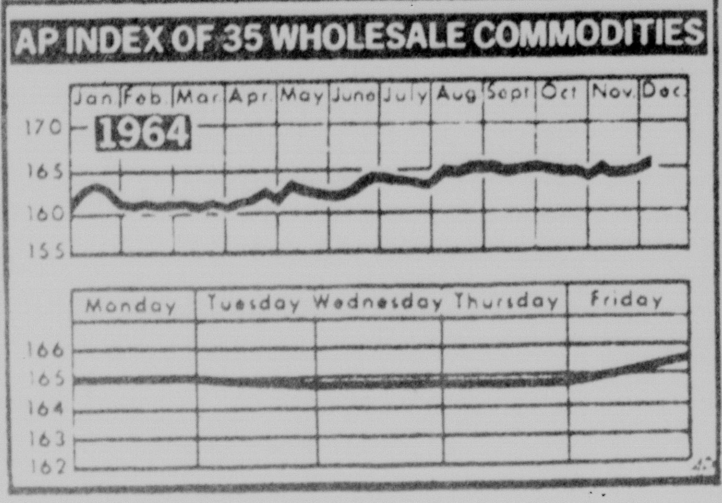
Wheat, rye and oats ended the week lower, and corn mostly lower.

At the close of trading Friday, soybeans were 2¾ to 4¾ cents a bushel higher than a week ago. Wheat finished 2 to 3⅛ cents lower, corn ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, oats ½ to 1¼ cents lower and rye was down 1 to 2¼ cents.

May soybeans climbed to $3 Thursday and to $3.00¾ Friday but were unable to hold that level, slipping back to under $3 late Friday. July soybeans rose to $3.00¼ Friday, then receded a point or so at the close.

Taras Shevchenko was banished to Central Asia by Imperial Russia and died in 1861. He has been called the 'Abraham Lincoln of the Ukraine."





THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined sharply for the second week, closing Friday at 324.7 from 327.9 a week ago. The commodity index advanced for the second week, closing at 165.6, up from 165.0. Livestock showed the largest gain. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Stocks Take Sharp Losses Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Worry over the monetary situation sent the stock market last week to one of its biggest losses in a year.

It was a carryover from the previous week, when Britain, the United States and Canada increased their bank discount rates.

Tighter money indicated to investors that there might be a disruption of the U.S. economic expansion.

Apprehension over money matters, combined with anxiety over a drop in October construction contracts and the possibility of a steel strike, caused the market to take a substantial loss on Monday.

On Tuesday Boston's First National Bank raised its prime rate—the interest charged to the biggest borrowers with the best credit ratings. This upset Wall Street and the Dow Jones industrial average plunged 11 points in the biggest drop since President Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963.

The drop in the Dow industrials took the average below the lowest level of the September-November trading range. Market technicians took an ominous view of this development.

Wednesday night, President Johnson, addressing a group of business men in Washington, urged that the increase in the prime rate not be spread from the scattered institutions which already had raised it. He also called for cooperation between government and business.

The market Wednesday snapped a six-day losing streak Brokers called the moderate advance merely a technical rebound from an oversold condition.

On Thursday the First National Bank of Boston rescinded its prime rate boost and the market posted another moderate gain.

The market's rall almost ran out of steam on Friday but managed to barely stay alive.

Bond prices advanced sharply last week as the federal government moved to stabilize the nation's money markets.

On the New York Stock Exchange trading volume totaled a par value of $46.335 million, compared to the previous week's $30.08 million—a total reduced by the Thanksgiving holiday.

Thieving Cupid Freed From Jail! Boyfriend Pays

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A girl who played Cupid with stolen money was out of jail Saturday because her boyfriend paid it back.

No charges will be pressed against Patricia Ann Kremer, 19, Evansville, who spent several hours behind bars Friday after it was learned she mailed four $100 bills to Gary Bugg, 20, so they could get married.

Bugg informed a local newspaper of his mystery windfall and officials at the department store where Miss Kremer worked noted $500 missing and put two and two together.

The girl also admitted sending $100 to a garage to pay for repairs on Bugg's car.

Miss Kremer told police she and Bugg planned to marry last October but postponed the wedding because of the youth's debts.

But Bugg didn't use the mailed money to get married. He made arrangements to buy a new car.

Completion Seen On Project In Caldwell Parish

During his area ministry he appeared for some five years on a radio program, "The Country Church of the Air."

Stories Vary On Places Christ Visited

GLASTONBURY, England (AP) — Crumbling stone walls probe the English sky and mark the spot where some men say Christ walked.

The ruined abbey here harbors other exciting traditions. King Arthur and Queen Guinevere are said to be buried under the carpet of grass that now grows around pillars of what was a vast cathedral.

There is little doubt that Glastonbury is the oldest religious foundation in Britain. Archeological evidence indicates the presence more than 2,000 years ago of a Celtic pagan temple.

The Somerset town's early history is an irresolvable mixture of legend and fact. It starts with Joseph of Arimathea, believed to have been the Virgin Mary's uncle. He was a merchant bearing tin from Britain to Phoenicia.

VIEWPOINTS

Several independent south England oral tales agree in saying that when Jesus of Nazareth was a young boy, before he proclaimed himself the son of God and began his ministry, he came to Britain with Joseph and stayed briefly at Glastonbury.

Convention Report Heard By Council

A report on the national convention in Washington of the National Council of Catholic Women was given at the recent meeting of the Monroe Deanery Council at St. Joseph's Parish in Bastrop.

Giving the report was Miss Magdalen Amman, president of the Deanery Council. The theme of the convention was "Vatican, Council II and You."

"The national president of NCCW was a lay observer at Vatican Council II, and precedent was broken by having women present at the deliberations of an ecumenical council," Miss Amman told the group.

PROFESSING FAITH

Mrs. Malcolm Smith, chairman of the Spiritual Development Committee, introduced the Rev. Richard Lombard, who discussed "A Catholic Professing Her Faith."

He called attention to the words of the Bible, "A man does not light a candle and hide it under a bushel."

"Our light (our beautiful faith) should shine forth," he continued, "and should radiate from us and so reach others."

PRACTICAL WAYS

He gave at least two concrete practical ways of professing Catholic faith, as grace before meals when dining in public, and not being embarrassed about not eating meat on Friday.

The council presented a beautiful Advent wreath to Rev. Gustave Bergeron of Sacred Heart Parish, Rayville, noting the 16th anniversary of his ordination.

News Briefs In Religion

From now until Christmas, men and women in 131 nations will be reading the same passage of the Bible each day.

The annual Worldwide Bible Reading Program, now in its 21st year, is sponsored by the American Bible Society. Its purpose is to forge a spiritual bond between Christians of all nations, races and denominations, and to encourage daily reading of the scriptures.

The American Bible Society has distributed more than 15 million bookmarks containing the reading list of daily selections. Single copies of the bookmark may be obtained without charge from the society's headquarters at 450 Park Avenue, New York.

The document on Christian unity adopted recently by the Vatican Ecumenical Council permits Catholics under certain circumstances to take part in joint worship services with members of other churches.

In one of the first applications of the new rule, Catholics and Episcopolians at Harvard University held a joint service at Christ Episcopal Church in Cambridge, Mass. The ecumenical service consisted of hymns, anthems, prayers, scripture readings and homilies by Episcopal Bishop Anson P. Stokes and Catholic Auxiliary Bishop Thomas J. Riley.

ANOTHER GESTURE

From the war-shattered Congo comes word of another ecumenical gesture that would have been inconceivable a few years back. When rebel forces seized Stanleyville, the faculty and students of a Protestant college fled to Leopoldville for safety. They were taken in by a Catholic university there. The Protestant institution is now sharing the classrooms, laboratory facilities, library, and dormitories of the Catholic university.

Church School Shows Increase

All but 14 of the students are from Alaska, meaning that the university is serving the higher education needs of the forty-ninth state and helping to train leaders for Alaska's future officials said. The faculty this year numbers 26 full - time, and 15 part - time professors.

STS. CONSTANTINE AND HELEN GREEK ORTHODOX

Church Established Here To Increase Effective Ministry To Community

In 1952 a major decision was made to build a Greek Orthodox Church in Monroe to serve more effectively those in the area who until that time were communicants of the neighboring Greek Orthodox Church of Shreveport.

The Rev. Fr. Demetrios N. Sakellarides, now pastor of Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, 2005 Forsythe Ave., Monroe, in commenting on the beginning of the church here, said, ". . The great decision was taken to build a Greek Orthodox Church in Monroe for constant, better and more effective service to the parishioners and their families, of the 150 Greeks and a few Syrians, then residing in Monroe, Alexandria, Ruston and Winnsboro.

"With the blessings of the archdiocese and the official center of the state and with the assistance and spiritual guidance of the late Rev. Vasilios Markopoulos, a financial campaign was started by a committee consisting of Messrs. Gus Primos, Gus Kokinos, Gust Terzolas, Angelos Kanellos, James Nicholson, Spiro Talauilas, Mrs. Demetra T. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Jackson. Of course, all the Greeks of the area helped considerably, one way or another, and in a few months the sacred cause was a reailty."

Continuing, Fr. Sakellarides said, "On the 300 by 300 feet of ground on Forsythe Ave., this beautiful church was built, in Byzantine rhythm, completely furnished and decorated. A few years later the parsonage was added. These quick and miraculous results of the campaign are the indication of an unshakeable faith, fiery energy, benevolent cooperation and help of the entire citizenry of this city and tri - state area."

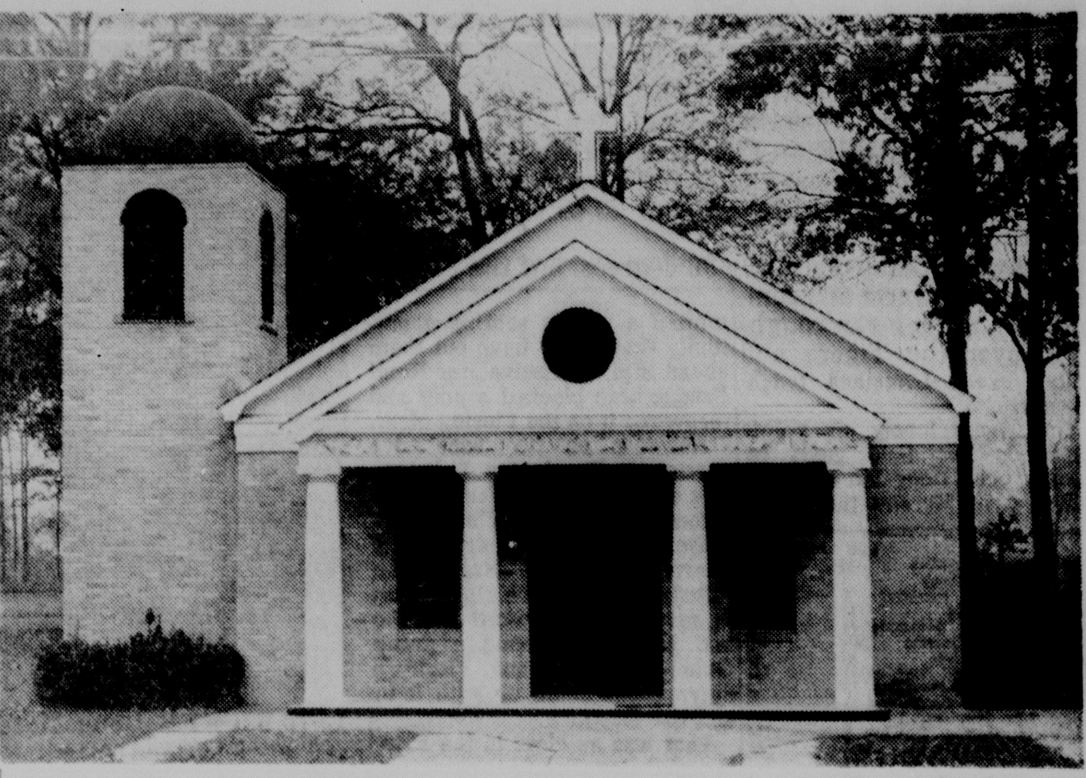
Between the years of 1952 and October 1, 1963, the community was served spiritually by priests, Revs. Markopoulos, Leon, and Economos.

In September of last year, on the event of the resignation of Fr. Economos, the Church General Assembly following the recommendations of Bishop Amphipolis Silas, residing in New Orleans, decided to ask the assignment of protopresbyter, Rev. Fr. Sakellarides, to the church here.

Rev. Sakellarides is a graduate of Halki Patriarchal Theological School of Constantinople, a linguist who enriched his theological and encyclopedical knowledge during his 40 years in this country. He was ordained in 1935 by the Archbishop of America (since 1948 Ecumenical Patriarch Athenagora). He served churches in Wheeling, W. Va.; Pittsburg, Pa.; Birmingham, Ala.; Baltimore, Md., and Steubenville, Ohio.

In October, he and his wife, Eulalia, celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary.

Assisting in the spiritual growth of the community, said Rev. Sakellarides, are the Greek Afternoon School, the Sunday School, the Ladies Society, the AHEPA chapter No. 347, church bulletin, religious books, booklets, leaflets, the Divine Liturgy (part of it and the sermons in English).



Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, 2005 Forsythe Ave.

Rev. Sakellarides provided this background on the Greek Orthodox Church of America:

The Greek Orthodox Churches of Europe, Asia, Australia, and America, are called "Churches of Dispersion" (Disapora). According to the decision of the Fourth Ecumenical Synod, all of these churches are under the jurisdiction of the Ecumenical Patriarchate.

Beginning in 1864, Greeks emigrated to America for work, at first a few, later by thousands. Greeks have always followed religion. They began to establish communities by themselves. The priests were sent from Constantinople and Greece. The first Greek Church was formed in New Orleans in 1865 by Greek merchants.

One - hundred years later the Greek Orthodox Diocese of North and South America has 1,500,000 faithful; 15 bishops, 430 communities, 500 clergymen, one theological school, one Greek teachers college, one orphanage, two institutions for the aged, a Ladies Philantropic Society with 400 chapters, junior and senior youth associations (G. O. Y. A.) with 350 chapters each, 500 Greek afternoon parochial schools with 550 teachers, 17 Greek day schools with 200 teachers and professors. Of course, we find also about 30 lay societies, the largest of which is the order of AHEPA (American - Hellenic - Educational - Progressive Association) with membership of over 75,000 and 800 chapters (for men, women, girls, and boys). Persons of Greek descent who are affiliated with the church in America come from the many fields of major endeavor.

The present Ecumenical Patriarch Athenagoras, was the second archbishop of the Archdiocese of America (1930 - 48). The present archbishop is His Emminence, Most Rev. Iakovos. After his inauguration in February, 1959, he began working to inform others of the value of Orthodoxy, Greek civilization, and the contribution of Greek Americans to the country. He is a graduate of Halki Greek Theological School and Harvard University. He also is recipient of many honorary degrees, and has served as a president of the World Council of Churches and as moderator of the Federation of all the Orthodox Churches of America. Fr. Iakovos praised the movement for church unity, saying, "It is vital for christians to close ranks and join hands and together combat the dangers of atheism which have crept into the structures of our free society."

On Americanism, he said, "Americanism is a civilization itself. It has never identified itself with a certain religion America is not a homogeneous, but a pluralistic nation. It is unique in that there is ample room for all here to live together and promote human dignity."

BY METHODIST BOARD

Needs Are Cited In Mission Field

The Methodist Board of Missions, making its annual announcement of needs for special - term missionaries, said that new frontiers in the mission of the church call for qualified, dedicated young men and women to offer themselves for service at home and overseas under The Methodist Church in 1965.

Since many college seniors and other potential special-term missionaries are now making decisions as to what they will do next year, the Board has announced its need for 40 U. S.-2s and about 60 overseas 3s. The U. S.-2s will give two years of missionary service in the United States, and the 3s will serve three years in overseas mission fields on three continents.

"In 1965 the need is great for committed young Christians to fill missionary posts as 3s and U. S.-2s," the Board of Missions said. "These posts are of vital importance in the carrying-out of the mission to which God is calling the church in these troubled times."

SPECIAL EMPHASIS

Again in 1965 there will be a special emphasis in the overseas special - term missionary program. Though it is not now possible to announce the exact form which this emphasis will take, the Board said, the place for special endeavor will be Latin America. In 1964 the place of special emphasis was the Congo. In response to the call for a mobile task force of 15 young single men, 16 volunteered and were accepted by the Board of Missions. They are now in Belgium studying in final preparation for going to the Congo.

In 1965 there is special need and opportunity in Latin America for three-year missionaries, both men and women. The Board said plans are being studied by which small groups of special-termers who, after adequate preparation, would be placed in situations where the rapidity of social change calls for new forms of Christian witness. It is likely there will be opportunities for work in both rural and urban settings.

LONG TENURE

The special - term program has been a part of Methodism's over - all missionary endeavor for 17 years. It began in 1948 when the call first went out for 3s to serve in mission fields overseas. Since then 903 young persons have served as overseas special - termers. The U.S.-2 program began in 1951 and has enlisted 375 young persons under its banner.

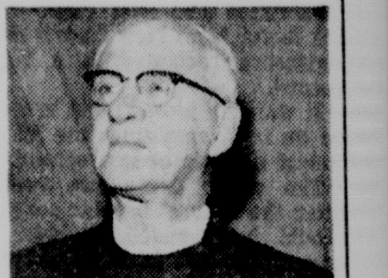
The U. S.-2s will serve under the National Division of the Board, which is responsible for Methodist home missions and church extension work in the United States. The 3s will serve under the World Division, which is responsible for all overseas mission work of The Methodist Church.

Qualifications for special-term missionary service remain high, the Board said, and include the following:

Religious experience and knowledge of God through Jesus Christ; a conviction of the world's need for Christ and a genuine desire to share one's faith and to minister to the needs of others; college graduation; age between 21 and 28; good health and emotional stability, checked by medical examination and psychological appraisal; agreement to remain single during the term of service; membership in The Methodist Church (with some exceptions made).

THE GREEK ORTHODOX CHURCH

Religion, the teacher of man's true mission in life.



Rev. Sakellarides, Pastor Sts. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, Monroe

Today, more than ever before, this turbulent world needs the life-giving warmth of fraternal love, because everywhere we see the brotherhood of man receding beyond the horizon; but it is not possible for anybody to pursue love or peace by doing wrong, scorning, or hating others. Just as holy love, likewise true peace always has the elements of a pure heart and brotherly affection, while Satanic arrogance cannot be reconciled with a pure and honest peace.

The most important, lofty, and interesting knowledge for a human being is the knowledge of his mission in life, his predestination which is taught properly by religion and not by our individual fantastic and arbitrary thoughts and invention. One of the aims of religion is to keep the idea of right and wrong, the conscience and common - sense of man alive, through the frequent preaching of the Word of God, through proper and impressive ceremonies of worship and thanksgiving.

Christ, the God - sent teacher: The Word of God is Christ, to whom all his followers express their admiration and confess their own faith, saying with Nicodemus, "We know you are a God-sent teacher." The nobelest of all institutions is Christ's Church and deserves the support of all. Paul, in a farewell address to the Church of Ephesus, said to the officers: "Take heed, therefore, unto yourselves and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made overseers, to feed the Church of God, which He hath purchased with His Own Blood."

The Church, A Divine Institution; Christ Its Head: The Church is no cheap institution. It offers the richest blessings and service of any organization in any city or community. It is a Divine Institution, which continues the work of Christ for the salvation of mankind and embraces all those who believe in Him. The Church represents all that Jesus was and stood for in redemption and service, for He is the Head of the Church. God has planted in the soul of man the religious instinct; so religion is the relation and intercourse between man and God, to Whom the soul instinctively turns as its beginning and ultimate aim.

Christianity, alone, amongst religions, is unalloyed in its truth, blameless in its morality, international and indestructible in its power. Its foundation and extension, moreover, is a miracle which cannot be explained by natural causes.

The Church of God, therefore, is established upon a sure foundation and is the only institution that will stand the stress of truth and satisfy the needs of life and give the direction and preservation to society.

The Greek Orthodox Church: In our church we worship our Lord according to the tenets and dogmas of the very democratically governed Eastern Orthodox Apostolic Church, the historic mother of all the branches of Christianity, in the Greek language, in which our Lord Jesus Christ taught and the Apostles preached and wrote the New Testament. This church, better known as the Greek Church, enabled the Greek race through centuries of foreign domination or National Independence, to survive and preserve its entity, traditions and language. It is estimated that there are about 200 million communicants of the faith throughout the world, of which about five million are in the United States.

Of these, about a million and a half are Greek - Americans, who can be found in every part of the country, and are organized in some 430 communities, recognizing the spiritual leadership of the Archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church of North and South America, residing in New York.

Orthodoxy: The term "Orthodoxy" is used to indicate the immutable conservation of the true Christian Doctrine, as taught by Christ and Apostles, and set forth in Holy Scripture and Holy Tradition, and reinforced and defended by the seven Ecumenical Synods, which have set and regulated the dogma, the laws and Canons of the church during the first nine centuries of the Christian era. In this sense the word is used as early as the second century. The appellation "Orthodoxy" was applied in ancient times to the whole church, but after the Western Chruch separated from the Eastern, it was appropriated by the latter, in as much as it was in the name of this faithfulness that it broke off the connection with the Western Church, which appropriated to itself the name "Catholic."

Since the chief part in the Eastern Church was long taken by the Greek nation, very often, even in official documents, the name "Greek Church" was used as a synonym for "Orthodox Church," but at the present time when out of 16 Orthodox Churches only six are Greek and out of the 200 million Orthodox people all the Greeks number less than 10 million, the appellation has become an anachronism. A more convenient apellation is "Eastern Orthodox so as it denotes her geographical position, and brings out the idea that the "Orthodox" Church does not make up the whole Christian Church.

At present time the churches remaining Greek are The Patriachates of Constantinople, of Alexandria, Egypt, of Jerusalem, and the Churches of Greece, Cyprus Island, and Sinaitic. The others are the Arabic Patriarchate of Antioch, the Slavic and Central European Churches. The Patriarch of Constantinople, His All Holiness, the Archbishop of Constantinople, the New Rome, the Ecumenical Patriarch, has precedence over all Orthodox bishops throughout the world.

Florida Gators Sweep By LSU, 20-6

Moreau's Kicking Only Bright Spot

News-Star—World

BATON ROUGE — Florida swept through Louisiana State with the ease of a Gulf hurricane howling through the marshland for an easy 20 to 6 victory Saturday night.

It was a damp and chilly 36 degrees, but the Florida Gators were warm and comfortable as they ran roughshod over the Tigers and halted every Louisiana touchdown effort.

The Tigers lonely six points came on two field goals by flanker back Doug Moreau. The tallies gave Moreau the Southeastern Conference scoring championship with 73 points and a total of 13 field goals for the season — an all time LSU record.

TIES RECORD

His two boots also tied the national record which was set by Ed Dyers of Auburn.

The loss also knocked the Tigers from second place in the conference and sent them into the Sugar Bowl New Year's day against Syracuse with a 7-2-1 record.

It was the most points scored on an LSU team since the Mississippi debacle of last season.

The game came two weeks after the Tigers' regular season should have ended. It was a game that had been postponed due to Hurricane Hilda back in October.

LSU blew the game early in the first period when the Tigers muffed a golden scoring opportunity that would have put them ahead after defensive star Remi Prudhomme blocked a punt and recovered it on the Florida eight.

However on two successive carries, halfback Joe Labruzzo managed only four yards through the tough Florida defense. Then on the third play quarterback Billy Ezell, who failed to complete a single pass in seven efforts, tossed into the end zone and among a group Gator defenders and Florida's Steve Heidt came up with it to end the threat.

That was as close to the Florida goal line that LSU came the rest of the game as the Tigers spent the last half in their own end of the field most of the time.

Florida was aided greatly by fumbles and pass interceptions, picking off three LSU passes and recovering two fumbles.

In all, the Gators ripped for 12 first downs to 11 for LSU, picked up a total of 257 yards, including 114 via the air lanes, to 189 for LSU. The Tigers picked up only 8 yards completing one of 13 while Florida hit on 9 of 14.

After the missed scoring opportunity, Florida took charge and moved from their own 20 to score.

Halfback Graham McKeel gave a big boost to the drive with a 22 yard burst through the center, while end Charles Casey made a fantastic catch of a pass from quarterback Tom Shannon at the LSU 6 to set up the score.

Three plays later, McKeel went over from the one to put Florida on the scoreboard. Jimmy Hall converted to put the Gators ahead to stay.

In the second period, LSU swarmed back, driving to the Florida two yard line, aided by a 39 yard run by fullback Don Schwab. However, on the third play, Labruzzo lost back to the eight and from that point, Moreau booted a 25 yard field goal to make the score 7 to 3.

That was as close as the Tigers came as Florida roared back primarily on the passing arm of quarterback Steven Spurrier. The climax came when he hit tailback Jack Harper with a 34 yard touchdown pass.

Harper had drifted down and gotten behind the LSU defenders to make an easy catch for the score. Hall again converted.

In the third period, Prudhomme, who was outstanding for the Tigers on defense, gave LSU another chance when he recovered a Florida fumble at the mid field stripe. With the aid of a 15 yard penalty and a 17 yard dash by Schwab, LSU moved to the Florida 14, but couldn't go. From that point Moreau kicked the field goal that gave him the conference scoring championship.

Florida's final touchdown came late in the third period on a drive from their own 30. The Gators moved to the LSU 20 from where it appeared they were going for a field goal.

However, halfback Allen Trammell, the field goal kicker, fooled the Tiger defense. Instead of booting, he passed to Harper who crashed over for the score. Hall failed to convert.

In the final period both quarterback Pat Screen, who barely saw any action until LSU was beaten, and Labruzzo fumbled. Screen fumbled at the Florida 35 and lost it, and Labruzzo fumbled a punt at the LSU 21 two series later.

Apparently the only thing that saved a Florida score on this one was a fumble that was recovered by tackle George Rice.

That was the ballgame as Florida held every LSU effort then played delaying tactics.

In all, Florida ran 62 plays to 54 for the Tigers.

Ironically, the Gators ripped apart a defense that had been ranked second nationally until this game.

Schwab seemingly was the LSU back who could move the ball. He swept through the Florida defense 19 times for 136 yards, while Labruzzo got only 18 and Ezell 14.

Fullback Larry Dupree, who used the LSU line for his private speedway, picked up 80 yards on 22 carries, while McKeel rambled for 25.

In the passing department, Shannon hit on 4 of 7 for 33 yards, and Spurrier 4 of 6 for 61.

Florida A&M Romps Over Grambling 11

MIAMI (UPI) — Halfback Bobby Felts ran for two touchdowns and sprinter Bob Hayes scored another Saturday night to lead Florida A & M to a 42-14 Orange Blossom Classic victory over the second - ranked Grambling Tigers.

The Rattlers' victory before 28,127 rain-soaked fans avenged a 28 - 21 loss to the Louisiana team in their 1955 clash in this annual Negro football classic.

Felts scored on runs of 2 and 26 yards. Hayes' touchdown came on a third - quarter 27-yard pass from quarterback Ernest Hart. Hayes, who won two gold medals in the Tokyo Olympics, also ran for two conversions.

A & M halfback Charles Sutton and substitute quarterback Elroy Morand scored one touchdown each on one-yard plunges. Defensive back Valvin Lang provided the most spectacular play of the night, picking off a pass in the third quarter from Grambling quarterback Michael Howell and carrying it 85 yards to score.

The Tigers' two scores came from a 3 - yard plunge in the first quarter by fullback Henry Dyer, and late in the final period on a 28 - yard Powell pass to end Leonard Griffin to cap a 67 - yard drive.

Three of the Rattlers's scores were set up by the defensive unit. A&M scored the first time it got its hands on the ball. Powell fumbled on his own 7, and Phelps carried it across three plays later.

The Tallahassee squad, ranked 12th among the nation's small teams, scored again in the second period, four plays after Tiger kicker James Dodd bobbled a high pass from center on his own 8. Sutton carried over from the one.

Hayes' touchdown came on the Rattlers' famous "zip" play in which the fleet halfback simply outran the defense, took a pass from Howell in the clear and scored.

The Rattlers' final touchdown came on an 87-yard drive that featured a 52-yard run by quarterback Hart. Hart faded back to pass, was trapped ran back to his own 5, found some blocking and scampered down to Grambling's 15. Moran, Hart's replacement, scored five plays later.

The game was delayed nearly 20 minutes by a steady downpour, which ended shortly after the opening kickoff.

State Surprises Ole Miss, 20-17

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi State's luckless, injured-plagued Maroons backed heavily-favored Mississippi into a corner early and then hung on to whip the Rebels in football Saturday for the first time in 18 years, 20-17.

Halfback Dan Bland was the big man for State in the bruising Southeastern Conference game.

He set up the field goal that sent Mississippi State ahead in the closing seconds of the first half and intercepted a pass late in the fourth quarter that led the clinching State touchdown.

On the pass interception, Bland took in a Jim Weatherly aerial on the Ole Miss 46 and returned 40 yards to the six before he was stopped. Two plays later Hoyle Granger carried it over from the one.

Ole Miss' Doug Cunningham then took the kickoff on the 20 and returned 80 yards to pull the Rebels to within three points — 20-17 with 1:29 to go.

But Mississippi State was able to hang onto the ball for the final 11½ minutes to preserve victory.

The Maroons, whose Justin Canale kicked a 48-yard field goal to put State ahead 6-3 on the final play of the first half, went ahead 13-3 on a 17-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Don Edwards to Marcus Rhoden on the last play of the third period.

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Statistics of the Mississippi State-Mississippi football game:

	State	Miss.
First downs	11	17
Rushing yardage	127	99
Passing yardage	62	147
Passes	3-8	12-32
Passes intercepted by	3	1
Punts	9-35	6-45
Fumbles lost	1	0
Yards penalized	58	88

Mississippi State then managed to put down repeated Rebel offensive threats and controlled the ball most of the way.

Ole Miss pulled to within 13-10 with 5:28 to go when quarterback Jimmy Heidel teamed up with halfback Mike Dennis on a 10-yard touchdown pass.

The play that might have saved the game for Mississippi State came with 9:10 to go in the final period when State held the Rebels on its 16 and took over on downs. Had Ole Miss kept that drive going and scored, the Rebels probably would have had the momentum to whip obviously weary Mississippi State.

The game may prove costly for more ways than one for the Rebels, who have a Bluebonnet Bowl date with Tulsa Dec. 19 in Houston.

Weatherly suffered a possible broken rib and played in obvious pain

Two players were carried from the field on strectchers, but neither was believed seriously injured. They were State's Tommy Inman and Ole Miss' All-America end Allen Brown.

The loss dropped Ole Miss's season record to 5-4-1 while State closed out 4-6.

The last time Mississippi State won the intrastate battle was in 1946 when it beat the Rebels 20-0.

Vanderbilt Takes Second Win Of Season By 99-67

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Vanderbilt's sixth ranked Commodores chalked up their second basketball victory Saturday night by smothering Southern Methodist 99-67.

The victory came before a capacity crowd of 7,474 who screamed "make it a hundred" for the last five minutes.

The Commodores tried, but Jerry Southwood's jumper at the final gun bounced off the front rim.

A pair of field goals by Southwood followed by a tip shot by Bob Grace set the Commodores on fire and they pulled into a 43-28 halftime lead.

Hottest of the Commodores was John Ed Miller with 18 points. He got 13 of those in the second half.

All-Southeastern Conference center Clyde Lee pumped in 16, hitting five field goals from out around the foul circle.

Auburn's Freddie Guy made 15 points. Gary Schull scored 12 points to aid the Seminoles in their losing cause.

Both Teams used a man-to-man defense throughout the game. Gonzalez and Ron Malmen tried unsuccessfully to get Florida State back in the game with sharp outside shooting, but the Tigers' strong defense was too much.

Yellow Jackets Take 71-56 Win Over Rice Owls

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech built up an early lead and held it throughout Saturday night to whip the Rice Owls 71-56 for a second straight basketball victory.

The Yellow Jackets turned what had been a tight defensive duel into a runaway in the last five minute. Tech had taken a commanding 51-38 lead shortly after the half but had watched it dwindle before the sharpshooting of the Owls' Doug McKendrick to 56-50 with 10 minutes left.

McKendrick, who collected 24 points, and 6-foot-7 Don Siegmund who pulled down nine rebounds in the first half alone, kept Rice in the game until McKendrick fouled out with seven minutes to go.

Northeast Beats Ouachita, 84-82

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (Special) — Junior Tommy Enloe bombed in a 25-foot jump shot with four seconds left here Saturday night and gave Northeast State an 84-82 victory over Ouachita Baptist College.

The victory gives Coach Lenny Fant's Tribe a 3-1 record for the year. Northeast goes to Nacogdoches, Tex. Monday for a game against Stephen F. Austin. The Northeast freshmen also won against Ouachita, 74 - 66, moving their record to 2-1.

Northeast jumped off to an early lead and was in front the entire game until Ouachita pulled into a 78-78 tie on a rebound shot by Leon Clements with 2:20 to play.

The Indians went in front again seconds later on a two-pointer by Enloe then the Baptists came back for a tie but Northeast took an 82-80 lead with about a minute to play on a shot by Dick Williams.

With 30 seconds still showing on the clock Joe Franz connected for Ouachita to knot the score, 82-82, and from here Northeast worked the ball for one last shot — which was successful by Enloe.

Enloe's jumper came from the right side of the key and drilled the nets with just four seconds left. Ouachita Baptist called time out with one second showing but didn't have enough time to set up a scoring opportunity.

The Indians were red hot the first half, when they built a 50-41 lead by intermission, and at one point had hit on 21 of 27 shots from the field. Northeast finished the half with a 64 percentage average and for the game had a 53.7 average on 36 of 67 shots.

Enloe was the leader with 24 points, hitting on 11 of 20 from the field and two of six free throws. Glenn Saulters followed with 21 points, Williams had 18 and Larry Butler got 15.

Ouachita's Clements took top scoring honors for the game with 32 points and he also had 11 rebounds. Franz had 16 points and David Kossover had 15.

In the freshman game, Northeast used the fast break to the fullest and followed guard Charlie Gammill to a convincing victory. Gammill ripped the nets for 32 points, many of them coming on driving layups, and he got good support from big Walter Hays who had 21 points and 12 rebounds.

Hays, a 6-6 postman from Athens, had 10 points in the first half while Gammill, former Rayville star, had 19 in the first half and 13 after intermission. Rich Bailey of Jonesboro was next with 10 points.

Taylor, Wood Pace Packers To 17-3 Victory Over Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Fleet Willie Wood's brilliant punt returns and Jim Taylor's battering to his fifth successive 1,000-yard rushing season swept the Green Bay Packers to a 17-3 National Football League victory over the Chicago Bears Saturday.

Wood's punt returns of 64 and 42 yards set up both Green Bay touchdowns in the nationally-televised game before 43,646 shivering fans in snow-steeped Wrigley Field.

Fullback Taylor, who exploded 13 yards for the second Packer touchdown in the third period, wound up with 89 yards for the day and 1,005 yards in 13 games, first man in NFL history to rush more than 1,000 yards in five straight seasons.

Wood's first big punt return gallop, 64 yards to the Bear 16 came in the second period. Four plays later, Paul Hornung smashed five yards for the touchdown which gave Green Bay a 7-0 lead.

Hornung also booted a nine-yard field goal in the fourth period and kicked the points after both Packer touchdowns.

The Bears, who had won three straight, never advanced beyond the Packer 15 and then had to settle for their only points on Roger Leclerc's 31-yard field goal five seconds before halftime.

The Bear attack was weakened considerably when quarterback Rudy Bukich, who paced their previous three triumphs, was injured in the last minute of the first half.

He was replaced by Bill Wade, who was the victim of a 28-yard pass interception return by Wood in the third quarter which set up Hornung's fielder early in the last period.

The Packer secondary hung an iron curtain around Johnny Morris, league record-holding pass receiver. Morris wound up with two catches for 24 yards, boosting his season record total to 92.

CHICAGO (AP) — Statistics of the Green Bay-Chicago NFL game:

	Packers	Bears
First downs	16	14
Rushing yardage	170	118
Passing yardage	64	79
Passes	9-13	17-32
Passes intercepted by	3	0
Punts	4-43	4-47
Fumbles lost	2	2
Yards penalized	45	40

The triumph gave Green Bay an 8-5 record and left them one victory shy of clinching the runner-up spot behind the Baltimore Colts in the NFL's Western Conference.

Nothing went right for the Bears in a game which wound up with fans pelting snowballs at the officials and Green Bay partisans.

The Bears had three passes intercepted and lost the ball twice on fumbles.

Taylor carried 21 times for his 89 yards, averaging 4.2 per carry.

The sub-freezing temperatures limited Packer quarterback Bart Starr's passing to 13 attempts of which he completed nine for 75 yards.

Jon Arnett was the only Bear offensive threat, carrying 11 times for 59 yards and a 5.4 average.

The dethroned champion Bears now own a 5-8 record.

WHIP OUACHITA, 54-48

Neville Cops Third Title At Bastrop Cage Tourney

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

BASTROP — Neville's Tigers used a better free throw percentage here Saturday night to take home an almost five-foot high trophy after downing Ouachita, 54-48 in the championship tilt of the ninth annual Bastrop Invitational Basketball Tournaments.

With Jay Eppinette hitting for 17 points and J. Dodd Brooks adding another 16, the Tigers chalked up 16 free tosses while Ouachita, which had more field goals, hit only six free throws.

Ouachita hit for 21 from the field with Joe Bryant leading with 17 points and Don Corbin getting 16. Neville collected 18 from the field.

Neville jumped off to a 17-8 lead at the end of the first quarter and never lost its margin. The largest lead the Tigers held in the first meeting of Monroe's two AAA clubs was 13 points at the start of the final quarter when Brooks threw in the sixth free throw of the night to give Neville a 15 point edge at 43-28.

The smallest Tiger lead, other than at the start of the game was the final score, 54-48 after Bryant tipped in a stray shot with 10 seconds left in the game.

A sticky Tiger defense, especially in the first half, caused the Lions to foul and sure shots at the line allowed the Tigers to win the Bastrop tourney for the third consecutive year.

Eppinette was named to the all-tourney squad, while Brooks was named the most valuable player.

Forest, which copped the girls title with a 53-41 victory over Ouachita, placed Betty Joe VanMeter, who scored 34 points in the title game, and Maryln McCarty on the All-Tournament team while Mollie May was named the most valuable girl in the tourney.

Leslie Leath, another member o fthe all-tournament team paced the Ouachita girls in the championship contest by scoring 17 markers. Bobbie Jennings of Ouachita was the other Lion contribution to the All-Tournament team and Mary Dale Rogers of Bastrop rounded out the squad.

Rounding out the boys All-Tournament team were Gary Armstrong of Ouachita, Tony Kelly of Forest, Tom Holmer of Bastrop, and Bonita's Milton Morgan, the only repeater to the Bastrop all-tourney squad.

The Forest girls jumped off to an early lead over Ouachita and never trailed.

In the boys title game, Neville scored only once from the field in the second quarter a lay up by Brooks, but Brooks hit four from the free line and Eppinette two. Bob Rowan also got a free one in the second. Ouachita had four one-and-one shots in the same period, but got only two points.

The Tigers outshot Ouachita from the field in the third period, eight to five, and took a 14 point, 42-28 advantage at the end of the frame.

In the fourth, the Lions picked up 20 points, all from the field while Neville got 12 points for the second straight frame. The Tigers points in that period came on four field goals and four foul shots while Ouachita went to the free line only once in the period and missed it.

SEMI FINALS

Neville advanced to the finals by crushing Kilbourne, 56 - 33, behind a well - balanced scoring attack led by Bill Dunn with 15 markers.

The Tigers pulled in front, 11 - 4, at the first stop and it was easy going the rest of the way. Neville led 27 - 10 at halftime and 39 - 27 at the end of the third quarter.

J. Dodd Brooks, who was pulled early in the game to stay fresh for the finals, netted only seven markers. Bob Rowan and Jay Eppinette hit nine points each.

Ouachita jumped off to a 28 - 25 halftime lead and it was this margin that gave the Lions their three point victory — 52-49 — over Bastrop.

The final half was a standoff with both teams each scoring 10 and 14 points in the third and fourth periods, respectively.

Joe Bryant paced Ouachita with 17 points, while Elmer Smith netted 11 and Gary Armstrong, 16.

In girls semifinal games Ouachita beat Bastrop, 48 - 41, with Otha Quinn hitting 22 points for Ouachita. Mary Rogers hit 21 for Bastrop.

Forest dropped Kilbourne, 39-34. Betty Jo Van Meter netted 21 points for Forest and Dianne Edwards poured in 20 for Kilbourne.

Tulane Topples Memphis Squad For Initial Win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tulane presented coach Ralph Pedersen with his first Green Wave basketball victory Saturday night, downing Southwestern of Memphis, 93-72.

Tulane had little trouble against the Lynx and jumped out into the lead early. With 14:42 remaining in the first half, George Fisher connected on a 10-foot hook to put the Greenies in front 12-11.

They went on to build up a 13 point advantage at intermission, 46-33. From that time on, Southwestern was never in the game. The Lynx trailed by as much as 26 points.

George Fisher was the Greenies' top rebounder, clearing 22 off the board in about 20 minutes of competition.

Garry Sharp was top man for the Lynx with 16 points, followed by Bob Aslinger and Jack Kilton with 14 points.

Tulane connected on 32 of 84 from the field for 38.1 per cent and 29 of 40 from the charity line. Southwestern hit 25 of 79 from the field for 31.6 and 22 of 38 from the free throw line for 57.9.

The win makes Tulane 1-2 on the season. The loss was the first in two outings for Southwestern.

Texas Gets Win Over Ole Miss

TUPELO, Miss. (AP)—Texas' tall, speedy Longhorns crushed Mississippi 94-67 Saturday night with six players scoring in double figures.

It was the second straight victory for Texas, which continued its perfect record in a series against Ole Miss.

Longhorn center John Paul Fultz controlled the opening jump and forward Paul Oliver got a quick field goal. Texas was never behind or in trouble.

The Longhorns raced to a 44-29 lead at halftime with their zone defense and the Rebels' ineffectiveness from outside spelling the difference.

Fultz led Texas with 18 points. Larry Franks got 14. Glenn Lusk scored 13 for Mississippi and Eddie Dunn got 12.

Grambling Wins Tip-Off Tourney

GRAMBLING, La. (AP) — Grambling won the seventh annual Grambling Invitational Basketball tournament Saturday night with a 108-98 win over Southern University.

Southern's Mabert Pradd was the game and the tournament high scorer with 35. For the tourney he bucketed 102 points.

Top man for Grambling was Wilbert Frazier with 25.

In the consolation game Alcorn A&M dumped Texas Southern 79-77, while Dillard University finished fifth with a 100-94 win over Texas College. Tillotson took seventh with an 87-85 win over Paul Quinn.

UPI AWARD

Huarte Receives Top Back Prize

NEW YORK (UPI)—Quarterback John Huarte, around whom coach Ara Parseghian rebuilt the fading football fortunes of Notre Dame this season, Saturday was named the college football back of the year by United Press International.

The 21-year-old senior from Anaheim, Calif., directed the Irish to their first winning season in six years, with a 9-1 won-lost record and third place in the UPI final rankings.

Huarte, who was sidelined with injuries during most of his sophomore year and played only 45 minutes during the 1963 season when the Irish won only two games, received 70 votes out of a possible 259 in the balloting among the nation's sportswriters and sportscasters who participated in the poll.

Jerry Rhome, Tulsa's record-smashing passer, was second with 52 votes followed by two other quarterbacks—Bob Timberlake of Michigan with 22 and Craig Mortion of California with 16. Tucker Frederickson, Auburn's powerful running back, was fifth with 13 votes.

Previously chosen the Heisman Trophy winner as the outstanding collegiate player of the season, Huarte piled up 2,069 yards on offense, including 2,062 via passing, to rank third in the nation in total offense.

"Without Huarte," Parseghian said, "we would have been a three-yards and a cloud of dust type of team. We built for whole offense around him and I lived in constant dread of what we would have done if something had happened to him."

A joint decision by Parseghian and Huarte last spring led to the live year that Notre Dame enjoyed and the rags-to-riches story of a lame quarterback who had spent two years on the bench.

"In a Saturday scrimmage near the end of the springs drills, John suffered a shoulder injury," Parseghian recalled, "and it was questionable whether he would be available in 1964." Huarte and Parseghian decided to forego surgery and hope that the six-foot, 180-pound signal caller's shoulder would heal by itself. Huarte's shoulder healed and so did the Irish, who posted their best record in a decade under his guidance.

Huarte succeeds another quarterback, Navy's Roger Staubach, who gained back-of-the-year honors by landslide proportions last year. However, Staubach, like Huarte in years past, was troubled with injuries throughout the 1964 season, and never attained the status he reached in 1963.

While rekindling the fight in the fighting Irish this season, Huarte shattered four single game school records and three season marks.

Trailing Frederickson in the balloting were quarterbacks Bob Berry of Oregon, Wake Forest's Brian Piccolo, the leading ground gainer in the nation; and halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas. Berry drew 11 votes, Piccolo 10 and Sayers 8.

Those receiving five votes each were Fred Biletnikoff of Florida State, and Cosmo Iacavazzi of Princeton; four votes — Donnie Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois; three votes — Rodger Bird of Kentucky; two votes—Larry Dupree, of Florida, Mike Garrett of Southern California, Floyd Little and Jim Nancy of Syracuse, Tom Nowatzke of Indiana, Archie Roberts of Columbia and Gary Snook of Iowa.

NORTH-SOUTH GAME

Best Lineup Ever Slated For Classic

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two Heisman Trophy winners—Notre Dame's John Huarte and Navy's Roger Staubach—plus the nation's best all-time passer and the country's top rusher head the most glittering line-up ever chosen for the North-South all-star college football game.

"We have the greatest collection of college players by far since this game started 17 years ago," game director Andy Gustafson said Saturday. "We got every big name star we wanted."

Huarte, who led Notre Dame back to the football heights and won the 1964 Heisman Trophy as the outstanding player in college football, will quarterback the North in the nationally televised game on Christmas Day in the Orange Bowl.

Opposing Huarte on the South side will be Staubach, who romped off with the Heisman award last year.

Staubach, recovered from injuries which kept him from repeating his 1963 All-America selection, will be spelled by Tulsa's Jerry Rhome, runner-up in the 1964 Heisman voting and holder of virtually all NCAA passing records.

Brian Piccolo of Wake Forest, the nation's top runner, will join Staubach and Rhome on the South squad.

Alternating with Huarte in directing the Yankee attack will be Army's Carl Stichweh, who ended five years of Army frustration by directing the Cadets to victory over Navy last Saturday.

Huarte, Staubach and Stichweh will be playing under their own coaches. Ara Parseghian of Notre Dame and Paul Dietzel of Army will coach the North team. Navy's Wayne Hardin and Florida's Ray Graves will coach the Rebels.

Joining Huarte for the trip to Miami will be his favorite pass receiver, Jack Snow, who was fifth in the Heisman poll, and four other Notre Dame players.

Another standout already named is Fullback Tucker Frederickson of Auburn, No. 1 draft choice of the National Football League.

With 17 players invited, the North has seven more to pick. The South has 14 in its line-up and will name 10 more.

Clifford H. Buck Will Guide AAU

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Amateur Athletic Union's nominating committee picked Clifford H. Buck of Denver, Colo., Saturday as the man who should head the group in 1965, a crucial year for the AAU.

The decision of the committee caucus is vital assurance of election.

Buck, a retired sporting goods firm official and now AAU first vice president, will be taking over as the squabble between the AAU and the National Collegiate Athletic Association appears headed for a showdown.

Jay-Ehret Mahoney, current president, announced earlier he did not want another term although it is customary for a president to serve two years. He has served only one year.

However, Mahoney pointed out that the argument between the AAU and the NCAA had nothing to do with his decision.

Generally, it was considered the convention was bound by the decision of the nominating committee. Only once in AAU history has a president been elected after being nominated from the floor.

New officers will officially be elected during the final session Sunday.

The new president will take office as the feud between the AAU and the NCAA comes nearer to a head. The NCAA, through the U.S. Track and Field Federation, has threatened to boycott AAU-sanctioned open competition if the differences are not settled by Jan. 1.

NCAA officials want a dual sanctioning policy in open events that would mean an event could be sanctioned both by the NCAA and AAU. The AAU says its constitution forbids it.

An AAU spokesman said that the executive committee had drafted a more definite policy on dual sanctioning in track and field. It is due to be read to delegates before the end of the meeting. The policy was not expected to alter drastically the one previously explained, to which the NCAA objects.

Saturday, the delegates awarded the 1966 national AAU convention to Hawaii Nov. 30-Dec. 4. The 1965 convention will be in Washington, D.C., Dec. 1-5.

Sixteen U.S. gold medal winners were nominated for the James E. Sullivan award presented annually to the outstanding amateur American athlete of the year.

They are Hayes Jones, high hurdles; Donna Devarona, swimming; Fred Hanson, pole vault; Bob Hayes, sprint; Mike Larrabee, 1,600-meter relays; Dallas Long, shot put; Terry McDermott, speed skating; Edith McGuire, 200-meter run; Lt. Billy Mills, 1,000-meter run; Dick Roth, swimming; Jerry Shipp, basketball; Don Schollander, swimming; Sharon Stouder, swimming; Bob Webster platform diving; Joe Frazier, boxing, and Bob Schul, 5,000-meter run.

More than 500 amateur sportsmen, sportswriters and sports newscasters will ballot on the nominees. The winner will be announced in January.

John Pennel, a Miami, Fla. pole vaulter who set a world record that has since been broken by Hansen, received the award last year.

Public Areas Produce Kills

With Sam Hanna

Despite Bad Weather

Louisiana's public hunting areas produced a total kill of about 2,200 deer during the brief season that featured inclement weather to discourage a lot of hunters from going.

About 39,000 hunters participated, according to Joe L. Herring, chief of the fish and game division, Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

This means about every 18 hunters bagged a whitetail.

And, of course, the kill was higher on areas where any-deer seasons were held. Joe says the average there ran about one deer for 14 hunters compared to buck - only areas where the average was one deer for every 28 hunters.

The biggest game management area in Louisiana, the Chicago Mills, attracted 9,152 hunters, who killed 260 deer. Last year about 1100 deer were killed on opening day, but that's because an any - deer season was held.

This year the commission closed the any-deer season at the direction of the Legislature.

Tensas Parish had an any-deer season except for Ward 3, but there's not a system to give you immediate results on the kill. Tensas doesn't have the deer it used to have, but the main reason is that Tensas doesn't have the woods it once had.

The East Carroll Game Management Area had possibly the only disappointing season of all the game management areas. Some 375 hunters bagged only five bucks. About 150 deer were killed last year.

Rainy weather prevented a lot of hunters from getting back into the woods at East Carroll, which attracted less hunters than any of the game management areas.

In the immediate Monroe area, the Georgia - Pacific Game Management Area, open for the first time, had a big season with a total kill of 313 deer, all bucks. Some 6,490 hunters were checked in.

In fact, Georgia - Pacific produced the third largest deer kill of any game management area in Louisiana. It should continue in the years to come to be of great benefit to the hunting public.

The season at Russell Sage near Monroe is still going on, but on opening day some 34 deer were killed. The hunter count ran up to 682 hunters.

And if you want to kill a big deer, Russell Sage is as good as any spot in the state and better than most. The first split of the Russell Sage season ends today, but the second split begins December 26th through January 5th.

Union Parish had a good season its game management area, killing 76 deer among 856 hunters. But the Jackson - Bienville Game Management Area attracted the smallest number of hunters ever — some 2,847 hunters who killed 143 deer.

The Caldwell GMA had a so - so season with 683 hunters and a total kill of 38.

And the season was a good one on the other game management areas not located in Northeast Louisiana. There are only four game management areas outside the Monroe area that have been open for deer hunting.

Red Dirt in Natchitoches Parish had a big year with 3,120 hunters and a total kill of 290 deer. Catahoula GMA in Winn had 347 deer killed among 4,206 hunters while West Bay in Allen Parish attracted 5,607 hunters who killed 335 deer. Some 1,343 hunters turned out on the Alexandria State Forest Wildlife Management to kill 142 deer.

It should be apparent by the figures contained in this report that the game management area has become an important part of the state's game program. Of course, the season continues in the privately-owned areas.

And if the kill on the public areas is any indication, Louisiana is heading for a record deer kill.

The biologists know what they're doing.

Tensas Public Hearing

The Fifth District Levee Board is scheduled to hold a hearing Tuesday at St. Joseph on the proposed drainage program for the Tensas River by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Last word we had was the hearing would be held at the Tensas courthouse at 2 p.m. following the regular Police Jury meeting that morning.

The Louisiana Wildlife Federation and the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission plan to have representatives present to speak out against the proposed project while the Ouachita Wildlife Unit also plans to send a delegation over.

E. H. Stewart, levee board president, of Tallulah advised us several days ago that all interested parties would be permitted a chance to be heard.

The project under consideration is one that would clean out the Tensas, which runs through one of Louisiana's better wildlife areas.

Personally, we hope that the Army engineers will drop their plans to tamper with the Tensas, mainly because we can't afford to lose the Delta swamp so soon.

But we think the levee board's hearing is a step in the right direction and demonstrates to us that the levee board wants to do the right thing. The levee board requested the project years ago.

In view of the drainage projects throughout the area, is this one really necessary?

Mallards Come Home

Although we haven't had a chance to get out among them, we understand the mallards moved in a few days after the season opened.

Richard Yancey, assistant wildlife director, informed us Friday that a big flight of mallards moved into Louisiana several days ago and from all reports the mallard shooting has been good on Black Bayou and Wham Brake.

This latest cold front should have made the hunting better.

South Louisiana duck hunting continues to be good, according to Yancey, while the hunting in North Louisiana should get better as the winter days progress.

There's a lot of water on the ground now, thanks to the recent rains. So don't overlook the sloughs and brakes.

Arkansas, we understand, is having a good season, but the cold weather should be pushing the ducks into Louisiana.

This is that time of the year, however, when hunters have a hard time trying to decide what they want to do. All of the seasons are open and in our section of the state there's opportunity for all kinds of hunting.

We've got the best.

Little Man's Corner

It was time to go after them and the little men made news afield.

A lot of big bucks have been killed, but one of the finest racks came from Concordia Parish. Dan Wiley of Monroe bagged him — a 13 - point buck with a rack that measured 24½-inches from tip - to tip.

This one topped the 8-pointer dropped by Lee Ineichen of Rayville. Lee hunting at the Blackhawk Club in Concordia and his buck had a rack that measured 22¼-inches.

L. E. Clark of Monroe got two bucks at Blackhawk — a 4-pointer and 8-pointer.

But one of the best stories happened right here in Russell Sage. Ernie Carter and a companion were hunting ducks and out walked a beautiful 8-point buck. They dropped him and Bobby Walker, in his new place next to Russell Sage, is doing the head.

Gary Fuller, 16-year-old OPHS student, of Monroe dropped an 8-point buck that field dressed at 180 pounds in Tensas Parish. But Melvin Bell, 17, of West Monroe wasn't so lucky.

Melvin shot a deer, his first one, dropped his gun in the excitement and ran to claim his prize. But the buck jumped up as Melvin approached and dashed away. Young Bell empty- handed, watched him go.

That's happend to the best of hunters.

Also from West Monroe, Doyle Wayne Tolbird killed an 8-point buck in west Ouachita. Tommy Cupit of West Monroe killed a spike on the same hunt.

In Tensas Parish, Wren Boykin of Ferriday dropped a 5-pointer and Scotter Browning killed a 4-pointer. They shot their deer at about 100 yards.

Three Ferriday hunters got deer in Concordia. Monroe Barwick killed a 10 - point buck and Ray Watson got a 6-pointer. John Reeves got an 8-pointer. They were hunting with dogs. Charles Head of Monroe killed a spike in Union Parish.

Meantime, duck hunters on Wham Brake have had some fairly good shoots. John Hunt and Lloyd Voorhees of Monroe got the limit on a day's shoot. Harry Cooper of Monroe has had some good duck shoots on Wham Brake.

And on Black Bayou, John Kelso Jr. has had a good hunt or two while Pappa Kelso reports that several of his friends have had good mallard hunting on Black Bayou.

But the best duck story of the week comes from mallard-ace David Kahn, who was standing on the banks of Wham with his limit when up motored Warren Spillers and Webb Nix, a couple of novices out for for the first time.

Spillers and Nix called Kahn over to examine their limit of "blackjacks," but — you guessed it — their ducks weren't "blackjacks." They were coots.

The tragic part of it is that the boys quit shooting when they finished out the limit of coots.

Stiegman Fired At Pennsylvania

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania fired head football coach John Stiegman, whose five seasons at Penn produced only 12 victories in 45 games and only six in Ivy League competition.

This year Penn won only one game in nine, defeating Lehigh 13-6.

Athletic Director Jerry Ford said he took the action after consultation with a faculty-administration committee appointed by Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the university, "to evaluate the coach."

Ford said he will press a search for a new coach. Bob Odell, now head coach at Bucknell, and Ray Dooney, head coach at Penn Charter School, are considered front runners for the job. Both are former Penn football stars.

Stiegman, 42, was working under a second three-year contract which was to run through the 1965 season.

He could not be reached immediately for comment.

Ford said the staff of assistants, also with a year to run on their contracts, will be asked to remain either as assistants to the incoming coach or in other duties of an expanded football program.

Stiegman joined Penn in December, 1959, succeeding Steve Sebo, who had coached the Quakers for six years but whose contract was not renewed after he led Penn to the 1959 Ivy League title. This caused a great deal of criticism.

It was believed, however, that Stiegman had been signed several months earlier and the university could not have extended Sebo's contract in reward for the winning season even if it so desired.

Stiegman, a former star at Williams College under the late Coach Charlie Caldwell, came to Penn from Rutgers, giving up a contract at the New Jersey school that still had a year to run. At Rutgers, his teams compiled impressive records, winning 22 of 37 games in four seasons.

In 1946, Stiegman joined Caldwell's staff as an assistant when Caldwell was head coach at Princeton. He became head coach at Rutgers in 1955.

Stiegman's failure to produce a winning team at Penn, after converting from the T-formation to the single wing, although he predicted one in four years, made him unpopular with many fans and students.

Memphis State Downs Bulldogs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis State led all the way in beating Southwestern Louisiana 78-71 Saturday night.

The Tigers had to stand off a late Bulldog rally that cut their once-large advantage to one point with almost five minutes to play.

All five Memphis State starters scored in double figures. Junior guard B. G. Petty led with 18 points.

USL's Little All-America Dean Church scored 18.

MEET 2ND PLACE CARDS TODAY

Cleveland Browns Going After First Division Title Since '57

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Wally Lemm's St. Louis Cardinals make their last ditch stand against the Cleveland Browns Sunday in a game that could give Cleveland its first division title in the National Football League since 1957. A Cardinal victory would send the race down to the final week of the season.

Jimmy Brown and Co. need only to win or tie against the Cardinals in the feature event of a six-game Sunday NFL program. Baltimore has won the Western Conference crown and is assured of a shot at the league title Sunday, Dec. 27, in the home city of the Eastern winner.

The American Football League still has a race in the East between Buffalo and Boston. San Diego needs only to win or tie in one of three remaining games to clinch the West. The AFL title game will be played in the home park of the East champ on Saturday, Dec. 26.

Buffalo, with a one-game lead on Boston, plays at Oakland Sunday and Boston is at Kansas City. Buffalo has three to play and Boston two, including a rematch with the Bills at Boston Dec. 20. San Diego is at home to New York. Houston and Denver are idle.

The Browns are concerned about the physical condition of Paul Warfield, their leading pass catcher. He is doubtful because of a pulled hamstring muscle. The Cards have been crippled for weeks, with Sonny Randle lost for the season and Joe Childress hurt. Both Lou Groza and Jim Bakken, the field goal specialists, were active in the 33-33 tie Sept. 20.

Baltimore will be shooting for its 12th straight, since its opening game defeat by Minnesota, when the Colts take on the Detroit Lions at Baltimore. The Colts thumped the Lions earlier 34-0 when Johnny Unitas threw three touchdown passes. Colt Coach Don Shula has won three in a row over the Lions since he moved to Baltimore from his assistant coach job at Detroit.

Minnesota, still hoping to catch Green Bay and take second place in the West, visits the New York Giants for the first time. Bill Brown, Tommy Mason and Fran Tarkenton will find the Giants in a battered condition, having just moved up the last man from their taxi or reserve squad to take the place ofiinjured John Contoulis. Gary Wood will get the call at quarterback over Y. A. Tittle for the second week in a row but the Giants are down to three running backs.

Los Angeles ran over San Francisco 42-14 earlier with Roman Gabriel tossing four TD passes. It will be up to Gabriel again because Bill Munson is a doubtful performer due to injuries. The 49ers have been playing better ball recently, holding the Colts to a 14-3 score last week. The Rams have lost three straight, bowing last week to Minnesota 34-13.

Philadelphia ends its home season against a crippled Dallas team that took a 44-21 beating from Green Bay last week. If Don Meredith can't make it, John Roach and Billy Lothridge will have to do the throwing again. Norm Snead picked up the Eagles in the second half last week and Tim Brown showed signs of his old form despite a 38-24 defeat by Cleveland. The Eagles shaded Dallas Earlier 17-14.

Pittsburgh, finishing out its season on the road, plays at Washington. The Redskins beat the Steelers earlier 30-0. The Redskins are finishing strong, winning six of their last eight while the Steelers have dropped six of seven.

Cookie Gilchrist, who almost wound up in Oakland when he was placed on waivers by Buffalo, will play against the Raiders Sunday, hoping to take another step toward his 1,000-yard goal. Cookie needs 162 yards in three games to crash the club. Cotton Davidson bothered by an ankle injury. Tom Flores may get the quarterback call for Oakland as he did last week. Jack Kemp and Daryle Lamonica will share the work for the Bills, who have a 10-1 record. Buffalo won earlier 23-20.

Boston, only team to beat the Bills, will send its blitzing defense against the crippled Kansas City Chiefs who may be without Abner Haynes, Mack Hill and others. Boston won their first game Oct. 23, 24-7.

Fort Necessity Tourney Copped By Ogden, Start

FORT NECESSITY (Special) — Start went into overtime to beat Caldwell, 59-57, while Ogden's girls edged past Winnsboro, 63-60, to take the championship trophies at the Fort Necessity Invitational Basketball Tourанment here Saturday.

Jerry and Terry Smith, a pair of twin sparkplugs, paced Start with 20 points each, while Larry Newton tossed in 21 for Caldwell. The game was tied at 55-55 at the end of regular time.

Pat Pace led Ogden with 28 markers, while Cherie Griffin hit 25 for Winnsboro.

Selected to the boys All-Tourney team were the Smith twins, Gary Welch of Fort Necessity, Denny Taylor of Winnsboro, and Boone McCarthy of Caldwell.

Making the girls honor roll were Cherie Griffin of Winnsboro, Pat Pace of Ogden, Sandra Coln of Winnsboro, Betty Turnage of Ogden, Peggy Winters of Fort Necessity and Shirley Head of Start.

Start advanced to the finals by beating Fort Necessity, 69-67, in another overtime game, while Caldwell whipped Winnsboro, 69-43. Ogden beat Start, 56-39, and Winnsboro dropped Fort Necessity, 63-42.

Nicklaus, Palmer Send U.S. Into Commanding Cup Lead

KAANAPALI, Maui, Hawaii (AP) — Jack Nicklaus rallied with a record-equalling seven-under-par 65 and Arnold Palmer turned in a brilliant 67 Saturday to send the United States team into complete command with one round to play in the 12th Canada Cup Gold Championship.

The two spectacular rounds over the Kaanapali course gave the Americans a three-round total of 406, twenty-six strokes under par.

The South African team of Gary Player and Denis Hutchinson, tied with the Yanks at 274 starting the day, fell back under the pressure of the American's birdie and eagle assault.

Palmer's third consecutive round of five-under-par or better—66, 67, 67—gave him a 54-hole score of 200, placing him three shots ahead of South Africa's Gary Player, who shot a 68 for 203. Palmer was 16 under par for the tournament and Player 13 under.

Nicklaus was in third place at 206, followed by Hawaii's Ted Makalena, who scored a 70 for 207.

Roberto de Vicenzo, the 42-year-old Argentine who has been playing in this event since its inaugural in 1953, came next with 208 after a sparkling 68.

The South Africans, tied with the Americans at 274 starting the day, dropped off the pace when Denis Hutchinson, Player's teammate, soared to a one-over-par 73.

They lost nine shots to the Yanks but held on to second place with a total of 415.

Argentina was third with 421. Then came: Spain 429, Hawaii 431, England 34 and Belgium and Canada tied at 437.

Player started strongly, with a 32 on the front nine, but took bogeys on the 10th, where he was short on his approach and missed a putt, and on the 12th, where he drove into the rough twice. He birdied the 17th with an eight-foot putt and had to come putt of a trap on the final hole to salvage his par.

Nicklaus approached to win in 18 inches on the first hold, sank a four-footer at the second, a 10-footer at the sixth and five-footer at the short seventh for birdies. He birdied the par five eighth and came within a whisker of repeating on the ninth.

He eagled the 11th with a four-wood second shot to within 12 feet of the cup and birdied the par five 15th after three-putting No. 14.

Palmer, seeking to win his first individual title in his fourth try, met the Nicklaus challenge head-on, and also birdied the first two holes with putts of 12 and three feet, bogied the short fifth when he drove into a trap but came back with birds at the eighth, 11th, and 13th and 14th. His best putt was an 18-footer at the 14th.

Playing six holes back, they were 16 under par. Others appeared out of contention.

Palmer's third consecutive round of five-under-par or better — 66-67-67 — sent him farther in front of the individual competition with a 54-hole score of 200.

Nicklaus showing awesome power after a slow start, was still six shots back of his partner and chief rival with 206.

His round, featured by five birdies on Kaanapali's mountainous outgoing nine and an eagle on the 11th, tied the course record set by Palmer on Wednesday in the pro-amateur preliminary.

The burly Columbus, Ohio, golfer might have turned in one of the best rounds in major competition except for a bit of bad putting luck.

He reached the long ninth hole with two wood shots, but putting too strongly and went past the cup, three putting. He also three-putted the 14th, and barely missed a key putt on the 17th.

The third round in this globe-girdling match of the world's best golfers again was played in near perfect weather.

Nicklaus hit the green of every par four hole in two shots and reached each of the four par fives also in two. He had 33 putts.

"I can't play any better than that," he said.

After completion of his round, Nicklaus pointed to Palmer and said, with a broad grin:

"This guy's too tough for me this week. He doesn't give me an opening."

The reference was to the fact that he shot a record-equalling 65 and gained only two strokes on his partner.

Palmer needs only a 71 to break the individual tournament record set by Sam Snead at Puerto Rico in 1961.

Asked if this was his best tournament score, Arnold said, "I need a 65 today to do it. I had a 265 in winning the Canadian Open at Toronto in 1955."

Passing, Kicking Reach New High; Defense Lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Passing and place kicking reached new highs in college football in 1964 but the defense, operating again under the two platoon system, trimmed scoring to a 23-year low.

Figures released by the NCAA Service Bureau Saturday showed that the average scoring by both teams in 617 major games was 30.1 points, down 1½ points from last year's 31.6 average.

The all-time scoring high was 39.1 in 1950 when emphasis was on offense in the two platoons, and this is the first time that scoring fell below 31.1 since 1941.

The defense especially was effective against running attacks with the ball carriers forced to settle for 6.5 per cent less yardage than 1963 and the least since 1941. The average was 299.3 yards per game compared to 320 last year.

More aerials were attempted and more completed—35.8 and 16.9 game compared to 1963's 35.2 and 12.2—but the air-yards average was up 4.3 per cent and the completion ration reached an all-time high of .472. Last year's percentage of completion was .461.

There was nothing, however, the defense could do about the kickers. They not only hung up a record number of field goals but did so with a record. .458 accuracy.

They also converted 82.9 per cent of all after-touchdown kicks—2.2 per cent high than ever before. Even punting reached a 15-year high with an average of 36.4 yards per boot.

Baylor Rallies To Down LSU In Cage Game

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana State's cagers blew a three-point halftime lead and Baylor came on strong in the second half to take an 84-72 basketball victory Saturday.

It was the third straight for Baylor against no losses, but it marked the first time this season it had been held under 100 points.

The loss squared LSU's mark at 1-1. The Tigers return to action here Monday against Texas.

LSU took a 5-0 lead and built that as high as 38-31 in the first half. The score was tied six times before the Tigers could hold their three point edge at intermission.

Leading Baylor was Darrell Hardy, who sank 24 points, and Spencer Carlson, who made 18. High for LSU was sophomore Brad Brian who flipped in 22 points, and Harry Heroman, who sank 15.

LSU jumped to a 44-39 lead as the second half opened on a set shot by Brian but the Bruins caught fire, and went ahead 54-53 on two free throws by Tommy Hatfield with 13:52 left in the game. LSU never caught up.

LSU hit 35 per cent from the floor and 66 from the free throw line. The Bruins hit 36 per per cent and 80 per cent.

Churchgoers Making Trees Grow In Nation Of Algeria

U.S. CHURCHGOERS, through their contributions, are providing millions of trees for the reforestation of the barren uplands of Algeria. Centuries of invasions by Phoenicians, Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, Turks, French and goats have wiped out virtually all trees. Now black soil such as comes from excavations of old Roman cities like Tingad, in foreground, is packed around each seedling planted. (AP Wirephoto)

CONSTANTINE, Algeria (AP) — U.S. churchgoers are making trees grow in Algeria.

The project aims to repair some of the damage done by invasions of Phoenicians, Romans, Byzantines, Arabs, Turks, French — and goats.

And the worst of these are the goats.

In less than two years such progress has been made that thousands of acres of barren hills and mountains now are planted to trees, some the size of pencils, others already man high. And millions more of little trees are growing in newly created nurseries to help reforest the vast tracts of barren land which in olden times were covered with some of the world's finest trees.

The effort is only a drop in a bucket when measured against the needs of the country. It is a long-term project which is intended to help save the land which for generations has been washing away, lowering its productive capacity while the people who depend on it increase in numbers every year.

MAJOR TOUR

This reporter took an extended tour of the area where the reforestration is going on. He was accompanied by Jan van Hoogstraten, an American who directs the African program of Church World Service. This branch of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. cooperates with British, American, Swiss, German and other church organizations in extending aid to Algeria and other countries.

The biggest projects center around this old city which itself has seen the steady deterioration of the land over 2,000 years. The city was mainly Roman. While most of the ruins have disappeared, you can hardly dig a pit for a gasoline tank without coming up with a sculptured Roman head or cornice.

A deep canyon on three sides of the city has given it protection through the centuries. But while it was fighting invasions, a more relentless enemy ate away its defenses elsewhere. Great forests were cut down in the mountains to the west and south of Constantine.

Some of the timber went to build Roman ships, still more went up in smoke as firewood, but the most relentless were the goats. They ate the bark off the trees, so the trees died. The goats ate the young trees starting up in the black soil, and ate the brush and grass that held the land in place along the hillsides.

OF SORTS

A solution of sorts has been worked out. When the churches began the reforestation project, Algerian authorities agreed to impose fines on herders who let their goats into the newly forested tracts. Moreover, many of the mountain families themselves see the advantage of reforested hills and mountains.

Little hard cash is involved. American surplus wheat and a limited amount of other products are used, for the church program has the double purpose of feeding a population left hungry and jobless after the revolution, and of planting trees.

BELTS BACK

Paris, which once dealt a lethal blow to the belt industry, has made up for it this year in a big way. The newest waist cinchers are wide satin bows sashed and worn to the side, as bow belts look tied, but aren't.

Deck The House In Cotton Gifts

This Christmas you may find it's easier and more fun to buy gifts for houses than for people.

Newest gift idea to come along for houses is a line of decorative accessories decked out in the season's liveliest and most unusual cotton prints.

Useful as well as decorative, they range from desk blotters to shower curtains. Plain necessities such as wastebaskets and ash trays have been turned into real conversation pieces with the addition of striking cotton fabrics.

Cottons used for these items run to unorthodox florals, abstracts, stripes, and polka dots in eye - catching color combinations.

Typical of the bold new look are cotton tablecloths, shower and window curtains splashed with abstract flowers in orange, blue, chartreuse, yellow, and hot pink against a white ground.

Holiday Loungewear Seen As Glamorous, Glittery

Glitter in gold, lounge in lace. That keys the holiday lingerie available for gift-giving or personal use at the season when women enjoy looking glamorous at every possible moment.

The very term "lingerie" has stretched to include costumes which can meet friends as well as be worn in privacy. Certainly there is nothing shy about a spun-gold hostess gown, evening length.

Nor are velvet pajamas with gold poncho top meant to languish unseen. The pajamas are one-piece, jump suit style, but with flared legs, and come in black, turquoise or hot pink.

The suddenly widespread use of metallic yarns has come to include lingerie which hardly seems to deserve the name, so close to leisure-wear is its styling.

Thus we have the metallic knit housecoat which is actually two piece, a circular wrap-around skirt plus an overblouse top buttoned in back. Apparently, any garment which doesn't have to go over the head is now classified as lingerie.

The two-layer look stands out in peignoirs, those sweeping housecoats which are the essence of femininity. Lace over gold satin or taffeta, crystal-pleat nylon over double chiffon, chiffon itself over peau de soie, pale-toned organza over deep-hued organza — every possible combination is shown.

Color, too, is newly heightened. White is liked best when it can be placed over color, as in white lace over gold. Two-toned organza layers may be pale pink over deep rose, pale blue over a near-navy, pale green over deep turquoise.

Peignoir silhouettes feature the current combination of fitted front and loose back. Variations include the slotted belt which defines the waist, runs under the back so it can flow outward in flared fullness.

Princess fronts, sewn in narrow gores for a fitted look are combined with crystal-pleated backs which fan out from low circular yokes. Very sophisticated are peignoirs with long torso fitted princess lines, the skirts gathered full at the hipline.

The bright aspect of holiday lingerie comes in pajamas and short coats meant for sleeping and breakfast. Here stripes and medieval half - and - half color schemes are the leaders.

Pajamas are naturals for the Camelot silhouette, a collarless tunic top over slim pants. Tunic is in two colors, half and half, pants reverse the colors. Combinations such as coral and white, turquoise and yellow, red and blue, black and white are favored.

Satin or nylon tricot are used for these page boy pajamas, since colors glow most brightly in shimmer-surfaced knits. But other pajamas which double for hostessing are cut in the bias manner of the 1930's, with flare-bottom pants, and are done in crepe, chiffon or satin.

Shortie coats in synthetic fabrics and blends take to brilliant stripes. They may be all in tones of the same color, such as red to red-orange.

MRS. OLEN RAY MANHART

First Baptist Scene Of Manhart-Wills Vows

First Baptist Church, Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Friday, December 4, which united in marriage Miss Carolyn Elizabeth Wills of Monroe and Olen Ray Manhart of Baton Rouge. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Robert John Wills, 1909 South Grand and the late Mr. Wills and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Manhart of Sterlington.

Mass arrangement of large pink and white chrysanthemums were alternated along the altar by seven branch fan - shaped candelabra holding tall white tapers against a background of magnolia foliage. Candle trees were at each end, and pew caps were marked with white satin bows and white pompons.

Dr. James T. Horton performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m. following an organ concert of nuptial music by Mrs. William A. Turpin, who also accompanied the soloist, Frank Swindle.

Given in marriage by her brother, Robert John Wills Jr., the bride was wearing a gown of silk peau de soie and Alencon lace. The fitted bodice and portrait neckline were accented by appliques of the lace, re - embroidered with tiny seed pearls. Long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands and the applique motifs were repeated on the controlled skirt with scalloped hemline, which terminated in a cathedral train. Her veil of imported silk illusion cascaded from a rose of lace petals, encrusted with pearls and aurora borealis. She carried a bouquet of white orchids, encircled by white roses, fleur d'amour and lace ribbons, from which pink vanda orchids, strings of pearls and satin ribbons cascaded to the hem of her gown.

Mrs. Everette Lee Smith attended her sister as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. C. Wayne Riggs, Lebanon, Indiana, cousin of the groom; Miss DiAnn Laird, Mrs. James Harper, Mrs. Robert McMullen of Shreveport and Mrs. Larry Reeves. They wore identical floor length gowns of Princess pink satin peau de soie, styled with scoop necklines and semi-belled skirts with back interest created by self fabric roses and bows. Peau de soie roses, encircled by tulle formed their headdresses and completing their costumes were matching satin slippers and short white gloves. Their bouquets in crescent design were fashioned of white poinsettias and white anthurium, tied with loops of white velvet tubing.

Candles were lighted by Miss Glenda Hart and Everette Lee Smith. Miss Hart wore a dress in afternoon length styled similar to those of the other attendants, with a wrist corsage of pink rosebuds and white velvet ribbon. Flower girl was Miss Elizabeth Kay Wills, niece of the bride, who wore a floor length model of princess pink peau de soie and carried a white basket filled with pink roses and leather leaf fern. Train bearers were Miss Martha Kay Wills, dressed identical to the flower girl and wearing a wrist corsage of rosebuds, and Donald Wallace Wills Jr., niece and nephew of the bride.

The bridegroom's father served as best man and groomsmen were Fred Manhart, brother of the groom; Don Wills, brother of the bride; Roy Pace of Longview, Texas; Don Whitehead of Lake Providence and Tommy Poulan. Ring bearer was Everette Lee Smith Jr., nephew of the bride.

Mrs. Wills wore for her daughter's wedding a gown of dusty rose lace with cape collar, matching accessories and a corsage of pink vanda orchids. Mrs. Manhart, mother of the groom, chose blue lace sheath with accessories to match and a corsage of pink orchids.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. The tiered wedding cake, crested with a white satin bell against a heart of white tulle and seed pearls, centered a round satin covered table, draped with tulle and garlanded by white mums and satin ribbons. Mrs. Robert John Wills Jr., sister - in - law of the bride, served the cake. Groom's cake of two large interlocking wedding rings of German chocolate, was served from a linen covered table adorned with an arrangement of fresh green grapes in a silver compote. Mrs. Don Wills, sister - in - law of the bride, served the groom's cake.

Punch was served from two large antique cut glass punch bowls at each end of a long table covered in white satin, overlaid by white tulle, and centered with a cut glass compote filled with pink roses and leather leaf fern. On either side were five - branched antique silver candelabra which held pink tapers. Presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. Roy McIntyre of Delhi, cousin of the bride and Mrs. Benny Hortman. Mrs. Opal Creasy registered guests in the guest book at a small table covered in white bridal satin and holding an arrangement of pink roses and pink tapers in a silver candelabra. Assisting with courtesies were Mrs. Lawrence Pettit, aunt of the bride; Mrs. M. J. Hortman and Mrs. Olan Whitney.

Tea girls were Misses Kathleen McCoy, cousin of the bride; Jan Whitney, Nan Whitney, Janet Glenn and Ruth Evelyn Brooks. Rice bags were presented guests by Miss LaQuita Smith and Miss Lona Wills, nieces of the bride and Miss Pamela Rollins. Arrangements of pink and white chrysanthemums were used throughout the reception area.

When the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a chocolate brown mohair suit with beige crepe blouse and sable brown suede accessories and an orchid corsage. They will be at home in Baton Rouge.

The bride graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and received her B. S. degree in medical technology from Northeast Louisiana State College. Also a graduate of Ouachita high school, Mr. Manhart received his B. S. in electrical and electronics engineering from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Sally Sue Nyhuis to Daniel Alonzo Doughty, son of Mrs. A. R. Doughty and the late Dr. Doughty, of Monroe, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nyhuis, also of this city. The wedding is planned for December 30 in Messiah Lutheran Church.

Texas Girl Betrothed To Richard J. Rosenbaum

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron J. Farfel of Houston, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Gail to Richard J. Rosenbaum, son of Mrs. Frederick Rosenbaum and the late Mr. Rosenbaum of Monroe.

Miss Farfel was graduated from Pine Manor Junior College, Finch College and received her master of arts degree from Teacher's College, Columbia University. She is presently teaching in the Houston School system.

Mr. Rosenbaum attended Louisiana State University and was graduated from the University of Arkansas. He is president and associate owner of a men's specialty clothing store in Houston, Texas.

A February 21 wedding is planned in Houston, Texas.

Beat until the mixture is smooth and use as a spread for crackers. Yield: about 1¼ cups.

'Twelve Days Of Christmas' Theme Of Junior Charity League Ball

The holiday season opened on a gala note Saturday night, December 5 when the Junior Charity League held its annual Christmas ball. Using as a theme "The Twelve Days of Christmas" decorations throughout the ballroom of the Paragon Club, scene of the event, carried out the legend.

Music for dancing from 9 until 1 was provided by Phares Corder.

On either side of the club's entrance was a red treble clef glittered in gold. Golden pears were placed at intervals along the musical clef and on the curve, perched a partridge, setting the theme for arriving guests.

Welcoming guests in the foyer were Mrs. Jesse McDonald, president of the league; Mrs. Harry M. Bell, chairman of the ways and means committee and Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, a member of the committee. A topiary pear tree provided a background for the receiving line.

As guests were ushered to their tables by other members of the ways and means committee, the story of "The Twelve Days of Christmas," was unfolded. At various vantage points around the ballroom stood twelve columns. Attached to each was a ten foot high figure depicting one of the twelve days. These included the lady, the leaping lord and the maid milking among others. Behind the bandstand was an oversize partridge, above which was hung a large golden pear.

Included in the decorating scheme was the traditional Christmas tree. This year's tall stately tree was hung with golden ropes and adorned with vivid red cardinals.

On each table was a six branched candelabra, holding lighted tapers and based with clusters of pine. Nestled in the greenery were tiny gift-wrapped packages, each of which contained a fortune.

Members of the ways and means committee responsible for the festive affair are Mrs. Harry M. Bell, chairman; Mrs. Elmer C. Slagle Jr., Mrs. John Kelso Jr., Mrs. Robert Chabot, Mrs. Edgar P. Chapman, Mrs. Eugene Worthen, Mrs. Doyle Hamilton, Mrs. Ed Seymour Jr., and Mrs. Jack Rivers. Also assisting was Mrs. James Rivers.

Blouses Reflect Fair Lady Look For Holidays

Fashion's gentle mood is reflected in a romantic holiday collection of ladylike cotton blouses. On the market in time for special gift - giving, the styles draw their inspiration from the new musical film, "My Fair Lady."

Cast in the delicate look that prevailed at the turn of the century, the blouses make a fashion point of portrait collars, ruffles, bows, tucked bibs and long billowing sleeves.

Fabrics featured in the holiday collection are notable for their air of feminity. They range from lustrous cotton satin in bold stripes or large coin dots to delicate embroidered cotton eyelet.

Solemnized Saturday, December 5 in the First Baptist Church, Huttig, Ark., was the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Betty Lane Via and Clark Allen Reed, both of El Dorado, Arkansas. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Via, of Huttig and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John M. Reed of El Dorado.

A crown of pearls held her veil of French illusion and her only jewelry was a diamond pendant, a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and orchids.

Stick-On Decor Makes Unique Exterior Trim

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) —What's sticky about Christmas trimmings: outdoor decorations for the house.

If you don't want to fuss with stringing lights and expensive ornaments on the house, trees and lamp posts, just plaster the mortgaged-cottage with inexpensive adhesive - backed vinyl covering like magic - cover — a weather resistant trimming.

Goodyear Women's Service Bureau reports this inexpensive material can be cut with sewing scissors. You can fashion it into candy stripes for lamp posts, snowflakes for windows, Santa figures for storm doors or picture windows.

Novel tree ornaments are made by wrapping the colorful vinyl around paper cups, odd-shaped boxes and spools.

Christmas Decorations Demonstrated For Clubs

Ideas for creating unique and colorful Christmas decorations were revealed to members of the Welcome Garden club and Highland Study club and guests at a joint meeting held Monday afternoon in the Agriculture building in West Monroe.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. M. B. Latham of Bentonia, Mississippi, who illustrated her talk and demonstration by displaying beautiful and easy to make decorations for doors, mantels, tables and wall plaques.

One arrangement featured a small red glittered wagon, filled with peppermint carnations, clipped pine and peppermint candles. A hogarth design incorporated a figurine in dark gray with large Fuji chrysanthemums and holly branches, sprayed with blue glitter.

Mrs. Latham also displayed a triangle design done on ply board, bound in green ribbon, with the design created by use of colored glass in greens, blue and white. She explained the process for making the chipped glass was by using discarded bottles usually found in the home, which were placed in a preheated oven 450 degrees for 25 minutes, then placed on a towel in the kitchen sink, where by pouring a pitcher of ice water over the bottles they will break into pieces without sharp edges. The chipped glass may then be glued to the plyboard surface for creating many and varied designs.

Another unusual decoration featured plyboard covered in red velvet to which two basket halves in gold had been attached with golden bows for a wall plaque. Gold rope tinsel was used for bows and streamers. Also on display were numerous decorative candles, an arrangement with porcelain flowers in red and silver, and other door pieces made with nuts, acorns and wild flowers.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery introduced the guest speaker and Mrs. Ralph Einhorn assisted in displaying the arrangements. Mrs. S. W. Raby and Mrs. K. R. Young registered guests for the clubs. Mrs. J. W. Golson is uresident of Welcome Garden Club and Mrs. Sidney A. Swink, president of Highland Study Club.

Styles Varied In Handbags For Yule Gifts

A leather handbag for Christmas holds the key to any woman's happy holiday. This one gift can open the door to beauty, taste and practicality.

Winter handbag fashions display an elegance of line and leather that will enchant every female from eighteen to eighty, says Leather Industries of America. Leathers in striking surface treatments — grained, smooth, waxy, suede, brushed, embossed — are available in a wide selection of shapes, shades and sizes.

Whether her gift bag is for daytime, late day or evening, she'll love it more if it's leather.

For peak performance, choose a smart grained or brushed leather satchel or pouch accented tastefully with brass or gold hardware. These daytime dandies see any woman through the day's many activities and still come up fresh and trim. The newly-returned shoulder-strap bag will make a handsome and handy gift in one of the neat versions now available in lightweight leathers.

For a more formal daytime look, there are many bags with a smaller, sleeker silhouette sure to find favor with any woman on your gift list. To add the finishing touch to a dressy ensemble, give her a leather envelope or clutch with elegant detailing.

If she's one of the night people, present her with a petite evening bag in lustre, smooth or suede leather, fastened with a sparkling jeweled clip, or sporting an etched gold clasp or bar-closing. She'll wear this bright ornament with pride and pleasure long after the baubles for the Christmas tree have been put away for another year.

Double her delight by stashing a set of coordinated leather purse accessories into her gift bag. Pretty and practical, these wallets, french purses, eyeglass cases and key cases come in every dreamable color, style and leather.

Foliage Plants Adjust Inside

The more care your foliage plants have received before you take them home the less care they'll need afterwards. And — the longer they'll last.

That's why it's best to select your new fall foliage plants from a nearby professional supplier. Quality growers and florists in your area now can make available foliage plants native to nearly all parts of the world.

But — since they are natives of tropical climates — these plants must be acclimatized to their new surroundings. And this can best be done by the professional grower.

Plants that have been professionally climate conditioned will be marketed in porous red clay pots, filled with the proper sterilized soil mixtures, and fertilized to provide them with proper drainage and nourishment. Foliage plants in porous containers get extra health dividends to make them last longer because they are automatically safeguarded against over - watering, the most common cause of house plant failures. Also, the porosity of clay, maintains a constant supply of life - giving air to plant roots to help protect them in today's over - heated homes. The best temperatures range for most popular foliage plants is between 60 and 70 degrees.

Foliage plants used in interiors should be lightly watered, with water at room temperature. Never place them in full sunlight unless your florist or garden center expert has specifically advised you to do so. And you don't need to apply fertilizer oftener than every month, or even at longer intervals.

Ask your florist about specific light and temperature requirements for individual foliage plants. Strive for the happy medium in watering and feeding. And you'll find that professionally conditioned plants in clay pots will make long - lasting contributions to your family's daily surroundings.

To make potato balls, use medium - sized spuds; quarter and trim the corners.

If you are planning to serve tea or coffee right along with the main course for lunch, you may place the teaspoon to the right of the knife or on the saucer that accompanies the tea or coffee cup.

MRS. HILLMAN EDWARD HUNTER

Hunter-Forrester Vows Read In Ferriday Church

Baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums interspersed with greenery and flanked by white tapers in branched candelabra formed a setting in Sevier Memorial Methodist Church at Ferriday for the wedding of Miss Alice Ann Forrester and Hillman Edward Hunter on November 27 at 6 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Forrester of Ferriday and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Hillman Hunter of Kenner.

Rev. Jerry Means, assisted by acolytes Stan Rife and Pat Galloway performed the ceremony following a program of wedding music by Al Strozier, organist and Tom Milliken, soloist.

Wearing a gown of Chantilly lace and bridal satin the bride was escorted by her father who gave her in marriage. The fitted bodice of lace over satin was fashioned with a low rounded neckline and long sleeves which ended in lily points over the hands. The belled skirt featured an overlay of the lace and was highlighted by a detachable chapel train with a watteau effect. Her veil of illusion fell in tiers from a crown of pearls and iridescents. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Joan Schuchs, LSU, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Rebecca Purvis, LSU, Miss Juanice Harris, Louisiana Tech and Miss Vicki Vollmer, Northeast Louisiana State College. The honor attendant wore a frock of aqua iridescent bridal velvet created with brief sleeves, low rounded neckline and short bell skirt. A brief Chantilly lace jacket was styled with high neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Her headdress was a matching velvet circlet, embellished with lace appliques and caught with a short tulle veil. She wore matching slippers and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Bridesmaids were identically gowned in turquoise velvet.

Benny Fowler of Alexandria, served as best man for Mr. Hunter and groomsmen were Ray Boughton and Tommy Denning of Ferriday and Billy Coney of New Orleans.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Forrester wore a beige brocade suit with matching accessories and a yellow orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a turquoise chiffon dress with jacket of Chantilly lace, matching hat and complementary accessories.

Fellowship hall of the church was scene of the reception which followed. Mrs. T. L. Purvis of Ferriday and Mrs. V. R. Purvis of Jonesville, had charge of reception courtesies.

All tables were covered with cloths of pink satin and net and adorned with pink floral arrangements. A memory candle was displayed on the guest book table presided over by Miss Phyllis Love of Ferriday. Miss Ouida Faye, New Orleans, was at the punch bowl and floating hostesses were Mrs. T. L. Purvis, Mrs. D. E. Gremmillion, Mrs. A. D. Strozier and Mrs. L. F. Love.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride wore a green suede suit with green patent accessories and a white orchid corsage. They are now at home in Sicily Island where Mr. Hunter is on the faculty and a coach at Sicily Island high school. The bride is a student at Northeast in Monroe.

Patricia Sanders Wed In Candlelight Setting

Tropical palms of emerald and jade, interspersed with myriad cathedral tapers and massive arrangements of happiness roses formed a background for the wedding Saturday, December 5 of Miss Patricia Ann Sanders, Bastrop and Alfred Walker Dohoney Jr., Shreveport.

Dr. Hugh E. Bradshaw of West Monroe, performed the double ring ceremony at 5 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church of Bastrop. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sanders of Bastrop and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Walker Dohoney, Shreveport.

Appropriate nuptial music was provided by Mrs. J. B. Spier, organist and Mrs. Darrell Foreman, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin, designed with a Sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves. The bodice was appliqued with handrun Alencon lace with the motifs repeated on the controlled skirt which extended into a full chapel train from soft folds at the back waistline. A satin pillbox with lace accents held her full veil of silk illusion, and her bouquet was comprised of garlands of stephanotis and glamelias centered with a white orchid.

Miss Judith Ann Jones, Shreveport, served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Dianne Garrett, Monroe, cousin of the bride and Miss Sue Shirley, Bastrop. Their identical frocks were designed with controlled short skirts of ivory brocade and bodices of avocado green velvet, featuring Sabrina necklines and elbow sleeves. They wore avocado velvet pillbox hats and carried bouquets of full blown Happiness roses in cascade design.

Candlelighters, Miss Sally Holt and Miss Marion Donovan wore dresses identical to those of the other attendants, with matching velvet Tom Jones bows for headpieces and wrist corsages of happiness roses.

Mr. Dohoney served as best man for his son and groomsmen were David S. Dale, Houston, Texas, cousin of the groom and Francis J. Keller, Shreveport. Ushers were Edmund L. Dohoney, Shreveport, brother of the groom and Albert A. Eubanks, Monroe.

For her daughter's wedding and the reception which followed at the International House, Mrs. Sanders was wearing a frock of dusty rose featuring a silk crepe skirt and lace top. Her accessories were in matching shade and she wore a white orchid corsage. Mrs. Dohoney, mother of the groom, wore an ice blue peau de soie model with lace top and matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Two large baskets of happiness roses flanked the entrance to International House and a pyramidal design of rosebuds in a silver branched candelabra formed the central decor for the bride's table. Flanking the arrangement were footed antique crystal compotes holding miniature arrangements of red roses. At one end of the table the tiered wedding cake was encircled by leatherleaf fern and full blown roses and opposite was the silver punch bowl.

Presiding at the table were Mrs. John Godwin, Mrs. O. E. Bridges, Mrs. Christy Roberts and Mrs. Keith McGuire, all of Bastrop. Tea girls were Miss Sharon Boughton, Mrs. Paul Cox, Mrs. W. K. Hayes and Mrs. Donald Walker.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a green light weight wool suit with cowl-necked blouse and black accessories. Her flower hat was in shades of blue and green. They will be at home in Shreveport.

Mrs. Dohoney was graduated from Bastrop high school and Northwestern State College where she received her B. S. in nursing. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority. The bridegroom, whose fraternity is Kappa Sigma, graduated from St. John's high school and Centenary College in Shreveport, with a B. S. in commerce.

Candied cherries, macaroon crumbs and toasted almonds may be folded into slightly softened vanilla ice cream. If you try this, work quickly, pack the mixture into a freezing tray and refreeze.

Cultura Book Club Coffee Fetes Trenton Society

The home of Mrs. Henry Camp on Dondee Drive in West Monroe was scene of a beautifully appointed coffee given last Saturday by members of the Cultura Book Club. Purpose of the occasion was to honor members of the Trenton Society which the Cultura club helped to organize earlier in the year.

Dr. J. W. Storey, Bride Plan Tallulah Home

The wedding of Miss Juanita Ann Thibodeaux and Dr. Jacob Wesley Storey was solemnized at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Tallulah Thursday morning, November 26. The Rev. Richard Lombard performed the double ring ceremony at 10 a.m.

The bride is the daughter of Willis Thibodeaux and the late Mrs. Thibodeaux of Gueydan and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie G. Storey of Tallulah.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Mitch Midyett.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a beige knit suit with a wool jacket in shades of orange and brown. Her accessories were brown and she wore a white orchid corsage.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Roy Boudreaux of Crowley, who wore a white suit with blue accessories and an orchid corsage. Gerald L. Walter of Baton Rouge attended Dr. Storey as best man.

Following the ceremony the bridal party and out of town guests were entertained at a wedding dinner in the home of the groom's parents. Upon their return from a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will reside at Dr. Storey's home on Johnson Street in Tallulah.

Shirt Leads Field For Male Gifts

The gift most often received by men for Christmas isn't a necktie, after all. According to a gift-wrapping concern which keeps up with what goes under the wrappings, the most popular gift is a shirt.

To rate as a gift-giver, make sure the shirt you select fits the man . . . not just in correct size, but in style and wear needs.

The shirt of white cotton broadcloth is a classic style that will be a welcome addition to any man's wardrobe. If he's color-minded choose a striped shirt. New and smart-looking are cotton oxford shirts in multi-colored stripes of varying widths.

YOUR PROBLEMS

It's Cheaper If She Boo Hoos After 6 P.M.

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: My wife and I have been married three years. Millie always was a mama's girl but I thought she'd grow up when we moved out of town. The reason I asked for a transfer was to get Millie 400 miles away from her mother.

Every night Millie is on the phone crying to her mother about some darned fool thing. Either she put a blue sock in the wash and the dye ran on to a white tablecloth or her cake caved in. Tonight she was bawling because she fell off her bicycle and twisted her knee.

What can I do about this?—PUZZLED

Dear Puzz: I hope Millie has been crying after 6:00 p.m. It's cheaper.

A married woman who continues to lean on her mother may not be getting the proper emotional support from her husband. I suggest joint counseling. Don't just look in the phone book and go to anybody who is listed. Contact the Family Service Association or the Y.M.C.A.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of Monroe Morning World enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

On Dit' — Marillyn Taylor

WHEEEE — it's December. This, gayest month on our social calendar, got underway with several gala events this week. Thursday night members of Ouachita Parish Medical society and its Auxiliary were entertained at the organization's annual holiday party, a dinner dance in the Paragon ballroom Invitations mailed to this affair set the French theme noted throughout, naming the evening "Joyeuses Vacances". The menu, as listed on the invitaion, included "Salade, Chateaubriand en brochette, cafe noir, riz espagnol, haricots verts au jambon, chaud pain et beurre, creme de menthe parfait".

Arriving guests were greeted at the ballroom door by ROY KELLY, society president, and BARBARA BROWN, auxiliary president. NAT SPENCER, CHERIE LONG, and CAROLYN SIMPSON registered arrivals. The receiving line stood before a white wrought iron French flower cart, banked with pine boughs and holly. Candles burned in French lampposts which stood at the table and atop the cart. Pine and holly were used throughout the ballroom. Individual tables, centered with greenery, held lighted red candles. Les Winslow and his orchestra played from eight until midnight.

This was a dressed - up party, with elegant street-length clothes sharing honors with long skirts. LAVERNE BODRON's floor length skirt was of white cut velvet, with brocaded flowers in shades of blue, red and green. She wore with this a simply-styled overblouse of blue velveteen . . . Peacock blue chiffon was most becoming to LIL MARX. The dress was styled with long sleeves and long skirt, fitted in front and flaring into a fishtail train in back.

Small embossed black velvet flowers ornamented GAIL BULLOCH's gold lame, styled with long straight skirt . . . With a black wool overblouse, MARIE COOKSTON wore a long skirt of white printed with black geometric figures . . . MARY LEE MILAM's floor length grey crepe featured quilted motifs highlighted with grey sequins . . . An unusual combination was CONNIE JONES's wool skirt, a plaid in shades of electric blue, brown, and maroon, which she wore with a blue peau de soie bodice . . . PAT BLANCHARD topped a gold lame floor length sheath with a severely cut hip length jacket of black lace.

We noted also several unusually lovely short dinner dresses . . . as ELLEN MINTZ's bone crepe, styled with long sleeves and quilted skirt, and highlighted with a tailored sash of green velveteen . . . ROSE RAPHAEL of Bastrop wore a combination of ecru lace over champagne, shades especially becoming with her dark hair and eyes. Scallops of lace finished the neckline, and the skirt was full with unpressed pleats.

□ □ □

Visitors in Monroe are always sure of a lavish welcome. And never more so than when they are former residents home from afar. MALCOLM STEEN is in town, visiting his parents, the E. M. STEENS, and sisters, DOTTIE BOOTH and EVELYN TURNER. This is Mike's first trip home in some time, as he has been living in Spain for the past three years. Last night MARGARET and HERBERT LAND entertained at an open house, inviting old friends in for a visit with Mike.

Ivy and lights ringed the entrance of the Land residence on Spencer street, where a pink and gold Santa Claus figure hung on the door. Margaret carried the holiday motif throughout the reception suite. In the living room, gold and white garlands, caught with blue bows, decorated the mantel.

A red cloth covered the dining room table, which was centered with an arrangement of red and white carnations. The buffet included smoked turkey, clam dip, sliced ham, cheese almonds, and other finger foods. Those assisting in serving were KATHY EWING, EVELYN TURNER, and HARRIETT CALE. Music was provided by JOHN CALE at the piano. Guests were invited to call between seven and nine.

Visitors in the home of JEAN and M. S. DIXON, JR., this weekend are Jean's sister and brother-in-law, MICKEY and LOUIE CYR of New Iberia, and their son, PAUL. They arrived late Friday, to be here until this afternoon, their first visit to the Dixons new home on Indian Mound drive.

Last night's compliment for these visitors was a dinner party at the home of TEEDEE and JOE DIXON on Pargoud boulevard. MARY ANN and BISH JOHNSTON were co-hosts. All green and red holiday decorations were used for this party. A wreath of natural holly with berries hung on the front door. In the living room and den were mass arrangements of holly boughs. Chandeliers were tied with holly and green Christmas balls.

A green runner extended the length of the dining room table. Red candles burned in branched gold candelabra tied with holly. The buffet included standing rib roast, potatoes au gratin, congealed strawberry salad, and chocolate ice box cake. Eighteen guests attended.

At noon Saturday, GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE was hostess for a family luncheon at her home. This morning the Cyrs are invited for milk punch at the home of DOT and KENT BREARD. The visitors plan to return home this afternoon.

Another former Monroyan "back home" for Thanksgiving was ANGELYN JONES, here with husband WALLY, son KYLE, and daughter SHAWN, of Baton Rouge. They were visiting Angelyn's parents, MILDRED and JOE SWIFT. On Friday morning, LIBBY MILLER was hostess at a party attended by about fifteen old friends of the visitor. Guests enjoyed sweet rolls, coffee, and lots of conversation. Lemons and limes arranged with variegated euonymus decorated the table.

Guests in the home of JEAN and FRED McCALL on Park avenue are her mother, MRS. J. RANDOLPH BAKER, and her friend, MRS. HAL TANNER of Goldsboro, North Carolina. They arrived Monday and will be here until this coming Thursday, with a few days in Dallas this weekend. Thursday evening the hosts honored the visitors at a small party. White chrysanthemums centered the refreshment table Guests were invited to call between 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Here from Baton Rouge last weekend were MISSY KEAN, daughter of the GORDON KEANS; JEAN SIMMONS, daughter of the JOE SIMMONS, both of Baton Rouge. They were guests of BECKY HUENEFELD in the home of her parents, the FRED HUENEFELDS, on Pargoud Boulevard. These two arrived by plane Friday afternoon, accompanied by BECKY SIMMONS, Jean's sister, who visited the CLARK BOYCES . . . Becky was hostess Friday night to ten girls who had attended Camp DeSoto in Mentone, Alabama, with Missy and Jean this past summer. Hamburger supper was served, followed by an all-nights pallet party.

Saturday morning, GAY FAULK invited the group for breakfast at the Pancake House . . . VEE MARSHALL entertained Becky, Jean and Missy for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club . . . That night, a wiener roast was planned by LYNN LOFLIN at her home on Pargoud boulevard. Twenty girls attended . . . Sunday's schedule included horseback riding and boat riding before the visitors' departure for home that evening.

Forty friends surprised ANN and SAM CLARK with a house-warming party at their new home on Indian Mound Drive last Thurseay evening. Guests arrived bearing gifts and supper. The menu, planned by WAENA MAYO, ANGIE IRVIN and PAT FUNDERBURK, included barbecued ham, candied yams, asparagus casserole, a choice of salads and for dessert, brownies and blondies.

As we feel the beginnings of Christmas excitement in the air, we can find the pleasurable sensations expressed in this poem, "Anticipations" by J. R. J.:

I love preliminary things:
The tuning-up of flutes and strings;
The little scales musicians play
In varying keys to feel their way;
The hum — the hush in which it dies,
But most to see the curtain rise.
I love preliminary things:
The little box the postman brings;
To cut the twine, to break the seals,
And wonder what the lid reveals.
To lift the folds in which it lies
And watch the gift materialize
The snowdrop and the daffodil,
The catkins hanging straight and still;
The blossom on the orchard trees —
Do you know greater joys than these?
Each represents the hope that springs
In all preliminary things.

Many, Varied Are Fashion Uses Of Fur

The fall furs have arrived in town and country — furs from tip to toe; furs from tiny ascots to floor-length evening wraps; whimsical furs for active sports or fireside; hardy furs for country living; elegant fur suits; layered, reversible furs.

Fur pullovers, fur dresses — you name it. Virtually any fashion is now available in supple furs, tailored as meticulously as cloth.

Fur news finds a fashion flipping for the spotted set, with leopard, jaguar and tiger shining bright. Going sportive in ski parkas are fitch, snow leopard, snowy lynx. Pony shows up in little waistcoats.

Furs are capes and tunics and trench coats in sable, chinchilla or ermine. Furs are suits, or dramatically line suit jackets.

DECEMBER 19 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Artie Lee Holleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Holleman of Lafayette, and David L. Ray Jr., son of Mrs. Nonette J. Ray, Monroe and the late David L. Ray Sr., Cleveland, Ohio. The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Johnson of Monroe. The ceremony will be performed at 11 a.m. in Our Lady of Fatima church in Lafayette.

A CHRISTMAS EVE wedding, December 24 is planned by Miss Ramona Sharlene Caples and David Terry Hayes, whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Caples of West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Hayes of Farmerville.

Time Nears To Rally Round The Punch Bowl

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the name of holiday spirits, shortly many of us will rally around the punch bowl, so much a part of Americana it's a surprise to find it originated in India.

But researchers for various makers of spirits report the word "punch" developed from the Hindustani "Pauch," meaning five.

No one knows how the ancient Indians worked their way from the word "five" to the idea of punch. But there are a lot of theories.

Some claim it stood for the five ingredents of punch — hot, cold, bitter, sweet and sour.

Others maintain it stood for the five ingredients of the famous oriental swizzle: arrack, tea, sugar, water and lemon juice.

But regardless of what the five stood for, punch still makes the perfect holiday treat. Hot or cold, it has a festive air that is hard to beat.

In Colonial America, no social gathering was complete without its punch bowl. It held water for christenings, set the tempo for the wedding festivities and was essential to the final tribute paid at the funeral.

In the interim, it reigned over house raisings, husking bees, the timber rolling, the lottery drawing and elections.

The father of the country, George Washington, was a great admirer of the punch bowl.

But he stood not alone. In his time, and after, Americans and Englishmen alike observed their festive occasions around the punch bowl.

To bring punch up to date, the bowl has a place at the patio barbecue as well as at the formal open house. Clans gather 'round the punch bowl at weddings, cook outs, christenings and Christmas.

The big thing about punch — and even George Washington must have known — is that it is economical. Punch goes a long way. Large crowds can be served quickly.

Another of the delights of the punch bowl is that there are no a la carte orders. You don't have to rack your brain trying to recall that the gal or guy at the fireplace wanted a Manhatten, that the person to the left or right wanted an old fashioned with one or two rocks

Flowers-Traylor Vows Read In Home Setting

Vows uniting Miss Bettye Traylor, 1309 N. McGuire, and Keith Dwain Flowers, 4007 Spurgeon Drive, Monroe, were solemnized Thursday, November 26. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lavelle Traylor of Haile and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse O. Flowers, Delhi.

The wedding was performed in the presence of family and close friends at 4 p.m. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Starling, 410 Melvyn Drive, Monroe, where branched candelabra, entwined with ivy formed an improvised altar for the exchange of vows. Bouquets of stock and lily of the valley were used about the room. Harold Poland, minister of College Town Church of Christ, performed the ceremony following a vocal solo, "Because," by Audrey L. Paylor.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a street length dress of white silk linen, styled with elbow sleeves and slightly gathered skirt. A tiara of seed pearls held her fingertip veil of silk illusion and her only jewelry was a pair of drop pearl earrings. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and feathered chrysanthemums with pearl leaves and white ribbon streamers.

Miss Wilda Lenard of Monroe, served as maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a rose velveteen dress with full box pleated skirt and elbow sleeves and carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums with pink ribbon streamers.

Alvin Upton served as best man and candles were lighted by Ray Floyd of Monroe.

For the occasion Mrs. Traylor wore a royal blue crepe sheath with white hat and gloves; black shoes and bag and a corsage of white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Flowers wore a blue wool suit with black accessories and a white chrysanthemum corsage.

A reception followed in the family room of the home where the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of pink chrysanthemums, and white roses, flanked by pink tapers. Miss Shirley Traylor, sister of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake, which was topped with three pink wedding bells and presiding at the crystal bowl of pink punch at the opposite end of the table was Mrs. Jimmy Traylor, sister-in-law of the bride. Miss Sherry Flowers, sister of the groom, presided at the bride's book at a table which held the memory candle and an arrangement of white stock.

For a short wedding trip to Jackson, Miss., the bride traveled in a navy blue silk sheath dress with black alligator accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Linville high school and B.M.I. in Monroe. Mr. Flowers, who graduated from Delhi high school, is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. The couple is at home in West Monroe.

SPRAY SETS

Spray a matched set of shoes, bag. Try perking up last year's shoes and bag with an aerosol spray. For instance: red shoes and bag to wear with blacks and grays for the winter. Aerosol sprays, now in many colors have really caught on for shoes —but matching up accessories with the spray is a new idea. Try it to cure winter blues before they start.

It is all right to store a whole ham in the refrigerator for a couple of weeks, but ham that is sliced should be used in three to five days.

Complaints Redden Ears Of 'Mine Host'

By MYRON FEINSILBER

NEW YORK (UPI) — A hotel executive has taken his fellow hotelmen to task for providing "automation when we should be providing atmosphere" and substituting indifference for "the personal touch that is supposed to be inherent in the old art of innkeeping."

The criticism was expressed by Victor E. Barrett, vice president of Manger Hotels, in a recent speech before the American Hotel and Motel Association convention here.

"One problem of our business is that guests often feel like 'Room 3064' not like 'Mr. Jones'," he said.

A survey showed that one of the chief complaints of hotel guests concerned the little bars of soap most hotels provide.

Barrett said this was "one of the little things which added up to one of the biggest, most frequent complaints."

"Maybe we're being penny conscious and guest foolish," he said. The small bars of soap cost hotels 1.83 cents each, the large, four cents each.

"What we're saying is that guests want all the comforts of home when they stay at a hotel," he said.

"Seventy-five per cent want a newspaper, 83 per cent want parking; 67 per cent want shoe polishing cloths; 62 per cent want a bag for soiled clothes; 88 per cent like a reading lamp and comfortable chair.

"Nobody wants dispenser soap and few people like paper cups."

Hotels, he said, should pamper guests and give them "a brief time away from the automatic dishwasher, automatic lawn mower, automatic toaster and automatic boredom.

"Once hotels were known as centers for gracious living; today, too many hotels are known as centers for tasteless living."

Another frequent complaint of long - time customers is that they are given no more attention than strangers.

Barrett quoted one, who said: "I've been coming to the same hotel at least five or six times a year for the past 10 years. Recently I was told they hadn't gotten my reservation . . . and what's more, there was no room.

"I had to make my own reservations and arrangements at another hotel and then had to get myself and my luggage over to that hotel."

One cause of trouble, he said, was that hotel managers are so busy in staff meetings behind the scenes—trying to figure out how to improve operations — that they don't have time to greet arriving guests.

"The old concept of 'mine host,' a concept which used to be vital to this business, is just about a museum piece today," he said.

NEW LOOK for dancing . . . new breed of evening leggery . . . His and Hers version. She wears black silk sling back shoes with pave glittering on the toes and gossamer stockings of white point d'esprit by Beautiful Bryans. His black tie requires thin-ribbed, over-the-calf hosiery and black patent evening shoes.

Textured Stockings Newest Fashion Kick

The mad, mad stockings that blossomed in Paris are fashion news everywhere this fall. Legs that haven't worn textured stockings since they skipped to school will be clad this year in cable knits, herringbones, lacy and tweed knits, jacquard patterns, and thick or thin ribs. Stockings will be textured firmly for day and sheerly for evening wear, creating new leg interest around the clock.

For wear with suits and daytime sportswear, there are stockings or tights (similar to dancers' leotards) in heavy, country weights such as alpaca, camelhair, cashmere, and lambs wool. Lighter, stretchy seamless styles are fashioned in nylon or nylon and Orlon acrylic blends.

Other daytime styles stop at the knee and are narrow-ribbed and cuffed, copied from the English school - boy look. They give a real snap to the vested suits so popular for casual wear. Colors run the fashion gamut, including silvery gray, brown, black, tan, champagne, beige, heather, camel, cordovan, maize, navy, pink, red, white, autumn gold, blue, cranberry, indigo, moss green, sienna and natural.

For after - five, the look is a 'femme fatale'' one. Jet blacks and charcoals are the major colors for this mood. Some of the stockings have jeweled clocks, butterflies or jet black ornamental designs. Others are tissue paper - sheer, textured in lace or diamond patterns that make the legs look utterly beautiful. A big plus in favor of darker stocking color for evening is the slimming effect they have on heavy legs.

Hints Given On Creating Yule Decor

Making old-fashioned ornaments to hang on Christmas trees can be a delightful project for youngsters at home, Scout groups or adults. A new idea in durable tree ornaments utilizes empty plastic bleach bottles. First, cut off the top and bottom of a large plastic container. Slit the large round band that was the middle of the bottle and lay it out flat.

Trace the outline of your design on the plastic, and cut it out with a sharp blade or scissors. Pierce a small hole at the top with an ice pick or paper punch for the loop or ornament hanger. Decorate with paint, nail polish, sequins, yarn, fabric scraps or whatever your imagination decrees.

MISS BARBARA SHIPP

Straight, Narrow Coats Ease Into Winter Scene

While winter '64 coats move along the straight and narrow path to fashion, the key word is "move." The new coat look shown gentled slimness with subtle seaming. Even the slimmest coat fashions are designed for ease and freedom of movement.

Ease in the new coats is provided with raglan shoulders or set-in sleeves that have deeper armholes, softly yoked backs and subtle shaping under the bust. When there is a belt, it appears to be part of the silhouette itself. It is run through slots placed around the coat at intervals, or set-in via a band of self-fabric.

STYLES ADD WARMTH

To ward off winds, all-fabric coats have larger collars that may be hugged to the throat, small snug collars buttoned high, and, often, large stoles. Sleeves follow the straight and narrow, their longer lengths adding another measure of warmth.

Popular double-breasted closings are manipulated so that the slender look of coats is maintained. Neat, classic buttons hold the coat together.

Pockets are subtle and pared down, in keeping with the shape of fashion. New "T" shaped pockets look smart. Sets of pockets deftly accent fit high under the bust.

FABRICS HAVE BODY

The gentle coat shape with a mind of its own is frequently achieved with fabrics that have more body. Examples of new fabrics that do not depend on heavy texture for interest are handsome herringbone worsteds, twills, ribs, coverts, whipcords and smooth checks.

Conversely, when textured coat fabrics appear, they have deep surfaces, such as the new ropey tweeds with a hand-crocheted look. Colorful tweeds are fluffy but light-as-air: ombre tweeds merge their colors exquisitely; two-tone tweeds are sophisticated in black and white or oatmeal and white.

COLORS LOOK FRESH

Coat colors are fresh and ever so refreshing. The off-whites make news with gray overtones rather than beige. Reds look strictly fall '64 in blued, carnation tones as well as flame or purpled hues.

Taupe with a putty cast and browns from chestnut to deep, blackened shades win fashion approval. Golds are antiqued or bronzed, and greens are bright as an emerald or grayed as a pine needle.

Blue hues include deep, slate tones, greenish Mediterranean blue and soft teal.

Black coats appear in new fabrics, quietly elegant, while Oxford gray looks superb in the whittled-down silhouette.

Area Couple Plans Late December Vows

Mr. and Mrs. Benard Dugas of Jonesboro, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Sue Lynn Dugas to Donnie Wayne Anderson. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Anderson of Hodge.

The wedding will take place December 27 at 3:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Jonesboro with the Rev. C. E. Ellis officiating. A reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride-elect is a student at Louisiana Polytecnnic Institute in Ruston where she will complete her studies.

Mr. Anderson is completing his studies in Mortuary Science at Commonwealth College in Houston, Texas where he will graduate in February.

ARITHMETIC

Kitchen arithmetic: 5 tablespoons plus 1 tablespoon make up 1 - 3 cup.

Slip Lengths Finally Match Short Skirts

Changing slip lengths is no simple matter for lingerie manufacturers, who find it difficult to change production fast enough to follow all the vagaries of fashion.

Only after studying sales over the past year have they decided that it's time to shorten slip lengths. The conclusion stems from sales of short-length slips already available. These have been accounting for as much as 50 per cent of sales with makers who have always produced slips in short, medium and long lengths. The long lengths, meant for taller women, have all but been wiped out in sales, as tall women turned to medium lengths to get slips short enough for current outerwear hemlines.

Fashion leaders in lingerie have been somewhat quicker with short slips. Vanity Fair, Gotham and Warners have already done chemise or "disco" lengths.

The spring lingerie collections should see a general shortening in slip lengths, so that women can at last match short skirts to above-the-knee slips.

Fall Belts Have New Personality

The soft look brings a new interest in belts — in smooth and suede leather, in crushed and patent leather, in steerhide and calf. There is also focus on reptile, and on jeweled varieties. Any or all will be worn to emphasize a pretty waistline.

Widths run from spaghetti - thin strands to six-inch cummerbunds, in every texture and width.

For added sparkle the smart woman may add costume jewelry to her belt, such as charms in the form of the Cravelle pendant. You may choose from lucky-13 group of spheres and discs on golden chains. Lacquered cases come in 5 different shades on which golden tracings have been diamond-cut.

Of course these timely charmers really keep time; they have unbreakable mainsprings and are shockproof.

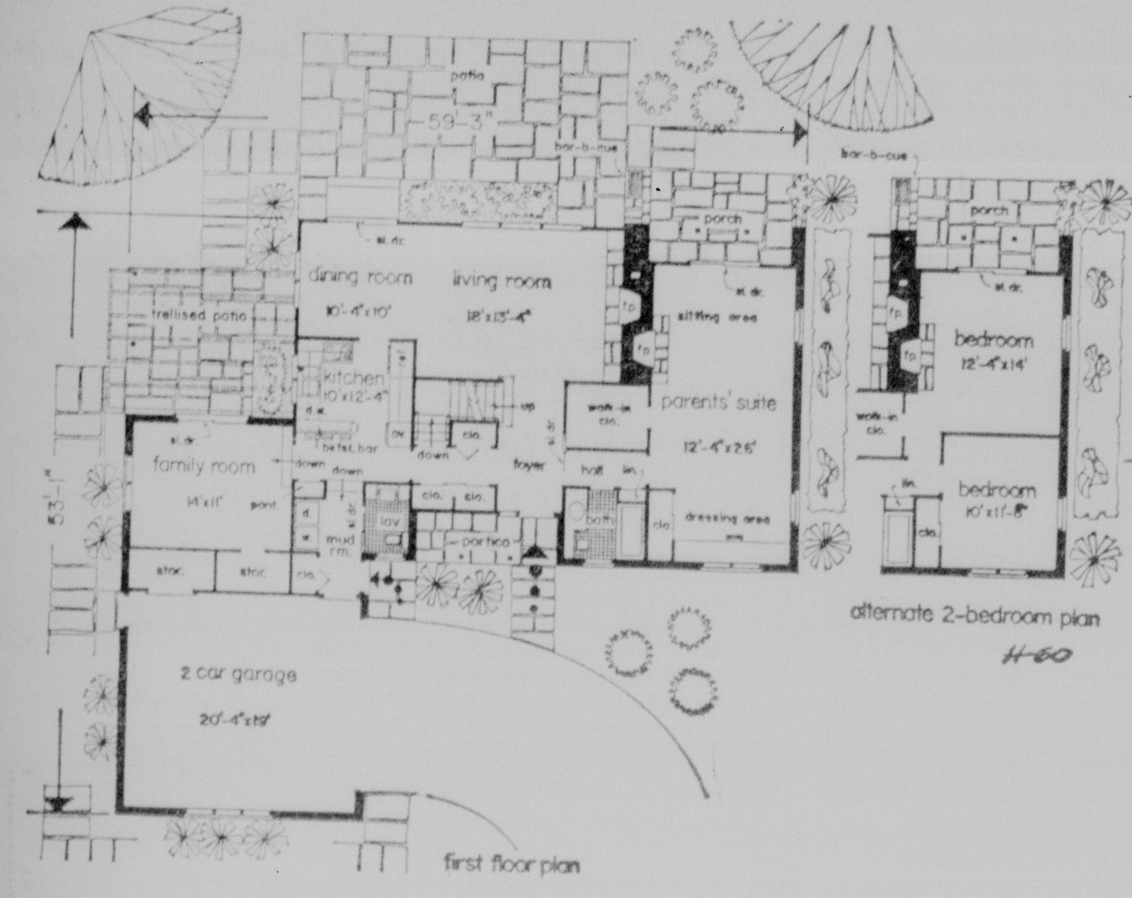
THE CHARM of a Cape Cod and the trim lines of a ranch are intermingled in this delightful house, a combination made by the placement of the expandable second floor area in a large rear dormer.



FLOOR PLANS: Whether you want a luxurious eight-room with two-car garage, or an economical five-room cottage, or something in between, the plans for this house are flexible enough to permit fulfilling your family's needs.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Cape Cod Type Design Allows For Expansion

By ANDY LANG

The demand for expandable homes has caused more and more architects to turn their talents to designs that can be adjusted to fit the needs of small or large families.

Some exciting plans have resulted from the trend — and many of them have been presented for the first time in this House of the Week series. Now we have here another unusual but practical expandable home.

ECONOMICAL

The basic house is an economical yet charming five-room cottage. Expanded to its maximum, it becomes a luxurious eight-room home, complete with a lavish parents' suite (more about that later), a family room, two full baths, two half-baths, a trellised patio and much more, all wrapped up in a delightful Cape Cod exterior. It is, therefore, suitable for a small or large family, but it is even more suitable for a family whose present requirements are limited yet will require more space in the future.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-60.

In the clever plan designed by architect Samuel Paul, the core of the house is made up of five rooms with a good traffic pattern. The reception foyer serves as a spacious and attractive entry to the home. It has a soaring cathedral ceiling which reaches up over the gallery on the second floor; there are paneled walls and planters atop three closets. All this before you move into the living room, which has a massive stone wall and fireplace. This same fireplace wall extends out to form a barbecue at the rear patio. The living and dining rooms are in a straight line at the back of the house, creating a 28-foot formal expanse.

WELL EQUIPPED

The kitchen, located within steps of a lavatory and a combined mudroom - laundry, has a full complement of equipment, including a double - sink under two windows, an adjacent dishwasher and a breakfast bar.

To the right of the foyer is a two - bedroom wing. The rear bedroom has a fireplace and a sliding door leading to a porch. The second floor, in this setup, would be framed out but left virtually unfinished.

The family desiring a little more living space could build a family room and trellised patio at the left side of the house. As the floor plans show, this room would be one step down from the kitchen and have sliding glass doors leading to the extra patio. It also would have a cathedral ceiling and a large walk-in storage closet for toys, games, etc.

When needed, the second floor could be finished piecemeal or all at once. Provision is made for three bedrooms, a bath, a lavatory and generous closet space. Once this area had been finished, the parents could decide, based on the family's needs, whether to leave the two downstairs bedrooms intact or convert this area into their own suite. By removing two partitions, the bedrooms are turned into a suite 26' long with a dressing area at the front and a sitting area at the rear overlooking the sliding door to the porch. The stone wall and fireplace which were part of the original rear bedroom would remain.

POSSIBILITIES

Naturally, the large family would build the entire house at once, including a two-car garage and providing up to five bedrooms if need be. But the expansion possibilities are enormous. What's more, the same set of plans can last through all these revisions.

Although Cape Cod in general style, Design H-60 has a partial ranch-like appearance to it because architect Paul has located the entire second floor in a spacious rear dormer. The arcaded front portico and diamond-paned windows add to the exterior appeal.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Prune Grapes This Month

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Prune your scuppernongs and muscadines right now or between now and the New Year. Gardeners who wait until after the beginning of the new year are alarmed by the way the vines "bleed," especially in warm spells in the later winter months. These grapes are pruned within a few weeks after the first hard frosts. You can prune the other kinds of bunch grapes a little later than the muscadines, but it is best to prune all kinds by the first of the year.

The habit of growing muscadines and scuppernongs on arbors is so fixed in our minds here in the south that people seem to forget that these lusty vines can be grown on upright fence-like structures or on good fences just as well.

There is no reason to let the muscadnies (scruppernongs are just "white" or green or amber-colored muscadines) run all over your yard or garden. The fruit of these grapes is actually improved in quality if not even in quantity by an annual pruning back to within three or four leaves of the past year's growth. If grapes are pruned in November and December, there will be none of the dreaded "bleeding" of the vines.

The modern improved varieties of muscadines and scruppernongs are far and away better than the ordinary wild ones. The size of the grapes and the number of bunches has been improved wonderfully until you need only a few vines to provide more grapes than you can eat and give away in September and October. The length of the season has been added to, also.

BEAUTIFUL FOLIAGE

There is scarcely any vine that has more beautiful foliage than that of grapes. Muscadines and scuppernongs can be used on a boundary fence between city lots to good effect. Since these native grapes will grow along a fence for 50 to 100 feet from the place where they are planted not more than a few vines are needed for even very long fences. If the grape vines are given an annual pruning, other vines like the climbing roses may be planted on the same fence and will not be smothered by the grapes.

'NOT BIG JOB'

Severe pruning of muscadines and scuppernongs once a year in November and December is not really a big job, but it must be done if these lusty vines are to be kept in control. Vines treated in this way are more beautiful than the mass and tangle of unpruned jungles one so often sees. The pruning results in heavy crops of grapes growing in almost a continuous string and tightly packed together along the vines. The heavy bearing new varieties have so many grapes that they look like the old woodcuts in ancient books about gardens in the Old World in The Middle Ages.

Houseplant Problems

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have trouble with your houseplants, you are not alone. According to our U. S. Department of Agriculture Horticultourist, central heating, closed windows and too dry atmosphere aren't the ideal conditions for growing house plants.

If you have central heating and want to grow a few plants there are some that will grow in spite of almost everything. These include the rubber tree plant, the dieffenbachia or dumb cane, and the philodendrous. Any of these will thrive in a modern home with a minimum of care.

Another problem with houseplants is bugs or insects. Malathion or lindane are probably the safest insecticides for household use.

The easiest way to take care of the insect problem on potted plants is to wrap foil around the soil, then dip the whole plant upside down into the insecticide and water mixture. Then you're sure to get all of the insects. Read the label every time you use an insecticide. Be sure you really know how to prepare and apply it and whether you must wear gloves or other protective clothing. Follow all instructions and precautions carefully.

SOMETHING NEW

There's something about a tomato that makes it hard to freeze successfully. But now liquid-nitrogen freezing can give you, Mrs. Consumer, fresh tomato slices in frozen form, according to Philip B. Dwoskin, U. S. Department of Agriculture food products expert. Nitrogen-freezing was first used to maintain frozen foods during long distance shipment. Now it's being used on fruits and vegetables which have been problem items for commercial freezers. Nitrogen freezing is much more expensive than other commercial methods.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

To remove little wool balls from underarms of sweaters, use clean hairbrush. Use brush and make short quick strokes while the sweater is drying.

To protect bright colors from running, soak in cool salt water before washing to "set" the colors.

To keep an Angora sweater fluffy, brush lightly with a soft clean hair brush while sweater is drying.

NON SHRINK BINDING

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, sew you will be glad to learn that real soon you will find non shrink seam binding. The new non shrink seam binding looks and feels like the seam binding you have always used, so you will want to look for the wording, "Nono shrink" on the label. Seam binding is used as a seam or hem finish as a waistline stay strip and as tie strings. Regardless of where you use it, this new research has added the modern needs of non-shrinkage, vat dyed to this sewing notion. So be looking for it real soon, Mrs. Homemaker.

BROWN SUGAR

A truly new development is a granulated brown sugar, called brownulated. Since it does not harden, it is easy to measure, pours freely, blends with dry ingredients and can be used in the sugar bowl. Because of its dryness, however, some adjustment is required in moisture. These adjustments are incorporated in recipes for the brownulated worked on and tested by the Sugar Bowl Kitchen.

A THOUGHT

Some have tried and have not succeeded, but no one has ever succeeded and not tried.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Greetings In Flowers

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

A nice way to say "Merry Christmas" is with pleasing designs for each room in the home, or on the doors, front and back entrances. "Merry Christmas," was the theme for the Bastrop Garden Club's program last Wednesday for the Fifth District Garden Center in Sears. The nice thing about this "early" greeting was that the ideas and designs that were displayed might give you an idea about your decorations, and it is early enough now for you to start some of these decorations before the last minute rush.

Five members from the Bastrop Garden Club brought the 10 designs. Mrs. T. R. Florence, club president, made two beautiful wall decorations. The first, a wreath for the front door, was made of fresh cedar sprigs wired into a round grill from a barbecue pit. A star design made entirely of small pine cones (sprayed white) was placed in the central part of the wreath. This was centered with a large pine cone rose (cut from a section of a large cone), also sprayed white. The front door is white. A spotlight will be placed on this at night and I am sure this will prove very effective and festive. For her other swag for the door, Mrs. Florence covered a cone shaped frame cut from hardware cloth with cardboard. Then she completely covered the design with medium sized cones, cone roses, nuts, and gum balls. The entire design was sprayed with antique gold paint and a large gold ribbon bow was placed at the top as a finishing touch.

FOR TABLE, WALL

Mrs. W. P. Stephenson made two designs for the table and two wall designs. A very ornate bell shaped bottle in tones of gold into brown was the container for her first design. A Hogarth line of porcelainized roses with fern formed the design in the bottle which was then placed on a square, brown wooden base. It was a very unusual, conversational design. Her next design was one that could be enjoyed in the den or children's game room. On a large rectangular piece of green styrafoam she placed a grouping of red velvet reindeer. To balance, she made a line of sweet gum branches into which she placed a row of red poinsettias. All of this material was anchored into the base. As a finishing touch which added balance and furthered the feeling of the out-of-doors, she placed irregular shaped rocks about the base of the design. It was very simple, yet effective.

For her first wall design, Mrs. Stephenson made a wreath almost entirely of sweet gum balls which had been picked into a straw wreath. These may be purchased from the florist shops. To create interest and contrast, she also used cones, large cone roses, seed pods, tallow berries, and furled aspidestra leaves to one side of the wreath. Large magnolia leaves were placed to the back side as a finish. The entire wreath was sprayed gold.

PICTURE FRAME

The second wall design was a picture frame (old fashioned) to which a piece of hardware cloth had been tacked. A simple design of roses and fern was wired to the center of the hardware wire within the frame. The entire design was sprayed with gold paint. This design would be just as effective on a hall or living room wall as on the front door with a greenery background.

Mrs. Charles Gray made two designs for the home. The first, featuring a lovely soft white ceramic madonna, contained a line of swirling wisteria branches sprayed white. A row of white mums against a cedar background enhanced the madonna figurine to one side. The container was a low white ceramic bowl on a round, black wooden base. The Madonna is a design feature that creats a prayerful mood or quiet, thoughtful atmosphere, so welcomed during the rush of the holidays. For her second design Mrs. Gray used a beverage bottle for the container using dried dock and roadside grasses to form the tall vertical line. Grapes hung from the side added the finishing touch. The entire design was in tones of gold. Even the bottle was sprayed with gold paint.

"Love, Light, and Peace Around the World," was the theme of the design made by Mrs. Claude Thomas. The "world" made of a large styrafoam ball was picked with silver Christmas beads into the ball with straight pins. This was mounted on a wooden candle stick sprayed silver. The candle holder was made of a chair leg. To the top was placed a pink candle. A row of small pine cones sprayed soft pink and touched with silver glitter, spiralled the globe. Mistletoe was used as a filler within this line. A small dove in shades of silver and pink feathers swooped down from the top of the globe with a small sprig of mistletoe in it's bill. The entire design was mounted on a tiered wooden base which was painted pink.

The last design for the program was made by Mrs. Wesley Bunch. A gold candelabra was decorated for the dining room buffet. Leather fern formed a background for the vertical line within the central holder of the candelabra. Syrafoam wired into the middle candle holder served as a holder for the material used. Red candles were placed in the outer cheerful design.

Wednesday: More Christmas Ideas for your please to see, made by one guest arranger, Mrs. W. A. Kunze, president of the Clarklea Garden Club of Bastrop. So, be watching.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: I'm getting ready to finish a portion of our basement. The present walls are poured concrete. What is the best way to attach furring strips to the concrete? Or would I be better off to build a new studded wall a few inches away from the concrete?

ANSWER: The most usual way of attaching furring strips to concrete is with masonry nails or expansion screws. The nails are driven through the studs into the concrete. Expansion screws are driven into a shell which first is hammered into a hole in the concrete. This hole is made by a star drill or a carbide - tipped bit in an electric drill. Just how difficult a job any of these methods is can not be foretold, because it depends on the toughness of the concrete. You might do some testing first, seeing whether you can drive masonry nails into the wall without too much trouble or make holes with a star drill or carbide - tipped bit.

We have seen cases where the concrete wall in one house will resist efforts to make holes in it with ordinary tools, while the wall in another house a few doors away (both made by the same contractor) can be driven into easily. If yours is the former, you can build a studded wall next to or near the concrete or you can attache the furring strips with one of the new epoxy adhesives.

Yule Scenes For Photo Greetings

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

It's not that I'm rushing the seasons, but Christmas is here already for those camera fans who plan to make their own photographic greeting cards for this holiday.

In this age of jet speed propulsion, the time between Thanksgiving and the Yuletide seems to rush by at an increased pace leaving us less time to get things done. But a personal photographic card is so individualistic and so "right for a photo fan that people look forward to receiving something different from a photographer. Consider this a warning to get started now!

EXPECTATION

Don't worry that you have to dream up a sensational, original creation or get involved in an elaborate Christmas setting featuring a tree with all the trimmings. What is appreciated is a simple, sincere photograph of someone or something meaningful to you or your family, pictured with a touch of imagination or expression.

It could be a photograph you've already taken on a vacation trip, a family outing or around the house. Do you have any picture that has special significance, one you'd like to share with others? If so you're one step ahead of the schedule. If not, you should plan a shooting session pronto.

Recently I discussed Christmas photography with Victor Keppler, one of the country's best-known photo illustrators and now director of Famous Photographers School of Westport, Conn. He, too, stresses the need for simplicity in arranging subject matter but also warns of the routine rut many photo fans fall into: messy backgrounds with stiff, posey children staring straight into the camera.

DO'S, DON'T'S

For better personal Christmas cards, Keppler lists these do's and don't's:

— Don't line up the children formally in front of the fireplace or a Christmas tree. Do have them busy in natural action that makes a unified group picture possible.

— Don't clutter up a picture by photographing too much. Look at the background and eliminate any article of furniture — chairs, sofa, lamps, TV set — that is unnecessary.

— Don't back away to get more in. Do come in close — and then even closer.

— Do use suggestion and imagination instead of a lot of props. A single Christmas tree branch is often better than a whole tree. One ornament, perhaps an angel, can pack a powerful picture punch if placed property.

— Don't let children stare at the camera. Divert their attention and try to evoke animation, a meaningful gesture.

— Don't allow too much "air" between children if photographing more than one. Try to make the group a compact composition.

— Don't stand directly in front of the subject and shoot square on. Try off-beat camera angles — from atop a chair, from floor level or from the side.

— Don't feel that all subjects have to be bubbling over with toothpaste smiles. If they're smiling naturally at a joke or amused over the proceedings — click away.

— And, finally, do be alert for the accidental shot, an unexpected look, gesture, expression or action that may break all the rules but which makes a better picture than anything planned.

GREETINGS FROM TWO ANGELS. A branch to suggest the Christmas tree, cherubic little Jo Ann and an angel ornament are the ingredients for a 1964 personal Yuletide card (strip above). This particular composition breaks some of the rules but Victor Keppler, director of the Famous Photography School, snapped it anyway.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

"Sunday in New York" opened at Strauss Playhouse Friday evening, living up to everyone's advance expectations. The clever dialogue, attractive set and seasoned actors all spell a successful run.

Many of our members prefer to attend a matinee and Little Theater always provides one during the run of each show. The performance today will be that matinee, scheduled for 2:15 p.m., and at press time seats still were available. The box office, number 323-1235, will be open from 12 until curtain time for reservations.

The theater will be dark on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week, opening again on Thursday for the second week-end's performances, continuing through Sunday evening. Curtain time for these shows will be 8:15 p.m., and the box office will be open from 1 p.m. until 8 p.m. on those dates, Dec. 10, 11, 12, and 13.

SEASON AT HAND

The traditionally gay Christmas party-going season is all but on us, and it seems that no one enjoys a festive time more than the residents of the Twin Cities. In the midst of the stacks of invitations and agonizing decisions over which glittery dress to buy, we'd like to make a suggestion. A theater party to see "Sunday in New York," it being the sophisticated adult comedy that it is, would be the perfect way for a group of friends to start the holidays.

Readers of this column may remember the mention a week or so ago of the need for some special props for "Sunday in New York." One of these was for the distinctively long menus from Longchamp's Restaurant in New York. Mrs. S. S. Service, who is managing props for this play, was unable to locate any in Monroe, and so wrote to the restaurant. In a few days came the reply, in the form of a thin, neatly-wrapped package, the two much-needed menus.

We're also grateful to Durwood Griffin for the loan of a projector. Little Theater couldn't manage without such good friends as this.

An addition to the production staff, too late to make the programs, is Tom Ernst, who is handling lights.

IN REHEARSAL

"Greensleeves' Magic," the children's Christmas play, is in rehearsal now. Executive Director Lonny Fraze announces the leads as follows: Buddy Smith in the title role of Greensleeves, Betsy Taylor as the Grand Duchess, Nellie Neal and Jon Hattaway as the Queen and King, and Jeannie Taylor as the princess Miranda. Other parts will be announced later.

It is always a source of amazement to many mothers to see how much coordination and cooperation a director can get out of their children in the few weeks he has to produce a children's play. They respond in totally unaccustomed fashion to the discipline he requires. From complete unorganized confusion he gradually shapes them up into the pure delight of a finished play for our young audiences. More than one parent has sighed happily on seeing her child on stage, "Why, he's a different child!"

MOOT POINT

This past summer's very successful children's play, "Simple Simon," offered a moot point, though to some of the parents of the little actors. On stage, they were perfect coordination, precise, accurate, quick. They formed a team willing to work hard and give unquestioning instant obedience to a command.

Then, after the last performance, which was literally packed to the walls, the proud parents of these little paragons held an outdoor party in Forsythe Park to celebrate the play's success. The echo of that final curtain hitting the floor was hardly gone, though, before a shattering truth was revealed.

Divested of their elegant costumes, the children leaped, shouted, happily smeared brownie crumbs from ear to ear, and even indulged in a short-lived water fight. It was complete, unorganized confusion again. We had our own children back.

Ah, for the magical touch of a director!

VISITED LE PETIT

Barbara and Jack Easterling and their children spent the Thanksgiving holidays in New Orleans and visited the well known Le Petit Theatre du Vieux Carre here they report that Shakespeare's MacBeth was playing. Le Petit Theatre is also sponsoring an experimental group called the Player's Theatre, using the same facilities as the parent organization. Barbara says that Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood," had just finished its run there.

Shakespeare was well represented this past week in Ruston, too. The Dallas Theater Center gave three performances at Tech, a highly experimental version of the "Comedy of Errors," and two traditional performances of "Julius Caesar." It took the audience some time to become accustomed to the innovations used in "Comedy of Errors," including a futuristic set and a recurring slide show on one wall. But good acting was apparent in both shows.

STAMP NEWS

Fiji-Tonga Air Mail New Issue

The Fiji Islands in the South Pacific commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Fiji - Tonga airmail service by issuing three new stamps, reports the British Crown Agents Representatives in Washington, D. C.

The first flight by the flying boat "Aotearoa" in 1939 carried mail from Fiji to Tonga. The flying boat was superseded by land craft in 1959 and one of the present jet props in service between the islands is called "Aotearoa III."

The 3 pence red and the 6 pence blue are of identical size and show the Aotearoa in flight. The one shilling aqua depicts the Aotearoa flying over a map of the islands. Each stamp bears a portrait of Queen Elizabeth and the inscription "First Airmail Fiji-Tonga 1939 October 1964."

Belgium has issued two new semipostals depicting the Church of St. Michel and bridge, and the ancient Dominican Abbey of Ghent which is beside it. The additional values on these stamps will be used in the restoration of the ancient building "Pand." The 2 franc plus one shows "Pand" as it appeared when it was the Dominican Abbey, dating back to the 13th Century.

The Japanese postal authorities report the issuance of a new 10 yen stamp commemorating the inauguration of the new Tokaido Trunk Line Railroad and a 40 yen stamp for International Letter Writing Week. The design of the railroad stamp features a super express electric train. The letter writing issue shows a scene called "Hodogaya of Tokaido Highway" with Mt. Fuji in the background.

France has issued two new stamps. A one franc shows a fragment of the "La Dame a la Licorne" tapestry. The other stamp, a 25-centime, marks the cooperation between France and the French - speaking countries of Africa and Madagascar.

Man Of West Now Comrade To Orientals

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

BOMBAY, India (AP) — In this land where light is found in deepest mystery, Pope Paul VI's visit has lifted a veil.

The stranger from Rome has suddenly become a comrade.

It was an astounding odyssey, fraught with risks, charged with sensitivities, burdened by the disparate heritages of time and distance. But out of all this, a bond crystallized.

The spiritual ambassador from the West has left an impact of enduring proportions in the spiritual atmosphere of the East.

The Pope will be "remembered for long," said India's scholarly president, Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, and this will speed the day when all men "work together" as "one common family of God." Radhakrishnan is a philosopher and Hindu scholar.

Pope Paul took home with him what he called "an unforgettable memory" — a graphic image of a people, their crying needs, their ideals, their passionate eagerness for the Westerner's handclasp.

"Here we leave our heart," he said Saturday as he left. "We feel ourself to share in a moral citizenship with this land, which we will ever love."

India, into which no Pope had ever ventured, where Christianity is only a drop in a sea of Hinduism and Islam, had seemed an unpromising papal destination.

Yet Paul VI had felt impelled to make the trip. And his actions here displayed his motives.

They could be summed up in one of his remarks: "For a fruitful dialogue, both of us must know one another."

Roman Catholicism, spurred by the Vatican Council, has embarked on a drive to shed its insular aloofness of the past and engage in mutual exchange and collaboration with others, of all races, cultures, creeds.

Here in India, with its vast diversities, and the chasm between it and Rome, Pope Paul carried that effort to renew the long-lost connections.

"The time has come for the papacy not to remain strictly in Rome, but to make contacts," commented Father M. M. Balaguer, a Jesuit scholar here. "The Pope believes in doing just that."

In a country where the overwhelming mass of people do not share the Pope's religion, and some resent it as tinged with white colonial proselytizing, the Pope was received with prodigious warmth and acclaim.

Bombay's mayor, B. P. Divgi, a Hindu, saying that Bombay is where India's pulse ticks and heart throbs, commented on the Pope's four-day stay:

"Never has that pulse ticked more loudly nor that heart throbbed with greater vigor."

In India, with its harsh poverty and its characteristic preoccupation with world peace, Pope Paul also found a setting underscoring his own concern with those issues.

He dramatized the bitterness of poverty by moving amid it, and he pleaded for governments to convert arms expenditures to a "great world fund" to relieve human needs.

At the same time, in a world where idealistic forces often face overwhelming odds, Pope Paul pressed the cause of greater religious fraternity and joint effort.

Hardly could he have picked a place where divisions are more extensive.

He met with leaders of the various Oriental faiths in an unprecedented confrontation, lauded their deep reverence and devotion, and said: "We must find concrete and practical ways of cooperation."

He also met with non-Roman Catholic Christian leaders, prayed with them, and pledged to join efforts mutually with them in the quest for a reunited Christianity.

The Pope also, through conferences and worship, strengthened bonds with the Eastern rite churches, which have long been left in obscurity by the overshadowing Western Latin rite.

But beyond these specific bridge-building efforts, the Pope's journey pointed up and dramatized that Christianity, often considered white and Western, regards itself also as at home in the dark-skinned East.

"We do not feel a stranger among you," the Pope said.

And now, more than ever, he was not. Nor was India a stranger to him.

HE REALLY CONDUCTS

PITTSBURGH (AP) — An airplane pilot grew a beard while helping fly the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra's cargo plane on a recent 11-week tour of Europe and the Middle East.

A lady walked up to him one day and asked if he was with the orchestra. He said he was.

"What instrument do you play?" she asked.

"The Constellation," he replied.

BY IGNORANT AFRICANS

Rescue Mission Seen As Move By Imperialist Bloc

LONDON (AP) — In most African history books, the Belgian-American rescue mission to the Congo will be called an aggressive imperialist plot and an act of treachery by Moise Tshombe against the African people.

The simplified lexicon of African nationalism makes Patrice Lumumba a martyred hero and Premier Tshombe is an enemy. Belgian and American efforts to put the Congo on its feet are judged rampant imperialism.

President Charles de Gaulle will make no new friends in Africa by receiving Tshombe as he did in Paris this week. Among such African leaders as Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria, Kwame Nkruman of Ghana and Abdel Gamal Nasser of Egypt there can be no redemption for Moise Tshombe.

IRONIC BELIEFS

These are the leaders whose voices are heard loudest and clearest in the organization of African unity. Not many African leaders dare speak against them in the organization.

Many Africans blame Tshombe for Lumumba's death in 1961. He was deposed as the Congo premier, arrested and sent to Katanga province, where Tshombe was leading a secessionist movement. The facts about Lumumba's death have never been satisfactorily explained.

African nationalists also hold it against Tshombe that he has always maintained close relations with the so-called imperialist bloc — with the Belgians, with Roy Welensky of Rhodesia and in recent months with the United States.

In the supercharged atmosphere of Africa, it is not politically defensible to work in hand with the so-called imperialists.

When Tshombe authorized the Belgian and American governments to make their rescue attempt at Stanleyville he joined the imperialists as far as most African leaders are concerned.

The fact that the Stanleyville "People's Republic" of Christophe Gbenye was receiving modest assistance and guidance from Red China would not be a factor of any importance in nationalist eyes.

Gbenye, as a proclaimed disciple of Lumumba and an opponent of Tshombe, could accept aid from any quarter and be on the right path.

The leading nationalists of Africa simply do not accept Tshombe as the legal head of the Congolese government although he was installed formally and legally under the Congo's new constitution by President Joseph Kasavubu. They accept Kasavubu but not Tshombe.

The Congo is one of the most strategically placed nations in Africa in the Organization of African Unity's campaign against white rule in southern Africa.

URGENTLY

It will be urgently needed if this campaign ever gets off the ground. The leaders of this campaign do not see in Tshombe an African leader who will stand with them to the bitter end in such a campaign.

Tshombe, by African standards, is politically smart, sophisticated and untouched by the xenophobia which now prevails in some African countries. If he succeeds in destroying the Gbenye regime and the rebel movement — and the Belgian-American operation was undoubtedly a lift toward that end — he will be an important African political figure.

Nasser, Nkrumah and others wanted to impose Antoine Gizenga on the Congo after Lumumba. Gizenga was a Congolese politician with practically no following. He reigned briefly in Stanleyville, but finally realized that he would not prevail.

Not all African leaders oppose Tshombe with the same bitterness as Nkrumah, Ben Bella and Nasser.

President Philibert Tsiranana of the Malagasy Republic (Madagascar) supported him when he was a secessionist and supports him today. Nigeria does not go all the way with the extremists. A few other African leaders pay only lip service to the campaign against Tshombe.

But the really vocal leaders, who set the tone for sessions of the Organization of African Unity, have been able to make their way to the fore. They want a Congo amenable to their plans and political inclinations whatever this may do to nation's economy and the social well-being.

Congolese Army Crosses River Into Rebel Land

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI) — A Congolese army assault force led by white mercenaries stormed across the Congo River Saturday and established a beachhead on the rebel-held left bank, diplomatic sources said here.

There were no reports of the strength of resistance but the Communist backed rebels are known to be strong in the area.

Diehard rebels Friday shelled the right bank dividing Stanleyville, pitching mortars over the half-mile wide river. Several shells landed in and around the airport guesthouse, killing three Congolese children.

Saturday's attack, the second on the left bank, was preceded by strafing of the rebel positions by T28 fighter-bombers piloting by anti-Castro Cuban refugees.

Another mercenary force drove across the river last week to rescue a handful of white hostages. They brought back more than 30 bodies of whites —mostly priests and nuns—slain and mutilated by the rebels.

In the section of Stanleyville on the right bank, mopping up operations were completed in three parts of the African township. More than 50,000 Africans have been screened for suspected rebel support.

Stanleyville airport was reported secure. Rebel partisans who led numerous sniping attacks on rescue planes apparently have been driven into the jungle.

Latin President Wants Speed-Up In Alliance Aid

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Amid a mixed chorus of praise and criticism for the Alliance for Progress, the 3rd annual ministers' conference of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council opened Saturday to review the $20 billion program.

"We want action and action now," Peruvian President Fernando Belaunde Terry told the opening session.

Belaunde said the 10-year program, begun by the late President John F. Kennedy in 1961 to raise living standards among the 200 million people in Latin America, had made some accomplishments. But Belaunde said the alliance had been hampered by bureacratic delays.

"America could not have been discovered and the pioneers could not have opened the West without risks," he said.

All 20 members of the Organization of the American States are represented at the meeting, which was preceded by a week of discussions by economic and social experts to lay the foundation for the conference.

The United States is represented by Thomas C. Mann, undersecretary of state for Latin American affairs and U.S. coordinator of the alliance.

Peru's Vice President Edgardo Seoane paid tribute to Kennedy for initiating the alliance. He said the best tribute to his memory would be to make the alliance a success.

Seoane said both leftist and rightist extremists were responsible for the "increasing confusion" over the program. He said the value of the alliance must be proved "by achievements, in both Americas, because the Alliance for Progress is a solution and because communism is a danger."

Liquor, Gasoline Destroy Station With Big Blast

LONDON (UPI) — A fire fed by stores of gasoline and whiskey exploding with the sound of artillery fire destroyed a sprawling London railway freight station Saturday in one of the worst blazes since the blitz. Flames rose 100 feet and sent a pall of smoke over the city.

Two customs officers were crushed to death under debris and twisted girders in the Bishopgate station near London's financial district, but many other employes were able to escape.

Britain's nationalized railways said damage ran into the millions of dollars. The loss included Christmas goods waiting for shipment. One London newspaper estimated damage at $28 million. There was no immediation of the fire's cause.

The flames lighthing the dawn sky brought thousands of Londoners out to the streets. To many, it brought back graphic memories of the Nazi air attacks on London 25 years ago.

"I have not seen anything like it since the blitz," Mrs. Mary Hodgekins said.

"The place was an inferno," the owner of a nearby pub, Maurice Cowan, said. "It was like a flashback to the worst years of the war."

More than 200 firemen fought the flames, which were visible 10 miles away. A five-mile long cloud of smoke spread over east London.

There were stores of gasoline in the rambling old freight station that exploded like bombs and gave renewed impetus to the fire.

CURTIS KAUFFMAN and "Slim" Koserog, owners of K&K Appliance in the Highland Shopping Center, point out features of the Admiral 250-watt 8 speaker Stereo as a gift for Christmas. Also pictured are some of the Admiral and Westinghouse TV sets they feature. K&K also has a complete line of all home appliances.

Turkish Gesture Misinterpreted

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Defense Minister Ilhami said a misinterpretation of the reason Turkish jets almost touched the wings of Pope Paul's plane Saturday was why "consternation" resulted.

He said the maneuver was intended as a gesture of respect.

"Maneuvers, like closing in by escort planes, are a routine demonstration of respect to a head of state flying over a country. The same respect was shown to the head of state of the Vatican as has been shown to the heads of state of Pakistan and Iran who flew recently over Turkey," Ilhami said.

He said four Turkish jets escorted the pontiff's airliner from Turkey's eastern borders to her western borders.

"We understand misrepresentation of some maneuvers of our escort planes was the cause of consternation aboard Pope Paul's airliner," he said.

Doctors Suspect U Thant Suffers Ulcer Condition

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UPI) — Secretary General Thant was given tests in a New York hospital Saturday for a suspected peptic ulcer, a U.N. spokesman reported.

The spokesman said Thant, hospitalized Friday, spent a restful night. His general condition is "very good" and he will undergo tests all through the day to determine the seriousness of his condition, the spokesman added.

The secretary general was taken to the hospital after having stayed away from the office for two days suffering from what the U. N. earlier described as "a heavy cold and overwork."

His absence meant efforts to find a solution to the U. N.'s financial crisis were moving slowly — if at all. The Soviet Union and the United States have reached informal agreement to let Thant handle negotiations on solving the problem of Russia's non-payment of its U. N. dues.

Chinese Attack LeMay; Blame Bomb On Officer

TOKYO (UPI) — Communist China Saturday called U. S. Air Force Chief of Staff Curtis LeMay the "chief culprit responsible for the atomic bombing" of Japan. It condemned Japan's decision to decorate him.

The Japanese Socialist Party said it would register a formal protest against the award of the Grand Cordon of the Rising Sun to LeMay, who arrives here today. It is the highest decoration this nation can bestow on a foreigner.

The Socialists said the atom bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki at the end of World War II was a violation of international law.

LeMay will be decorated for his services in building up the Japanese air force after the war.

Communist China's New China News Agency said the decision had "aroused strong opposition throughout Japan."

Jagans Charge Opposition With Unfair Campaign

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — Janet Jagan charged Saturday that her husband's political rivals were intimidating his followers to keep them from the polls in Monday's National Assembly elections.

At the same time leftist Premier Cheddi Jagan laid down a broad charge of election fraud.

Some 225,000 Guianese are expected to turn out for the election of 53 members to the National Assembly. At stake is the premiership of this tiny British colony, torn by racial strife between East Indians and Negroes.

Most reliable indicators point to a Jagan defeat and installation of a government based on a coalition between pro-Western Socialist Forbes Burnham, 41, head of the People's National Congress, and wealthy industrialist Peter d'Aguiar 53, who leads the conservative United Force.

Jagan, 46, a dentist turned Marxist politician, heads the People's Progressive party, which counts heavily on support from East Indian elements in the population.

Mrs. Jagan told newsmen Burnham's "thugs" were going around telling Jagan adherents to stay home Monday and not to vote.

"They are telling our people police won't be able to protect them. They even told me, 'When we will we will burn you down,'" Mrs. Jagan said.

Asked if she thought there was any U. S. involvement in the election, the premier's Chicago-born wife replied: "Both parties — United Force and PNC — have American advisers."

Jagan's party has protested the decision of the election commission to authorize 7,000 proxy votes, claiming that 90 per cent of these ballots are controlled by the opposition.

Tourism long has helped the frugal economy of Kashmir.

Tallulah Miss Reigns At Yule Festival Parade

TALLULAH (Special) — Miss Linda Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Anderson of Tallulah, has been named Miss Merry Christmas of Madison Parish.

She led the Christmas Festival parade through downtown Tallulah at 4 p.m. Saturday to the courthouse square, where she was presented a key to the city and bouquet of red carnations and holly.

Highlight of the Tallulah Christmas Festival was turning on of the lights at 5 p.m. of 12 cone-shaped Christmas trees erected in the middle of Roundaway Bayou. Robert E. Brown, alderman serving in the absence of the mayor, turned the switch which also lighted the bridge and other places in the city.

A chorus lining the bayou sang traditional Christmas carols and a gondola on the water carried Mary Scurria and Dee Cox, who sang a group of Italian songs.

The festival, which was attended by a large number of area residents, was concluded with a spectacular fireworks display.

Mrs. J. E. Neill served as chairman of this second annual Tallulah Christmas Festival.

The average height of eucalyptus trees in Australia's forest belt is 150 feet.

FILE CLERK

Strangling Scarves Tell Tale Of Slaying

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A pretty, brunette file clerk died of asphyxiation "presumed to have been caused by strangulation," a medical examiner said Saturday after an autopsy.

The body of Sally Patricia Crough, 23, was found Friday sprawled on the bed in her second-floor apartment in suburban Catonsville.

Two scarves were knotted tightly around her neck. Clad in a yellow house coat, she lay face down. A clock radio was playing.

Dr. Rudiger Breitenecker, assistant medical examiner who made the autopsy report, said further medical tests would be made to determine whether Mrs. Crough might have been drugged because the body showed no signs that there was a struggle.

A stocking was tied around one wrist, Dr. Breitenecker said, and there were marks on both wrists, indicating her hands may have been tied together at one time. He said—as had police—that there was no evidence of sexual assault.

Coworkers from the Social Security Administration found the victim's body after she failed to pick them up in a car pool. The apartment door was locked from the inside by a chain lock but police said someone could enter the apartment by a fire escape.

Mrs. Crough had been separated for about 10 months from her husband, Warren, who lived with his parents. They were married about two years ago and had no children.

Inspector Elmer F. Adams, in charge of the investigation, said Baltimore County police had talked to about 150 friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Crough, the former Sally Parker, joined the Social Security Administration six years ago when she finished high school.

Jail Trusties Pursue, Catch Escaping Man

A West Monroe jail trusty learned Saturday that there's more to escaping a work detail than just running off.

The prisoner, Jim Jackson, 52, Yazoo City, Miss., was working with a work gang on Claiborne Street when he broke and ran towards some nearby houses. The rest of the work gang dropped their shovels and pursued the escaping man.

Although it seemed to passerby that everyone was getting away, the pursuers soon trapped the escapee in an unlocked house he had entered.

They then entered the house, subdued Jackson and forced him from the building. Police arrived soon and carted the prisoner back to jail where he was booked for simple escape.

Jackson will spend the rest of his time behind bars police said.

Several Booked On Charges By Local Officers

Twin City law enforcement officers Saturday reported several arrests for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Booked by West Monroe officials on a DWI charge was Vernon Rutherford, 26, Memphis, Tenn., after his arrest on Coleman Avenue.

Monroe police booked the following persons on DWI charges: Joe C. Holmes, 31, 3011 Barlow St.,; Donald Phelps, 28, Shreveport; Robert Beatty, 56, 3000 Barlow St., and Billy Wayne Doener, 21, 3108 N. 8th St., West Monroe.

All four were arrested between midnight and 2:30 a.m. Saturday.

Three persons were booked by Monroe police for theft after they were arrested in two separate incidents at Eastgate Saturday evening. Hattie Lee Girad, 51, and Alwyn Francis Girad, 56, both of Hodge, were arrested at an Eastgate drugstore at 6:30 p.m.

Gloria Ann Franks, 17, 2807 Cypress St., West Monroe, was booked for theft after she was arrested at an Eastgate clothing store with over $80 in goods in her possession.

S. L. McColister, 46, 1718 Grammont St., was booked for possession of a dangerous weapon after he was arrested Saturday afternoon in the 1300 block of Grammont St. McColister reportedly had an open knife in his pocket.

Madison School Bonds Are Sold

TALLULAH (Special) — The Madison Parish School Board has sold $1 million in bonds, voted at a recent election.

Lowest bid of 3.4678 went to Ladd Jenkins and Company of New Orleans.

The school board will invest the money in short term loans to draw interest until the funds are extended.

Officers Warn On Fireworks Sale Violations

Ouachita Parish and Twin City law enforcement officers warned Saturday against the irresponsible sale or use of fireworks during the holiday periods.

Officials stated that one of the main violations observed during the past holiday season was the sale of fireworks to children. The Louisiana Revised Statutes, adopted in variation by Monroe and West Monroe, strictly prohibits the sale of fireworks to children under 10 years of age.

Frank Kirby, chief deputy of the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department, added this rule covers the forbidden sale of fireworks to persons intoxicated or persons of irresponsible nature.

In addition, the revised statute states that no fireworks shall be exploded within one thousand feet of any church, hospital, public school, mental institution or within seventy-five feet of any place where firearms are sold.

Chief Kirby also noted that ignited fireworks may not be thrown from or into a motor vehicle.

Law officials warn that these statutes and ordinances will be fully upheld and violators prosecuted.

Building Planned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Construction starts next month on a 47-level, $12 million structure that will be the city's tallest apartment building.

The tower of glass and aluminum with 373 units will be erected along Perdido, between Carondelet and St. Charles. Construction should be complete in 14 months.

The site will be purchased from administrators of the Tulane Educational Fund for a little more than $1 million.

PARTY STAND

USSR Hits Peking For One-Man Rule

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist party accused China on Saturday of advocating one-man dictatorship for Communist countries.

An editorial in Pravda claimed the Soviet Union had passed beyond the "dictatorship of the proletariat" and said of the Soviet Communist party: "From a party of the working class, it has turned into a party of the whole people."

The accusation, made sharply and clearly without naming China, was contained in the stiffest attack on Peking yet launched by the men who replaced Nikita S. Khrushchev in the Soviet leadership.

It was made in reply to Chinese criticism Nov. 21 of the Soviet concept of "the state of the whole people," the form of government that the Kremlin claims for the Soviet Union now. The Chinese attack in their theoretical journal Red Flag had been coupled with denunciation of de-Stalinization.

Authoritative Soviet sources have indicated that the Red Flag criticism of Soviet domestic governmental concepts greatly angered the new leaders here. They had previously refrained from public debate with China over disputed points in the Soviet-Chinese rift.

Tass summarized the editorial.

In Communist theory, a "dictatorship of the proletariat" is needed at the beginning of a transition to communism.

John Masefield Still Producing As Crown Poet

LONDON (AP) — John Masefield, 87 next June, recalls his youth as a seaman in a new book of verse published Monday.

"Old Raiger," his 28th volume of poems, sets a mark for poets laureate of England. He becomes the oldest man to keep writing while holding down this post of honor under the crown. A poet laureate's traditional task is to pen poems in commemoration of royal occasions.

Masefield's predecessor as laureate was Robert Bridges, who issued a "Testament of Beauty" on his 85th birthday in 1930. He died that year. Lord Tennyson was writing verse right up to the end of his life at 83 in 1892.

Now Masefield, who lives quietly in seclusion near Oxford, has beaten them all. His new poems show vigor and imagery. In his youth, Masefield sailed around Cape Horn and to this day he has kept his enthusiasm for sailing ships and the seas. One of his new poems—there are 12 in the book—was inspired by the sailing ship race across the Atlantic Ocean last summer.

Masefield recalls his early experiences in this poem:

"I, who beheld them in their pride of old,
Can not forget their splendor as they came
Superb, out of the perils never told...
Today, the few survivors show again
Their glory of man's triumph over force.

The title, "Old Raiger," is taken from the longest narrative poem in the volume, the story of an ill-tempered father and his two quarreling sons.

Masefield's last previous volume of poetry came out in 1961.

His new publication will coincide with the award to him of the National Book League prize, worth $7,000, in recognition of his long and distinguished literary career.

Masefield's most famous poem is "Sea Fever" written 60 or more years ago. Its opening line "I must go down to the seas again, to the lonely sea and the sky" has become part of literary language.

Move Defeated To Block Early Criminal Release

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The House defeated Rep. Salvador Anzelmo twice Saturday in his attempts to win adoption of a resolution requesting Gov. John McKeithen to block early release of habitual criminals.

At first the resolution failed in a 44-44 tie, but the Orleans Parish legislator tried later to bring it up again on a motion to reconsider the vote by which it failed. In this, he was defeated 35-48.

The resolution specifically requested the governor "to refuse to give his written approval for any diminution of sentence, under act 426 of 1964, to any multiple offender, unless said multiple offender is to receive the diminution of sentence provided for third class prisoners in said act."

Anzelmo said his new proposal differed in that it would have the effect of suspending the law by withdrawing gubernatorial approval.

Under the law, the penitentiary warden can recommend release of convicts who have served at least half their sentences, upon approval of the governor.

THE WORLD'S WEEK

Small Town Day Not So Ordinary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The day broke gray and overcast in the town of Philadelphia, Miss. From all indications it was going to be just another day in the life of a small community. But suddenly everything changed.

Out of the gloom that Friday came the FBI, moving in a case involving the slaying of three civil rights workers that had held national — and world — attention for nearly six months. By evening, 21 men were in custody.

Included in the FBI sweep were Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Rainey and his deputy, Cecil Price, and five men identified by the FBI as Ku Klux Klansmen. None of the 21 was charged with murder. Nineteen were charged with conspiring to "injure, oppress, threaten and intimidate" the three young civil rights workers whose bodies were found in August and two were charged with being accessories.

Rainey and price had quietly surrendered their revolvers to the FBI men at the Philadelphia, Miss., courthouse, but outside the crowd was ugly. A photographer attempting to take a picture was threatened with a knife.

Those slain were Michael Schwerner, 24, Brooklyn, N.Y.; and Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York City, both white, and James Chaney, 21, Meridian, Miss., a Negro. The trio last was seen alive Sunday night, June 21, after Rainey's office arrested them for speeding. Price said he saw their car drive away about 10:30 p.m. Their bodies were found Aug. 4, buried 20 feet deep in a new earthen dam outside of Philadelphia.

In New York, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., commended the FBI but said it would be "very difficult to get a conviction."

Robert Goodman, father of Andrew Goodman, said: "We hope for a prompt and vigorous prosecution of this crime that will end in the punishment under the law of those found guilty of perpetrating it."

GREAT HOLY MAN

The Boeing 707 jetliner from Rome pulled to a stop at Santa Cruz Airport, outside Bombay, and out stepped the burra guru — great holy man — Pope Paul VI, to a tremendous reception in non-Christian India. For the Pope, making a four-day visit to the 38th International Eucharistic Congress in Bombay, the 4,000-mile flight was the longest journey ever made by a reigning head of the Roman Catholic Church.

As the Pope's open car bore him the 20 miles from the airport into the city of Bombay, he was greeted by millions of Moslems, Hindus, Sikhs, Jains, Parsees and Catholics. Observers called it the greatest outpouring of popular feeling since the funeral of Nehru in May. To the crowds, the Pope announced: "We come as a pilgrim, a pilgrim of peace, of joy, of serenity and love."

SIMMER NOW BOILS

After student uprisings in Asia and elsewhere, the University of California campus at Berkeley seemed an unlikely setting for a college rebellion. But such a revolt, long simmering, turned into a sit-in demonstration Wednesday night when thousands of students took over Sproul Hall, the administration building.

President Clark Kerr, terming his "anarchy by a willful minority of radical students," called for help. Gov. Edmund G. Brown ordered the police in, and at 3 a.m. Thursday they began removing the "sit-ins" by force. In all 814 were arrested, many of them carted out bodily.

The trouble started back in September, when the university ruled that activities for off-campus political causes could not be held on the campus, except in specified areas. An organization called the Free Speech Movement, headed by Mario Savio, a philosophy junior from New York, organized the sit-in. Friday there were attempts to organize a student strike, but many of the university's 27,000 students passed the picket lines and went to class.

CRISIS AVOIDED

Three thousand miles away, in less turbulent circumstances, the U.N. General Assembly opened its 1964 session Tuesday, after finding a way to put off a showdown between the United States and the Soviet Union on the question of the $52.6 million the Russians owe in back assessments.

The strategy was an "understanding" under which the assembly will conduct business, not not vote on anything, until the dispute is settled. This agreed upon, the assembly the named Alex Quaison-Sackey, 40, of Ghana as president by "acclamation" and he took the podium in his African tribal dress.

BACK TO BAKER

And in Washington, the long-running Bobby Baker show reopened Tuesday, after an election intermission, and the acts seemed much as before. The Senate Rules Committee got around to Baker on Wednesday and again he refused to talk. He cited the 1st, 4th, 5th and 6th Amendments, and in addition his lawyer refused to let the questioning of Baker be televised.

Other witnesses came and went all week, but on Thursday there was one less participant. Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., mainly responsible for starting the Baker inquiry, walked out after he and the committee's chief counsel, Lennox P. McLendon, had called each other liars. Williams said, however, that he would be watching the hearings with the greatest interest.

WHO'S DOING WHAT

People in the News:

Frail, easily tired, the celebrant remained indoors on Monday, but to thousands in the outside world he sent a message: "I am most grateful to all those who have remembered me on my 90th birthday." It was signed, Winston Churchill.

Juan Domingo Peron, once dictator of Argentina's millions, arrived unexpectedly in Rio De Janeiro on Wednesday on a Spanish airliner, ostensibly enroute to Paraguay, close to the Argentine border. But the Brazilian authorities, friendly to the present Argentine regime, refused to let him proceed.

Peron was held at the airport for a few hours, then shipped out on the same plane back to exile in Spain. Now 69 and no longer the fiery leader of old, Peron went quietly and in silence. In Argentina, there were only minor demonstrations for the once-powerful Peron.

Quotes of the Week:

"It was nothing. It's something that's done every day. I've had a dozen of them." President Johnson, after surgery removing two warts from his hand.

"Africa is discovering its ancient glory and pride in a brave new world." Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, after being elected president of the U.N. General Assembly.

Terminals Firm Asks Permit To Build Oil Dock

The Vicksburg District of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers is currently considering the application of Moore Terminals, Inc. of Monroe for a permit to authorize the construction of an oil dock on the Ouachita River at a point about three miles south of the city.

The announcement was made by Lt. Col. James A. Betts, C. E., District Engineer.

Persons interested in expressing any objection to the work with respect to its effect on river navigation may write to the U.S. Army Engineer, District, Vicksburg, Corps of Engineers, P. O. Box 60, Vicksburg, Miss. 39181. The District Engineers will also accept information on aspects of the work, other than navigation, and make such information a part of the record on the application.

Any communications on the matter should reach the Vicksburg office by Jan. 4, 1965.

INDIAN JUSTICE HURT

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (UPI)—A Grumman Goose amphibian plane somersaulted on landing in the Demerara River Friday night, injuring former Indian Chief Justice Tek Chand who was coming here as chairman of a commonwealth team to observe the Dec. 7 elections. Dr. C. Galea, a Maltese representative, was unhurt.

Juan Peron Sits In Hotel; Waits Nations' Ruling

TORREMOLINOS, Spain (UPI) — Juan D. Peron sat in a hotel suite Saturday a virtual prisoner and almost alone as Spain and Argentina debated his future.

It was the end of the week which saw "Operation Return" — the 69-year-old politician's bid to return dramatically to power in the Argentine — crash in ruins about him.

Most of the aides who surrounded the former dictator in his abortive flight to South America had scattered to Madrid.

Even his movements about the luxury suite of the Riviera hotel were restricted. Spanish police politely asked him to "keep off the outside balcony and out of public sight."

In Madrid, Spanish government officials grappled with the problem of what to do with the ex-dictator, a longtime friend of Spain and a "resident tourist" since 1960.

Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella, back from a conference which kept him in Paris during the crucial 36 hours of Pero's departure and return, met with Argentine Ambassador Octavo Hauna in Madrid.

Madrid was expected to consult with other Latin-American nations before deciding Peron's future.

NESHOBA COUNTY Sheriff Lawrence Rainey (left) and Deputy Cecil Price were back on the job Saturday after being released on $5,000 bond in civil rights arrest. Rainey claims FBI offered him a "payoff" for information on slaying of three rights workers. (AP Wirephoto)

CANAL QUESTION

Panama Settlement Hinges On How Far U.S. Will Go

PANAMA (AP) — The future of peace in Panama hangs heavily on how far the United States will go in revising the Panama Canal treaty — and in how much the traditional ruling forces want to do for their country.

Developments in the troubled little nation since last January's violence at the Canal Zone border support this conclusion.

Panamanians of dissimilar social, political and economic standing find common ground on the question of regaining full sovereignty over a stretch of land now occupied by the United States.

DIFFERENCES

Their differences on this matter seem to concern only the approach to a solution. This is a source of potentially serious trouble for President Marco A. Robles, eight weeks in office.

Disturbances erupted last month over claims that the government had softened its canal treaty position toward the United States. Suspicions of an easement in policy were aroused when Robles, who campaigned on a platform pledging a tough treaty line, named to key positions two men considered members of Panama's pro-U.S. oligarchy: Foreign Minister Fernando Eleta and Ambassador to Washington Ricardo (Dicky) Arias.

A National Assembly hearing decided there had been no change in a policy spelled out in general terms by the government of former President Roberto F. Chiari. This calls for eventual abrogation of the 1903 pact that gives the United States perpetual rights over a 10-mile wide, 50-mile long corridor.

The assembly vote backing Robles' policy followed a party-line pattern — reflecting his legislative majority — but the government reaffirmed its intent to press for a new treaty. This could result in a bargaining rigidity narrowing the areas of concessions.

The disturbances accompanying the treaty controversy caused Robles to use fore to put down student demonstrators, one of the few times such a step has been taken by a Panama president.

WIDESPREAD

There was widespread approval of the president's action. Its timing was viewed as unfortunate, however, by many who feel Robles might have played into the hands of the known Communists and Castro sympathizers who control the student federation. Continued repressive measures could arouse sympathy for the students among Panamanians. Like most Latin Americans, they regard the military establishment with suspicion.

The students are planning a first anniversary "people's homage" to the victims of last January's rioting. They are looking for support in the restive labor and nationalistic ranks, and among Robles' sizable political opposition.

All this has been taken to mean the president must win some dramatic treaty concession from the United States quickly if he is to ease pressures on this front and give himself elbow room to work on other critical problems.

Most pressing of these is the row kicked up among business leaders by a new tax reform bill. The government hopes to increase budget revenues by hiking taxes in some income brackets, tapping new sources and going after tax evaders.

The present collection structure is bogged down with administrative waste, businessmen say. They are urging an administrative reform first.

"Panama industrialists and businessmen," said Luiz Martinz, 72, a leading investor, "are not opposed to an increase in taxes as long as it's proved, after an administrative reform, that the present taxes are not sufficient to cover budget needs."

21 MEN

FBI Arrests Cut Through Cross Section Of Neshoba

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — Frank Herndon, divorced, a man the FBI calls the exalted cyclops of the White Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, went home Friday night to the trailer where he lives alone with his daughter, 2.

Jimmy Townsend, 17, a high school dropout, went home to his parents at Zephy Hill in the red clay highlands of east Mississippi.

Lawrence Rainey, 41, a career law officer, went back to his sheriff's office.

These three and 18 other men were arrested and charged Friday by the FBI in connection with the murder of three civil rights workers last summer during an all-out drive for Negro rights.

Most of these men are known throughout this area of rolling hills and mushy swamps. Most of them have lived here all their lives. Their kin include many of the people in Neshoba and adjoining Lauderdale counties.

But who are these men?

The FBI said five were members of the Ku Klux Klan, a secret anti-Negro terrorist organization. Federal agents also said that most of the others were Klan sympathizers.

The 21 represent a broad spectrum of the population of this rural Mississippi area. Their ages range from 17 to 71, their vocations from preacher to service station attendant, their backgrounds from high school dropout to respected businessman.

Three of them are peace officers, and one, the Rev. Edgar Killen, ran for sheriff against Rainey and lost.

Killen is described by residents of the Philadelphia area as a roving preacher. He speaks at, among other churches, the Salem church in Neshoba County and the Zion church in nearby Kemper County. He is 39, a native of Neshoba County and he operates a sawmill with his father and farms in addition to his duties as a preacher.

Killen is a Free Will Baptist. He preaches at a large number of funerals and frequently brings obituary notices to the weekly Neshoba Democrat.

Both Rainey, and his deputy, Cecil Price, 26, are avid hunters and Price is considered one of the best bowlers in Neshoba County. Price returned from a hunting trip to Louisiana only a few days before the arrests.

Rainey, a former deputy sheriff and Philadelphia police officer, is serving his first term as an elected officer. Price, a native of Jackson, was a Philadelphia fireman before Rainey put him on as deputy last January.

Both men are charged with violating the Civil Rights Act in connection with the beating of Negro prisoners in 1962. The officers are free on $2,000 bond on those charges.

Price is married. Rainey lives with his wife and two children in Philadelphia.

Horace Doyle Barnette, 25, was driving a meat packing company truck in Boosier City, La., Friday when he was arrested. Billy Bell, manager of Nation Brothers Packing Co. of Spring Hill, La., said the FBI phoned Friday morning and asked where Barnette was.

"They didn't say why they wanted to know," he said. Bell told them Barnette was delivering meat to a supermarket in Bossier City.

The truck was still in Bossier City Saturday.

"He's a good employee," Bell said. "He drove everywhere for us."

Barnette has been working for the company since August when he left Mississippi. He went there last May from northeastern Louisiana and lived in a trailer home with his wife near Meridian while working as an auto parts salesman.

Barnette's mother was typical of those close to the arrested men. When contacted by a newsman, she said, "We have nothing to say."

One of the 21 men, Alton Wayne Roberts, 26, was quoted by the FBI as saying he tried to join the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama but was turned down.

Roberts received a bad conduct discharge from the Marine Corps in 1958 for fighting, drunkeness and absent without leave. He lives in Meridian with his wife and three children.

He is one of several ex-servicemen among those charged. Otha Neal Burkes, 71, a Philadelphia city police patrolman, served in the Army in 1918-1919. He also is charged in the earlier civil rights indictment.

Burkes, a 25-year veteran officer, lives in Philadelphia with his wife.

Travis Maryn Barnette, 36, is an Air Force veteran, a partner in the B&S Garage in Meridian. He lives in a trailer home with his wife and one daughter.

James Thomas Harris, 30, an Army veteran and one of those mentioned by the FBI as a Klansman, is a route salesman for Hardin's Bakery in Meridian, where he lives with his wife. The FBI said he was an investigator for the Klan.

NOT ANOTHER?

Long Steel Walkout Not Completely Bad

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The record 116-day steel strike of 1959-60 cost untold millions of dollars, produced seemingly irreparable breeches in labor-management relations and nearly caused the theory of collective bargaining to collapse.

But in one respect it was a blessing.

After the United Steelworkers Union (USW) and the nation's basic steel producers finally reached accord on a new contract, both sides agreed that the ordeal they had endured should never occur again.

To this day it has not — because of a unique group known as the Human Relations Committe (HRC), which will meet here Monday to lay groundwork for the start of negotiations on a new contract.

The HRC was formed following the strike. Its co-chairmen were USW President David J. McDonald and R. Conrad Cooper, a U.S. Steel vice president and chief bargainer for the industry.

They again will head their respective bargaining teams.

The Steelworkers, who have not had a pay raise since 1960, settling instead for job security measures, are pushing for money — among other things — this time.

The USW announced Thursday that it would seek for its 1.2 million members a substantial wage increase, total job security, greater prosperity and "dignity and justice" for the man in the mill.

The demands were not broken down into dollars and cents, but some sources said the union would seek a 15-cent hourly wage increase in a package that finally would shake down to about 43 cents an hour, including fringe benefits.

The union, third largest in the country, would be free to strike after May 1 if no settlement is attained.

Compounding the pressure is a fight between McDonald and I. W. Abel, his longtime ally, for the union presidency. Abel is secretary-treasurer of the USW. The union election will be held Feb. 9, 1965 — conceivably right in the middle of the negotiations.

The Human Relations Committee approach, thus far an unqualified success, gets its most severe test in the weeks to come.

The HRC has been charged with, figuratively speaking, perpetual bargaining, removing rough spots that arose during the life of a contract that usually proved aggravating at negotiating time.

Neither side has been a push-over for the other.

18 Are Elected To Area Produce Directors Board

OAK GROVE (Special) — Eighteen Board of Directors members for the North Louisiana Produce Association were elected and a financial report presented at a meeting held here Saturday afternoon.

Willie Sherdan, marketing specialist with the Commissioner of Agriculture's office at Baton Rouge and guest speaker at the event, referred to the "potential goldmine" in West Caldwell Parish not only in tomatoes, but in sweet potatoes and other crops.

He suggested that the tomato acreage be doubled or tripled for the coming year.

An increase in the net income of the tomato market this year was noted in spite of adverse weather conditions and small acreage planted.

Board members elected were Ward 1 — J. S. White and C. L. Miller; Ward 2 — W. T. Black, C. C. Prine, Harry Henderson and Bob Billings; Ward 3 — Jack Witcher, S. A. Yates, Burlie Traxler and Archie Morse; Ward 4 — C. H. Richey, Alfred Smith, R. R. Trush and G. A. Byargeon; and Ward 5 — Mat Braswell, Ralph Sandifer, L. L. Harper and J. S. Sowell.

Probe Continues In Triple Death

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— Sheriff John O. St. Amant of St. Charles Parish said Saturday no lead had developed in the slaying of three Negroes in a $52 robbery near Kenner.

The three, shot to death early Friday at Tanner's Motel on the Airline Highway, were Ulysses Tanner Sr., 52, owner and operator of the motel; Peter A. Trepagnier, 28, of Slidell, and Eunice Ann Norris, 16, of New Orleans.

St. Amant said several persons were questioned Saturday and others would be questioned later. Some of those interrogated reportedly had vice backgrounds.

The motel had been under investigation as the possible site of vice operations. Tanner was arrested Oct. 23 when St. Charles officers found lottery records in a building he rented near his motel.

TRAVELING JUSTICE

PORTALES, N. M. (AP) —An Elida justice of the peace has to travel 24 miles here to appear before another JP, after he had been cited for making an illegal turn.

William Crume, 71, made the trip. He appeared before JP Eldon Whitton and was fined $10 plus $7.50 court cost.

Crume said it was the first time he has had to appear in court in the 51 years he has been driving.

PRE - CHRISTMAS SALE

'Twas three weeks before Christmas and all over the lot were acres and acres of cars to be bought. The boss looked 'em over with a curl of his lip,

And lashed the poor lot man with a long blacksnake whip. "You Pin Head" he said with a sneer. "Are they going to sit there the whole blasted year?

You'd better get busy or as sure as you're born "You'll EAT these used cars come next Christmas Morn."

The lot man got up from his knees with a sigh, "I'll see that they sell, sir, or die in the try." And so there in December was born the sad tale of why Lee Edwards held their Pre-Christmas Sale.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Those plastic bleach bottles make wonderful scoops, if they are cut correctly.

Hold the bottle by the handle, and with a pair of scissors or a sharp knife, begin cutting one inch below the handle, and slice toward the bottom of the bottle in a curved line. The line doesn't really have to be curved; it just looks nicer.

This scoop is wonderful when bailing water from boats, because the shape will conform to the bottom of the boat.

Naturally, when bailing water, the top has to be screwed on, so the water won't come out the end.

Mr. P. L. Wood

I think your idea is wonderful. Cans usually rust too, don't they? Besides, they make noise and run the bass away!

But you forgot to tell us if you caught any fish on your last trip!

Just kidding of course . .

MENDING POCKETS

DEAR HELOISE:

I repair the holes in the pockets of my husband's slacks with iron-on mending tape, but I have a secret in the way I use it:

I place one piece of the tape on the inside of the pocket under the hole with the sticky side of the tape up . . .

I place another piece on the outside of the pocket on top of the hole with sticky side down . . .

Then I press for eight to ten seconds with my iron!

If you didn't put the tape on both sides of the hole at the same time, BEFORE pressing, the tape would stick to another part of the material. This also reinforces the damaged spot.

FRIED PIES

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a great way to use canned biscuits as a timesaver.

They are just the right size to roll out for making fried pies — no mixing or cutting. Roll out one biscuit at a time, fill with apples, peaches, apricots, etc., fold over and mash edges together, and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar.

IRONING WITH CEDAR

DEAR HELOISE:

When doing your weekly ironing, keep a branch of green cedar on the end of the ironing board and run your hot iron over it.

The iron will glide over the clothes like magic.

Helps remove starch accumulation, too.

Old Faithful

And, gals, it works . . . and does the cedar smell good! I borrowed a small branch from a cedar tree in my neighbor's yard.

EASY OPENER

DEAR HELOISE::

I cut a piece of rubber four or five inches square from an old inner tube or from the cuff of an old rubber glove.

I keep this piece of rubber in my kitchen drawer and use it to unscrew bottle tops and lids from jars. Try it. It really does the job.

SHAKE BY THE HEELS

DEAR HELOISE:

If a sock is shaken by the heel instead of the toe, it will retain its original shape when dry. I just give a quick shake to each sock before pinning it on the clothesline.

When I heard this idea I was skeptical, but have since learned that it works.

Mrs. J. R.

FLOWERPOT GUARDRAIL

DEAR HELOISE:

I display my plants on an outside window sill without any danger of their tipping or falling by attaching a curtain rod to the window frame so that the rod runs across at a level just above the center of the pots.

Cora Singer

PURPLE PANCAKES

DEAR HELOISE:

A real ball for the kids is a colored-pancake party! Red, green, blue, etc., tinted with cake coloring.

It looks awful to us, but to those kiddies there is nothing more appetizing! And you know what? They taste the same as the regular ones!

Carrol Sutherland

I tried it. It did look awful to me, but you should have seen my daughter and her friends devour them! But then, she is only 13!

We made up one batter of pancake dough, divided it into fruit jars, added a few drops of cake coloring in each fruit jar, stirred it up, and then made the pancakes! Wow! I guess that's youth.

NECKLACE DISPLAY

DEAR HELOISE:

While visiting a relative recently I discovered a nice way to keep necklaces.

She had covered a thin board with velveteen and nailed the board to the inside of a closet door. The necklaces were hung on small cuphooks attached to the board. They are always easy to find, never tangle with other jewelry, and are a beautiful sight to see.

SEAM SLITTING

DEAR HELOISE:

If you sew, there are many times when you need an old razor blade for something.

I have found that you can wrap adhesive tape around one end of a razor blade and use the other end for ripping seams, cutting off buttons, etc.

This keeps you from cutting your fingers or slicing your fingernails . . . prevents many mishaps.

Katherine

TASTY TRICKS

DEAR HELOISE:

Try mixing maple or waffle syrup in your peanut butter . . . it will not tear the slices of bread when spread and is delicious.

E. B.

FELT PROTECTION

DEAR HELOISE:

I cut pieces of felt from my discarded hats and put them on the bottom of the furniture to prevent scratches on my floors. I cut the pieces in the exact shape of the bottom of the leg of each piece of furniture and glue them on.

It takes care of the problem beautifully.
